
RAMS SPIKE HUSKIES IN OAKLAND – The Southern High School varsity volleyball team may have taken a 3-0 victory over the visiting Northern Huskies last night, but the match befitted the intense cross-county rivalry as only five and four points separated the two teams in a pair of the contests. SHS senior middle hitter Kayla Nazelrod (#22) is pictured going high for a spike, flanked from the left by Ram teammates Julia Bosley (#5), Chelsea Wassell (#24), Erica Pratt (#4), Sarah Bittinger (#14), and Bethany Steyer (#10). Lined up on the receiving side of the net are Huskies Dani Glotfelty (#11), Lakin Weimer (#24), Jayme Miller (#3), Jessica Fratz (#12), and Keri Bachtel (#7). Southern improved to 11-1 with the win, while the Huskies fell to 5-9. Both teams wrap up regular season action this week. Photo by John McEwen.

Oakland's CAYFL Rams Downed In Playoff Outings

Both Oakland Rams squads were eliminated from the first round of the Cumberland Area Youth Football League (CAYFL) playoffs over the weekend, as the Division I team sustained a 39-20 loss to Keyser, and the Division II unit was edged by Ridgeley 7-6.

Oakland fell victim to a first-quarter Keyser flurry that featured Jeremy Green touchdown runs of 75 and 40 yards. Green added a 43-yard scoring carry in the second quarter, and after his teammates chipped in with a 40-yard TD run and a 40 yard interception return for a touchdown, the stunned Rams found themselves on the short end of a 33-0 halftime deficit.

Oakland regrouped over the intermission and came out to put up a valiant second-half effort. The Rams' ground game got in gear as Travis Skeweris capped a drive with a three-yard touchdown carry. Skeweris scored again from 17 yards out before teammate Ryan Sweitzer turned in a three-yard scoring carry of his own; however, another Keyser touchdown put the game out of the Rams' reach.

Oakland's coaches reported that Sweitzer, Skeweris, and Brian Baker turned in excellent performances on offense, while teammates Ken Lake, Ryan Fitzwater, and Nathaniel Raley had fine defensive efforts. The Steelers' Green amassed 175 rushing yards on just six carries.

The Division II contest was a defensive slugfest that was scoreless throughout the entire first half.

The Rams' Jacob Scheffel broke the deadlock in the third quarter when he rumbled 60 yards for a touchdown to put Oakland up 6-0.

The score remained the same until the final quarter, when Ridgeley's James Jones scored on a three-yard carry to knot contest at 6-all. On the crucial extra-point conversion play, Jones carried the ball over to give Ridgeley a one-point lead and the contest.

Alec Holloway and William Eichhorn earned kudos for excellent play for Oakland's defensive unit.

Keyser hosts the Division I Northern Steelers this weekend in a CAYFL semi-final match-up, while the Division II Ridgeley Rams will visit Northern.

Ram Netters Sweep Past Frankfort, NHS; Now 11-1

The Southern High School varsity volleyball team rolled its record to 11-1 this week by blanking Frankfort Monday in a 3-0 sweep, then downing the visiting Northern High Huskies last night in another sweep that was much closer than the 3-0 game margin would indicate.

The Rams put together 25-16, 25-20, and 27-25 homecourt victories over Frankfort behind senior hitter Kayla Nazelrod's match-high 17 service points and six digs, Sarah Stephens's nine kills, and Megan Swartzentruber's three kills. Julia Bosley contributed eight points, three aces, and five kills, and Bethany Steyer and Sarah Bittinger handed out 11 assists apiece.

Angie Jenkins had 10 points, 11 kills and eight digs for the Falcons.

SHS's junior varsity netted a 2-1 victory as Adrienne Yoder recorded eight points, four aces and four assists. Amber Plank had eight points and three aces, while Natalie Rohrbaugh contributed four kills and three assists.

Last night's cross-county match with the visiting Huskies proved to be a typical Southern-Northern meeting, as the two teams clawed their way through a hard-fought battle. Despite taking the contest in straight games by 25-21, 25-16, and 25-20 tallies, the Rams were forced to work for every point against the determined NHS squad.

Bosley and Southern teammate Chelsea Wassel each had eight points and three aces, while Bosley also netted six kills and Wassel had five. Nazelrod recorded nine kills and Stephens had seven, while Steyer and Bittinger handed out 16 and 11 assists, respectively.

The Huskies got big performances from senior Lakin Weimer, who led in attacks with 21 while netting three kills and six points, while Jayme Miller led all scorers with nine points. Angie Umbel contributed six points and three attacks.

The Ram jayvees took a 25-15, 25-9 sweep over their NHS counterparts to boost their record to 11-1. Yoder tallied 15 Southern points and Elizabeth Ray added nine. Danielle Brenneman netted four points and three attacks for Northern.

Southern's regular season comes to a close this week with road matches against Westmar on Monday and Bishop Walsh on Tuesday.

The Huskies (5-9) play their final match of the regular season tonight at home as Bishop Walsh pays a visit. JV play gets under way at 6 p.m., with varsity action following at 7 p.m.

GC Netters Struggle In HCC Tourney, But Rebound Nicely

The Garrett College women's volleyball team started off slow this week, losing three outings in the Hagerstown Community College Tournament, but the Lakers regained their footing with a big sweep over visiting Baltimore City Monday before being edged in a 3-2 thriller Tuesday night in McHenry. Garrett's record is now 6-17.

GC's Friday foray into the Hagerstown Tourney resulted in two losses in the same afternoon. Cecil took a 3-1 victory, opening with a 30-23 win before Garrett knotted the match with a 30-21 victory. The Hawks took the next two games 30-19, 30-23.

Laker freshman and Northern High School graduate Lyndsi Butler netted 14 points and three aces, fellow freshman Jhonna Newby collected 14 kills, four aces, one block, and was 29 out of 33 on attacks and sophomore Amanda Frantz, another NHS alumna, had 12 digs, 13 kills, and was 34-of-38 on attacks. Molly Wolf and Tabitha Beitzel, both also 2003 Northern grads, recorded 11 digs and 13 digs, respectively, and Wolf also dished out 22 assists. Freshman Yolanda Anthony gathered 17 kills, was 33-for-35 on attacks, and had one block.

The Lakers were swept later that same day by the College of Southern Maryland Knights by game scores of 30-11, 30-27, and 30-14.

Frantz finished with 12 digs, two blocks, and an ace, freshman Brittany Jackson had five digs, and Anthony had six kills, was 20-21 on attacks, and had two

Thank You

from the family of Harold "Boone" Bowers

We would like to thank everyone who had a part in caring for our Dad (and brother) during his sudden illness. Dr. Miller, the third floor nursing staff at GCMH, the doctors and nurses at Ruby, but most of all, to the Dennett Road Nursing Home, for the care he received the last six days of his life. By the time he was brought there he had not been aware of what was going on for a few weeks. Our family, however, saw the compassion and care he was given and what was done for us as we sat with Dad. We will never be able to thank you enough.

We also would like to thank everyone for their expressions of sympathy following his death. The food, flowers, cards, prayers, and the wonderful meal served following the funeral by the Loch Lynn Church of God. A special thanks to Ivan and Cindy Ackerman for the wonderful service that came straight from their hearts.

Despite putting up some good numbers, Garrett fell in three straight games Saturday, as the Catonsville Cardinals reeled off 30-25, 30-12, and 30-27 victories.

Newby netted two aces, 11 kills, and seven points, and was 28-for-34 on attacks; Frantz had 14 digs, nine kills, and seven points; and Anthony was 23-for-25 on attacks with five kills, six digs, and three blocks. Wolf had eight digs and 11 assists, and freshman Danielle Thompson handed out eight assists.

Garrett returned home with a vengeance Monday to demolish Baltimore City in a 30-13, 30-12, 30-10 sweep.

Newby netted seven aces and six kills, Anthony garnered seven kills and six aces, and Frantz recorded five aces, nine digs, and 10 kills, and was 15-for-17 on the attack. Wolf recorded a Laker-high 16 assists.

Details of Tuesday's 3-2 home court loss to the Cardinals were not made available.

The Lakers are slated to visit Potomac State tonight before returning home to host Essex in a 2 p.m. regular season finale.

DNR Logging Perturbs Public Land Defenders

by Judson Berger
Capital News Service

CEDARVILLE STATE FOREST — To state officials, the scattered patches of barren land in Cedarville State Forest represent responsible management. But to some environmentalists, they represent ecological wreckage.

"This is what a forest ecologist called the nadir of diversity," said Dan Boone, conservation chairman of the Maryland Sierra Club, as he surveyed the edges of logged land in Cedarville. A month ago, loggers began harvesting about 30 acres worth of wood there, sold by the state's Department of Natural Resources for about $30,000.

The DNR for years has allowed logging on public lands, something the Sierra Club and other groups say should stop. An end to the logging is unlikely, but the state is answering their grievances with new executive orders and a fresh approach to timber in Maryland.

Timber harvests, permitted on half of Maryland's state forests, preclude opportunities for recreation and a diverse ecology, according to Boone. The young, thin forest is "boring," he griped.

"It's still woods," responded Jeff Horan, DNR's chief of forest resource planning.

Horan said a new sustainable forestry commission, along with outside certification for DNR timber projects and a "unified plan" begun earlier this year, should help them better manage the land. But the revenue and even the ecological benefit from logging, he said, justify the logging.

"Sometimes it's a good tool," said Horan, explaining that some foraging animals need clear landscapes as much as they need dense forests.

Still, neither sprouting underbrush nor open terrain, they agreed, match the optimal dense foliage and moist ground cover of the state's old-growth forests, which are the conditions groups like the Maryland Alliance for Greenway Improvement and Conservation (MAGIC) hope to reinstate.

"It will take 100 years to partially restore," said Bob DeGroot, MAGIC president, of the stump-studded fields in Cedarville. "Is this the best we can do on our public lands?"

Timber sales are a fraction of the DNR's budget — about $2.8 million last fiscal year. Mike Slattery, assistant secretary for Forests, Parks, Fish and Wildlife at the DNR, said without them, many DNR programs would be under-funded.

"We want people to have enjoyable experiences when they go to our state parks," said Slattery, "but we do need revenue."

The department waits in excess of 100 years, sometimes fewer, to re-harvest any portion of forest — a longer wait, Slattery said, than the private sector provides.

"It's a renewable resource, it's legitimate management of the resource."

DeGroot takes little issue with the timber industry as a whole.

"We probably should have land whose purpose is to produce wood fiber," he said. "There's nothing wrong with that. But that isn't necessarily public land . . . you can't have the dual purposes of having good wildlife habitat, and log it."

Even in Savage River State Forest, the largest in Maryland, patches of preserved wilderness are disconnected by land open to logging. The wildlife hubs and corridors the DNR aims for are fragmented.

But land must pay for itself, said Horan, or it risks being turned over to development. Despite the wide range of access, the DNR annually disturbs 1 percent of state forest, which makes up the 40 percent of Maryland still covered by trees. Only a trace amount of those woodlands actually qualify as old growth.

Belt Woods, near Mitchellville, is one such patch, which DeGroot, Boone, and Horan surveyed before visiting Cedarville. The differences between that and the young, harvested forests emphasize the toll taken by logging.

"The trees are really tall in here," said Boone, peering up at 120-foot white oaks and poplars. "That's all habitat, too," added Horan. The three foresters commented on the rich diversity of species within this 40-acre parcel of pure old growth, imagining what it would have been like to be the first settlers to touch the land.

The surrounding property, accessible by permit only, cannot be opened up. "They'd love it to death," said Horan.

About to head to the timber fields, the DNR official paused and looked around. "I hate to leave this place," he said.

SHARK TALE

Rated PG - Running Time: 1:30 - Released 10/1/04

Shark Tale is the latest creation from the cartoon department of Dreamworks SKG, the company which, in its relatively short tenure, has produced such successful and innovative animated products as Antz, The Prince Of Egypt, and, perhaps best of all, the two Shrek movies. The reason I compulsively list the Dreamworks cartoon catalogue at the beginning of each of my reviews of them is so readers don't confuse them with the more juvenile Disney offerings. Dreamworks cartoons have, so far, always been distinguished by their originality, adult-oriented humor and drier wit. Well, that trend may be over. While Shark Tale is as colorful, fun-loving, and fast-paced as anything the company has produced, it tells a story which is not exactly original, not terribly witty, and definitely not adult-oriented. But it's still a good movie.

Directed by Bibo Bergeron (The Road To El Dorado), Vicky Jenson (Shrek), and Rob Letterman (his first feature), from a screenplay by Letterman and several others, it features the vocal talents of Will Smith, Jack Black, Renée Zellweger, Angelina Jolie, Robert De Niro, and Martin Scorsese, whose characters all dwell at the bottom of the ocean. However, Smith's character, a puny, high-strung fish called Oscar--though he's not really an oscar--lives closer to the actual bottom than most of the others. And that's his problem. Working at a whale wash (it's like a car wash, but there's much more barnacle removal involved), he dreams of a life at the top of the reef, in a penthouse apartment, above all the bottom-feeders who populate his poverty-stricken neighborhood. While his friend Angie (Zellweger) enjoys life well enough as long as Oscar's around, he wants to live in a society where life isn't so hard and no one has to fear the constant pressure of the menacing sharks that control the neighborhood.

The leader of said sharks is big boss Don Lino (De Niro), an aquatic goodfella who wants his two sons, Lenny (Black) and Frankie (Michael Imperioli, The Sopranos) to inherit the family business. But Lenny, a timid vegetarian, is not very well-suited to the lifestyle of his species, so his brother takes him out for a few lessons in remorseless killing. Unfortunately, it is Frankie whose life is accidentally snuffed out, and since Oscar happens to be in the vicinity at the time, word quickly spreads that he is responsible. He soon adopts the title of "Sharkslayer," as it brings him just the kind of fame, wealth, and attention he desires, especially with the help of his new manager, Sykes (Scorsese), an opportunistic puffer fish who used to work for Don Lino. Meanwhile, Lenny disappears, so the Don is understandably keen to find the fish who apparently "whacked" his two offspring. While Angie is put off by Oscar's new celebrity and conceited behavior, her place is taken by a fishy femme fatale named Lola (Jolie), whose intentions are, to say the least, unclear.

While this film shows that the Dreamworks animation dept. is clearly lowering its standards by going for the big bucks of child-oriented cartoons instead of continuing the struggle for hearts and minds of adult viewers, it is certainly not short of humorous movie references. In addition to nods toward sea-related classics like Jaws, Titanic, and Finding Nemo, there are also many other funny references to films like The Untouchables, Scarface, Jerry Maguire, and all three Godfather movies. And it does contain some funky tunes, including a dynamite rendition of "Car Wash" by Christina Aguilera and Missy Elliot, which plays over the end credits. But with its setting so clearly reminiscent of Finding Nemo and its reliance on fast-paced action and dazzling colors rather than droll wit and adult-related referential humor, this film seems to indicate a movement on Dreamworks's part toward a more broad-based approach, sinking ever so slightly into the ocean of sameness that has become de rigueur among movies in general of late. After delighting us with Shrek and Chicken Run—films which adults may have loved even more than the kids—and feeling the backlash of pushing it too far in the dirty-minded Cat In The Hat, the company has begun a gentle slide toward the yawning abyss of mainstream animation, foregoing some of the wit and biting satire for the possible bigger paycheck of a crowd-pleasing kiddie flick.

But it's still a good movie. ★★★★

DNR Selling Tree Seedlings At Cost

The John S. Ayton State Forest Tree Nursery of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Forest Service is offering seedlings, at cost, to individuals and organizations interested in planting trees on a minimum 1/4 acre of land. Seedling orders will be taken until Monday, Feb. 28, but early orders are encouraged because they will be filled on a first come, first served basis.

"Our seedling sale is one of the ways that DNR's Forest Service works to help individuals and organizations invest in the future," stated an agency spokesperson.

Individuals with 1/4 acre or more are encouraged to plant trees as stream buffers and windbreaks, and to improve wildlife habitat and erosion control. Neighbors can work together to plant 1/4 acre along their property lines, and communities are encouraged to plant seedlings in parks and other common areas. The seedlings are offered for sale in minimum quantities of 100. Conifers may be ordered in multiples of 50, and hardwood seedlings in multiples of 100.

To encourage the planting of riparian buffers in Maryland, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will offer, at no cost, seedlings to those private landowners who have a forest plan for the riparian area that they want to reforest. The riparian buffer is generally limited to the 100-year floodplain, or to the crest of the hill in steep valleys.

Landowners interested in planting trees on their property this spring should contact the DNR Forest Service office at Mt. Nebo at 301-334-3296 for information and guidance in planning any plantings because proper site preparation is extremely important, according to a spokesperson.

Persons planning to plant more than one acre may be eligible for one of the many incentive programs offered by the state or federal government. The Forest Service office at Mt. Nebo can provide further information about these programs.

Landowners or groups interested in purchasing seedlings for planting next spring can also place orders by contacting the John S. Ayton Forest Tree Nursery at 1-800-TREES–MD (1-800-873-3763). The 2004 nursery catalog can be obtained through the nursery's Web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/forests/nursery.

DR. ALAN IRVINE will present a program about the "fascinating people, intriguing characters, and offbeat eccentrics" who helped shape Pennsylvania history and development on Tuesday, Oct. 26, at 7:30 p.m. at the Folk Meeting House in Springs, Pa. Irvine, pictured, is a commonwealth speaker for the Pennsylvania Humanities Council, professional storyteller, and visiting professor of sociology at the University of Pittsburgh. Most of the names of these fascinating people have been forgotten by the general public. Irvine introduces a woman who raced Jules Verne and became the world's first investigative reporter, a railroad engineer who saved the Gettysburg Address, a schoolteacher who wanted to be spy, and many more. Sponsored by the Springs Historical Society, this free presentation is a program of the Pennsylvania Humanities Council, supported in part by a grant from the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission. The Folk Meeting House is located along Springs Road (Rt. 669). For more information, persons may call 814-662-4366 or visit online at springspa.org.

Message from the Dean's Desk

Garrett College

by Dr. Virginia Broaddus
Dean of Academic Affairs

At Garrett College, we're honored.

I've had the pleasure of saying these words more than once recently, and each time I'm even more proud of our students, our faculty, our staff, our alumni, and our community members. Whether I'm speaking to guests on campus, representing our college at events in the area, or talking with our students, I cherish the chance to think about what being associated with Garrett College means.

For instance, recently we were honored to host a reception for Sue Arnson, whose beautiful watercolors are on display in our art gallery. Working with Professor Ron Skidmore, Sue not only assembled a dynamite show but also found a way to continue promoting our fine arts division. She generously donated two paintings to be raffled, with the proceeds given to our Art Club. We were honored to showcase her artistic gifts and to be the recipient of her generous donation.

In a different way, we were honored to welcome dozens of guidance counselors and college representatives to Garrett for the Mountain Top College Expo, cosponsored with the Board of Education, and to the Transfer Day for students interested in transferring to four-year schools from Garrett. I particularly enjoyed the chance to touch base with admissions officers from Frostburg, where so many of our students are studying hard and achieving much. I was glad, too, to talk with an admissions representative from Mount Saint Mary's College and to learn that Garrett graduate Ashley Liller continues to do well, and happy to hear that Joanna Abe, another Garrett success story, is succeeding at Bridgewater College. I was equally glad to meet Dawn Panther and hear that her two sons, both former students of mine in our distance learning classes, are succeeding in a master's program (in Nathaniel's case) and in engineering studies at WVU (in Chad's case). In each case, Garrett had the honor of playing a part in a student's education.

I was also honored to attend Garrett County's Board of Education's Professional Development Day, especially in applauding Dave Bender, Garrett County's Teacher of the Year. It was great to hear Dave discuss educators as "ordinary people doing extraordinary things." The auditorium was full of such people, many of them GC graduates, so many alumni that I don't dare list them for fear of leaving out someone's name. His truly inspiring presentation reminded me of how honored we at GC are to be in the education profession as we help our students (extraordinary all in their own way) achieve their goals.

In fact, we've been honored in the past week as several new employees have joined us at GC. Judy Carbone will head our career placement services office as well as serve as an admissions officer, while Misty Rollman will serve as a secretary in our president's office. Sean Conroy has joined our team as multimedia assistant, and he'll work with a great team led by Cathy Torok, our new dean of information technology. Jason Groves, our new staff accountant, will be working with a super group of individuals in our business office. We're glad that each joins us in helping students achieve their goals, including those 17 students who have just been inducted into the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society, having achieved a landmark 3.5 GPA after completing at least 24 credits.

Perhaps the greatest honor that's come to my attention recently is that awarded to Ann Wellham, GC's athletic director, professor of physical education, and head women's volleyball coach. Ann's dedication to athletics was celebrated recently in New York City, where she was recognized as the National Association of Collegiate Women Athletic Administrator of the Year. To be recognized by one's colleagues on a national level is awe-inspiring, and all of us at GC – faculty, students, staff, and administrators – are glad to honor Ann and her recognition.

In the end, we at GC are perhaps most honored by our students, past and present, and their accomplishments. Whether they're returning to give presentations on hiking the Appalachian Trail, as is the case of Julia Geisler, or leading great teams in surveying and mapping for grant opportunities, like Jessica Brewer and Gary Aronhalt, we're proud of our students and their accomplishments. At Garrett College, we are, indeed, truly honored.

Wal-Mart Jewelry Heist Garners Jail Sentence

An Oakland man was handed a one-year sentence, half of which was suspended, after he pleaded guilty to a theft charge stemming from an August incident at the Oakland Wal-Mart store.

Benjamin Joseph McCurdy, 19, received a one-year sentence, half of which was suspended, and was placed on six months supervised probation by visiting Judge Paul Stakem. McCurdy was one of four individuals arrested in August by sheriff's deputies in connection with the theft of a ring from the Wal-Mart jewelry counter when an expensive ring was surreptitiously swapped with a cheap ring while a sales person was showing the merchandise. Two juveniles involved in the incident pleaded guilty in juvenile court, and were credited with time served and placed on supervised probation, while a fourth defendant is slated to appear for a court hearing at a future date.

In other District Court news, Lisa Michele George, 39, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but nine days of which was suspended, and was placed on one year of supervised probation. George was a resident of an Oakland motel when the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force obtained a warrant to search her room, and discovered an envelope containing marijuana. Garrett County District Court Judge Ralph Burnett presided.

Patrick Dwayne Sartor, 38, Frostburg, pleaded guilty to reckless endangerment and was handed an 18-month suspended sentence, a $300 fine, two years of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service, while additional charges of first- and second-degree assault were not prosecuted. The charges stemmed from Sartor's July arrest by sheriff's deputies for firing a pistol during a domestic incident at a Finzel area residence.

Michael Paul Sliger, 32, Oakland, pleaded not guilty to second-degree assault but was convicted nonetheless and handed a 60-day sentence, fined $100, and placed on one year of supervised probation. Sheriff's deputies arrested Sliger in July after he had struck another man during the course of a dispute over a woman.

Vincent Darnell Estes, 28, and Jason Von Estes, 26, both of Indianapolis, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession, and each was handed a 60-day suspended sentence, a $255 fine, and 18 months' unsupervised probation by visiting judge Ed Malloy. The pair were arrested by Maryland state troopers after a June traffic stop on Interstate 68 near Friendsville when they voluntarily turned over a bag of marijuana and some cigar casings filled with marijuana.

Michael Maurice Mannion, 23, Morgantown, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $200, placed on six months' unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service by Judge Burnett. Mannion's January arrest by state troopers stemmed from a Sang Run Road traffic stop, during which a search uncovered a container of marijuana and a smoking device. An additional charge of drug paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted.

Roy Scott Davis, 33, Kitzmiller, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $555, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service. The charge stemmed from an Oakland traffic stop by sheriff's deputies who discovered a smoking pipe bearing burnt marijuana residue in his car.

Benjamin Paradise Holliday, 18, Medford, N.J., and James Robert Gardner, 18, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., both entered guilty pleas to respective marijuana possession charges, and each was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling, fined $205, and placed on one day of unsupervised probation. The men were arrested in July during an I-68 traffic stop near Grantsville, when state troopers located two bags of marijuana, a smoking bong, and numerous other items of drug paraphernalia. Judge Malloy presided.

Emily Whitman, 20, Pikesville, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ by Judge Burnett, along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $200 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service. The charge stemmed from a February traffic stop on I-68 near Friendsville, where she voluntarily turned over marijuana to state troopers.

Three individuals–Sheralle Jean Lewis, 20, Uniontown, Pa., Darvus Mannaze Grey, 22, Lusby, and Antonio Antwan Alston, 20, District Heights–pleaded guilty to misdemeanor theft, and each received a PBJ and a 60-day suspended sentence, a $100 fine, and one year of supervised probation, along with an order to pay a combined total of $1,014 in restitution to the victim. The three were arrested in April following a Maryland State Police investigation of a February residential burglary in Mtn. Lake Park. They had entered the home of an acquaintance through an unlocked door and took currency, a DVD player, a VCR, a cell phone, DVDs, videotapes, and Play Station games. Additional charges of first-degree burglary and misdemeanor theft were not prosecuted.

Steven Dale Wolff, 34, McHenry, pleaded not guilty to felony theft, forgery, uttering, misdemeanor theft, and conspiring to commit felony theft and forgery, and each charge was placed onto the stet docket. Wolff was arrested in June by Garrett Bureau of Investigation detectives after a probe of the theft of personal checks. Wolff allegedly used a check to deposit over $9,000 into his own account on a forged signature. He was also ordered to pay restitution to F&M Bank.

Chad Edward Rosenberger, 30, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., was handed stet rulings on charges of second-degree assault and malicious destruction of property, with Judge Malloy presiding. His July arrest by state troopers followed a domestic altercation when he allegedly kicked open a door during a domestic incident and wrestled a woman to the ground.

Barbara Lynn Garde, 19, Grantsville, was handed a stet ruling on a second-degree assault charge filed by sheriff's deputies after she allegedly scratched a man during an argument.

David Scott Collins, 21, Oakland, was handed stet rulings on two counts each of second degree assault, harassment, and disorderly conduct. Oakland police officers arrested Collins in July after an incident at the Oakland Wal-Mart store, during which he allegedly harassed a couple inside the store, then tried to punch a woman in the parking lot. Judge Burnett presided.

David Spencer Glotfelty, 20, Oakland, received stet rulings on charges of disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace, which were filed by sheriff's deputies after a fight outside an Oakland residence.

Pamela Mary Cobb, 60, Manhattan Beach, Calif., was handed a stet ruling on a violation of ex parte order, a charge that led to her July arrest by sheriff's deputies. Cobb had refused to accept the court order when a deputy attempted to place it in her hand at a Deep Creek Lake area house, and was arrested for not complying.

UAW-GM 500 REVIEW

Johnson SWEEPS at Lowe's

Hendrick drivers finish 1-2 in race filled with cautions

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Concord, N.C.

Halfway through the Chase for the Nextel Cup, the points leaders put on a race that makes the new format look like a stroke of genius.

Jimmie Johnson beat his Hendrick Motorsports teammate and fellow Chase contender Jeff Gordon to the finish line to win the UAW-GM 500 at Lowe's Motor Speedway on Saturday night.

Dale Earnhardt Jr. finished third over Kurt Busch as Chase drivers swept the top four spots.

Johnson, who crashed last week at Kansas, rebounded in a big way.

"What a way to right the ship," he said, although he's still 227 points behind Busch, who heads to Martinsville leading the standings, 24 points ahead of Earnhardt.

But after back-to-back bad runs at Talladega and Kansas, Johnson knows his title hopes are fleeting.

"We still have hope, but it's out of our control," he said, explaining that Busch, Gordon and Earnhardt all will have to suffer misfortunes for him to have a chance to win the championship.

Considering the way Busch has dodged disaster in recent races, there's little chance of that.

Busch entered the race with a 29-point lead over Earnhardt, then received minor damage in a spin just after the initial drop of the green flag.

Scott Riggs, who started fourth, missed a shift on the start and did not come up to speed. That stacked up the drivers behind him, triggering a multi-car spin that saw Greg Biffle get shoved into the wall and caused damage to the cars of Gordon and Busch.

The crash initially seemed to affect the aerodynamics of Gordon's car more than Busch's. By Lap 62, Gordon was in 30th, a lap off the pace, while Busch was 12th and climbing.

Busch had another close call on Lap 223 when Kevin Harvick blew an engine just in front of him, and he drove through the infield to miss the Lap 301 wreck that knocked his teammate Mark Martin out of the runner-up spot.

"We had a busy day," Busch said.

Gordon said his team showed championship form by helping him recover from the two early wrecks.

"It's unbelievable," he said. "I don't know what happened at the beginning but we were junk for a while."

Earnhardt Jr. grabbed his good finish and maintained his position in the standings in spite of a problem with his headers that robbed him of horsepower.

"We lost a lot of power, but we had a good night," he said.

But it was a heart-breaking race for Martin, who had driven his way to second place before being swept up in a Lap 301 crash between Jimmy Spencer and Brendan Gaughan. He finished 13th.

"We did everything we could do," Martin said. "I can't help it."

Ryan Newman also was collected in the Spencer-Gaughan crash and is 271 points out of the lead with five races to go.

Mayfield suffers more misfortune

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Concord, N.C.

Jeremy Mayfield, who seized a spot in the Chase with a dramatic win at Richmond, suffered through another series of misfortunes Saturday, which likely will eliminate him from the title hunt.

He had a fast car, but tire problems at Lap 172 sent him to pit road just as Matt Kenseth blew a tire, hit the wall and brought out the caution.

He lost a lap there, made it up, but ran through the oil from Kevin Harvick's blown engine, hit the wall again and drove to the garage on Lap 231. He returned 45 laps later, but finished 30th and fell 349 points behind Busch.

Liquor deals on tap

Rumors are rampant in the Nextel Cup garage that sponsorship by hard liquor companies is just around the corner.

Roush Racing has been trying to get approval from NASCAR to have Diageo sponsor one of its Cup cars, but team president Geoff Smith said it's too late now for a full-scale program next year.

He did say that Smirnoff Ice, Diageo's malt beverage product, will move from the team's No. 17 to the No. 97 next year, and there is a provision for phasing in the hard liquor products if NASCAR lifts its long-standing ban.

Several other teams, including Richard Childress Racing, are believed to be pursuing liquor sponsorships.

Series spokesman Mike Zizzo said the liquor sponsorships are being studied.

"We are currently evaluating the policy we have in place regarding the prohibiting liquor sponsorships," he said. "But there has been no official decision at this time in regard to any changes to that policy."

Elliott picks up sponsor

Bill Elliott has picked up a primary sponsor for at least four Nextel Cup races next season. Stanley Tools will sponsor his No. 91 Dodge in races at California, Indianapolis, Texas and Charlotte. Sponsorship for two more races will be announced next month.

Team owner Ray Evernham said he hopes to run Elliott in even more events next season.

By JEFF GLUCK
Cox News Service

Concord, N.C.

Kasey Kahne is like the guy who asks the prettiest girl in school on a date over and over again. The girl says 'yes' every time, but Kahne just keeps getting stood up.

Saturday, once again, Kahne's heart was broken.

The 24-year-old NASCAR Nextel Cup Series rookie with five career second-place finishes almost broke through Saturday night in the UAW-GM Quality 500.

Kahne led a career-high 207 laps, which was 62 percent of the race. No one had an answer for the rookie.

"The nine car was so fast, I almost pretended like I was leading the race," said Dale Earnhardt Jr., who was running second for most of the race. "I just said, 'Nah, I ain't gonna try to compete with that.' "

Kahne had come close in Dover, when he hit an oil slick and spun right before NASCAR called a caution. He was so close to winning at Rockingham that he stayed out to do a victory celebration before a photo finish said otherwise.

But at Lowe's Motor Speedway, it was even more agonizing.

With just 67 laps remaining, Kahne, by no fault of his own, slammed into the wall in Turn 2. His right front tire betrayed him, blowing out and ending his day.

"I feel for Kasey and that team," race winner Jimmie Johnson said. "Those guys have been the class of the field in a lot of races. When they figure out how to make it to the end, they're going to be tough to beat."

Said Earnhardt Jr.: "He was much faster than anybody. I would assume that if he hadn't had his problem, he would have gone to Victory Lane pretty easily."

Kahne dominated the first 100 laps, often leading by five seconds or more. But even that figure is misleading — Kahne's car was so fast, he led the fourth-place car by as many as 14 seconds during that stretch.

Kasey Kahne: Still winless.

Now used to the disappointment, Kahne took the wreck in stride.

"I don't know what to do," he said. "You really can't blame anybody. You can't throw things. You just shake it off and go on."

Kahne is a poor man's Dan Marino. While Marino never won the big one, Kahne has never won at all. It makes him a sympathetic figure to fans who can relate to disappointment.

"We should have won several races by now," said Kahne's crew chief, Tommy Baldwin. "I just told Kasey that we were all going to learn from this."

Kahne, who called his ride "the best race car I've had in my life," said he'll appreciate when his first win comes.

"We definitely deserve a win sometime," he said.

Team anniversaries aplenty at LMS

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Concord, N.C.

Three of NASCAR's cornerstone race teams celebrated milestones at Lowe's Motor Speedway.

Hendrick Motorsports celebrated its 25th anniversary in NASCAR by having platinum-themed paint schemes on its Nextel Cup cars driven by Jeff Gordon, Terry Labonte, Jimmie Johnson, Brian Vickers and Kyle Busch.

Richard Childress Racing honored its 35th year in the sport by painting Kevin Harvick's No. 29 in blue and yellow, the colors Dale Earnhardt carried when his Childress-owned car was sponsored by Wrangler.

And the Wood Brothers race team made its 2,000th Cup start when Ricky Rudd started the UAW-GM 500 in the No. 21 Ford.

Eddie Wood, who co-owns the team with his father Glen, brother Len and sister Kim Wood Hall, said he's probably been to at least 800 of those 2,000 races, including the ones in the 1970s when David Pearson dominated the superspeedways in their cars.

He said he really doesn't know any way of life other than the nomadic existence of a traveling team owner and crew member.

"This is all I've ever done, and all I've ever thought about doing," he said.

GCMH RAFFLES SCARECROW – Walter Skeweris won the fall raffle for a life-size scarecrow that was recently held by the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Loar Auxiliary. The Loar Auxiliary operates the gift shop located in the lobby of the hospital, which is staffed entirely by volunteers. The proceeds from the raffle as well as all revenue generated in the gift shop are returned to the hospital in the form of donations and the purchase of various items to enhance the facility. Persons interested in becoming a Loar Auxiliary volunteer may call Kathy Greaser at 301-533-4178. Pictured above with the scarecrow is Betty Wolford, Loar Auxiliary volunteer.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

THROUGH ROSE–COLORED GLASSES

Q. When is the fall foliage going to peak?

A. That's a real tough call. There are so many factors affecting the timing that predictions are nearly hopeless, until the last couple of days before peak. However, if you want to see spectacular foliage even when the trees are mostly green, get some sunglasses that have a reddish tint, and look through them.

Reddish-tinted glass is a filter that takes out the green portion of the spectrum. The light coming from the trees is a mixture of all different colors, including the reds, oranges and yellows that we speak of as "fall foliage." But there is also a large amount of green in the mix of light, so the trees still look mostly green – not very exciting at all.

However, place the right filter in the pathway between the leaves and your eyes and voila! All that gets through is the "pretty" colors of autumn. Red sunglasses are excellent for producing this effect. You can enjoy brilliant foliage while everyone else is just waiting for it to get better.

MOONGLOW

Q. During an eclipse of the moon, it seems to glow a dull orange color. Why?

A. Normally when looking at the moon, you're seeing reflected sunlight. But when the moon is in Earth's shadow and sunlight doesn't reach it (an eclipse), all you see is the radiation given off by the hot surface of the moon.

The same side of the moon always faces Earth. This is because the moon rotates on its axis very slowly. In turn, this means that sunlight falls on any given point on the moon for about 14 days, and then that point is in darkness for 14 days. The surface gets quite hot under that much sunlight, and would be very hot if you could touch it. Just like a burner on an electric stove, that hot surface glows.

Unlike radiation from individual atoms, heat radiation from a surface (also called thermal radiation) has a characteristic mix of colors (wavelengths) that depends entirely on the temperature of the surface. From the surface of the moon, nearly all the radiation is in the infrared portion of the spectrum, which has long wavelengths. Only a little radiation occurs in the visible part of the spectrum, where the wavelengths are shorter and the energy higher. Of that, some is red, and even less is orange; almost none is yellow. Because the human eye is more sensitive to shorter wavelengths (toward the yellow and green range), the eye collects the orange wavelengths better than the red.

On any evening when you look at the moon, its hot surface is giving off radiation. However, that small amount is totally overwhelmed by the great amount of sunlight reflected off the surface. The reason the moon looks white is because that reflected sunlight is more energetic and intense. But the thermal radiation is still there.

Before the eclipse begins, the moon looks white. As the earth's shadow progresses, the crescent still looks white. But when the moon is totally eclipsed, all that reflected white light is absent. Then your eyes can adapt to the dark. After that, you can finally see the thermal radiation emitted by the moon's surface. It looks like a faint orange color. If you didn't know where to look, you'd probably miss it, because it's not very bright.

A burner on an electric stove may glow red when first switched off, but gradually fades from visibility, even though the burner is still warm. In a total lunar eclipse, darkness lasts about 1½ hours. If darkness lasted a full day, the cooling of the moon's surface would diminish the thermal radiation, and the orange color would disappear. But on the time scale of a couple hours, the orange glow is fairly constant.

Just as the total eclipse ends and a crescent (of reflected sunlight) appears again, you can still see the faint orange thermal radiation. But soon your eyes adapt to the stronger light, and the reflected bright sunlight dominates your view. Then you have to wait until the next lunar eclipse to see the thermal radiation again.

CHILDREN LEARN FIRE SAFETY AT LIBRARY – Fire Prevention Week was noted at the Ruth Enlow Library recently as Oakland volunteer firemen Larry Rodeheaver (seated) and Chick Ford visited the library's Children's Hour program. The children listened attentively as Rodeheaver and Ford described what to do in case of fire, and participants practiced their "stop, drop, and roll" technique and donned firemen's protective clothing and breathing equipment, particularly enjoying balancing a helmet on their small heads. Each child received a paper punch-out fire safety truck and a "If Clothes Catch Fire, Stop, Drop, and Roll" sticker. Pictured in the front row, from the left, are Cody Eyler, Jacob Toothman, Brayden Warnick seated on Rodeheaver's lap, Alban Welsh, Andrea Belanger, and Bryson Wilt. Ford is standing in the background.

Schram, 'Monk' come to parting of ways

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Bitty Schram

Q: Why on Earth was Bitty Schram written out of "Monk"? Her chemistry with Tony Shalhoub makes the show! –Faye in Vermont.

A: No one is talking on the record about why Schram is out of "Monk" (Traylor Howard of "Two Guys and a Girl" joins the show in upcoming episodes as Natalie, a single mom who becomes Adrian's new assistant).

"Every successful series changes over the course of its life," reads a statement from Jeff Wachtel, USA Network executive vice president. "We were fortunate to have Bitty Schram in our cast for two and a half seasons, and we are thrilled to have Traylor Howard join our cast now."

Schram's management firm, Untitled Entertainment, issued the following statement: "Bitty Schram and USA Network have amicably decided to go their own separate ways. She wishes everyone connected with the show continued success."

Someone close to the show whom I happen to trust assures me that my initial suspicion – that Schram was dumped in favor of a younger actress in hopes of attracting younger viewers – absolutely is not the case here. But like everyone else, that person declines to discuss the situation further.

While the details are vague, it appears Schram and the show's producers just came to a parting of the ways. For "Monk" fans, Howard definitely has some big shoes to fill.

Q: When will the series "The 4400" return? –Liz, Ellicott City, Md.

A: "The 4400" originally was intended to be no more than a limited series, but last summer's brief run attracted such blockbuster ratings that USA Network is said to be looking into ordering additional episodes.

That's complicated by some of the corporate shake-ups that have been going on in Hollywood over recent months, as well as the fact that producers of "The 4400" have a lot of actors to try to round up on short notice. If and when I know that the new episodes are moving into actual production, I'll try to note it here.

Q: I've enjoyed "Hollywood Squares" for a number of years but I cannot find it recently. Has it been canceled? I hope not! –J. Pordon, Mannorville, N.Y.

A: Yes, viewership has been on the wane for a while now, and King World Studios recently pulled the plug on the show hosted by Tom Bergeron.

Q: Is the actor playing Devon on "The Young and the Restless" the same actor who played the little boy on "Family Matters"? –Paula McCrimmon via e-mail.

A: Yes, Bryton McClure, now 18, used to play Richie Crawford in "Family Matters."

Dear Neighbors in Garrett County and Friends in West Virginia –

We write to you as parents and grandparents concerned about our nation's healthcare and the environment. We believe this election is crucial to our health, and our children and grandchildren's health. We believe it is critical to the health of the planet we live on, especially Deep Creek Lake and the rivers and streams in our area.

Environment:

The Clean Water Act was enacted in 1972. It's intent was to regulate the nation's drinking water and protect the nation's rivers and lakes for fishing, swimming, boating, and other water sports. Yet, today water pollution is still a problem. It is estimated that mercury pollution has contaminated 12,000,000 acres of lakes, estuaries and wetlands, and 473,000 miles of streams, rivers and coastlines. Mercury is a poison that affects the brain and nervous systems of fetuses and young children, similar to lead poisoning. The poison is mostly obtained through eating fish found in water polluted with mercury. The current administration is proposing a plan that would allow nearly seven times more annual mercury emissions for five times longer than current law. This will directly impact the health of the lakes and rivers in our area.

The Clean Air Act was initially enacted in 1970. It's intent was to regulate the pollutants in the air we breathe. Today air pollution is still a problem. Contaminated air causes a variety of aliments including headaches, breathing problems like bronchitis, and can in young children cause spine and brain damage. The damage is obtained through breathing polluted air. The current administration has a new Clear Skies initiative. It allows for more pollutants to be emitted into our air in the next decade than the provisions of the current Clean Air Act. It allows for no regulation of carbon dioxide emissions, 68% more nitrous oxide emissions, 225% more sulfur dioxide emissions, and 520% more mercury releases. This will directly impact the air in our area that we breathe.

More than 200 rules and regulation involving clean air and water, protected lands, and endangered species have been curtailed by the current administration. We are very concerned.

Healthcare:

We spend more on health care and drugs than any other country. Yet, according to the World Health Organization, out of 191 member states, we rank 37th in our health care. Our life expectancy is ranked last when compared to other industrialized nations.

There are nearly 44,000,000 people in our country that do not have health insurance. Of that figure 8,500,000 are children. Over the past three years, family health insurance premiums have increased more than $3,512 and prescription drug prices have grown four times faster than inflation.

Medicare premiums will increase 17 percent in 2005 – the largest increase in the program's history according to the AARP. Social Security incomes will increase just 2.5 percent in 2005. Already, the average Medicare beneficiary, living on their own, spends 22 percent of their income on out-of-pocket medical expenses.

Medicare reform has created confusion, offering numerous inconsistent plans, high deductibles and large gaps in coverage. The reform prohibits the government from negotiating with the pharmaceutical industry for lower prices on drugs covered by Medicare. It is now illegal to import cheaper prescription drugs from Canada. This restriction is a $139,000,000,000 windfall for the large drug companies at the expense our health. The Congressional Research Service reported that Canadian manufactured drugs meet or surpass the quality control standards of the FDA.

We believe there needs to be a change in the priorities of our government. Our health and the health of our children, grandchildren, our nation, and our planet should be the priority, not the profits of large drug or power companies. Focus needs to be on people, not multi-national corporations. This shift in priorities requires a change from George W. Bush to John Kerry.

So I Can See the Road Ahead

"Oh, I suppose I may be late for work this morning, but what can I do? This fog is so thick, I can't see two feet in front of me. I hope it lifts soon so I can see the road ahead."

Yes, we can identify with this anxious commuter just trying to get to work on time. Are there times when we have a problem navigating our lives as well? Do you ever feel that your mind is clouded with so many issues and deadlines that you lose sight of the really timeless things that make life worthwhile? Do you have enough time for your friends and loved ones? When we get too busy, our spiritual lives may suffer from neglect. That is when we need to slow down to see our path more clearly... to find direction for our lives.

We read in Proverbs 3:5-6, "Trust in the Lord with all your heart, and do not rely on your own insight. In all ways acknowledge Him, and He will make straight your paths."

Won't you take the time to worship this week? An hour in God's House will relieve your mind and refresh your spirit so you can clearly see the road ahead. God will be waiting for you there.

What is the Image of God?

Some 2500 years ago, the Greek philosopher Xenophanes remarked that people are prone to making their gods in their own image. He noted that Ethiopians conceived their gods to be dark-skinned with snub noses, while the Thracians made theirs red-haired and blue-eyed. Xenophanes quipped that if horses, oxen, and lions had hands and could produce works of art, their gods would no doubt be represented after their own kind. We moderns are perhaps less likely to think of God as having a physical body, but we are still prone to anthropomorphism (applying human forms or attributes to non-human things). In fact, even referring to God as He (or She) is a form of anthropomorphism. We fall prey to this mistake when we assume, perhaps unconsciously, that God shares our values. Instead, we should ask ourselves if we share God's values and whether we have made a God that is basically a reflection of our values and ideals, or instead, struggled to make ourselves a reflection of God?

Then God said, "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness..."

HOT TEA MAY BENEFIT PERSONS WITH DIABETES

Drinking hot tea has long been known to be beneficial to our health. New research is suggesting that tea provides additional benefits to diabetics by boosting the activity of insulin in the body by more than 15-fold. Since insulin regulation is a problem at the heart of diabetics, regularly drinking tea could be of benefit to over 17 million Americans with diabetes.

Although many different herbal, spice, and plant compounds were tested, scientists found that black, green, and oolong teas were the most effective at enhancing the activity of insulin in fat cells that convert sugar. This effect was seen with both caffeinated and non-caffeinated teas, but not with herbal tea made with leaves from a different type of plant than the officially recognized tea plant. Black, green and oolong teas are all made from this same leaf, however green tea is not fermented like black and oolong is in the manufacturing process. Researchers also noted that adding cow's milk, soy milk, or non-dairy creamers to the tea absorbs the healthful insulin-augmenting compounds and may inhibit the "insulin-boost."

Mystery Pets Have Nose for Clues

This month's great pet books are a mystery — no, really! Three mystery novels featuring our beloved pets are on the shelves, beckoning you to pick them up and read.

My first pick, "Putting On the Dog" by Cynthia Baxter (Bantam Books), is a charming murder mystery set on Long Island. Dr. Jessica Popper, the vet-turned-detective who debuted in Baxter's "Dead Canaries Don't Sing," is back, along with Max, her tailless Westie, and Lou, the one-eyed Dalmatian. Dr. Popper sits in on a swank charity dog show for another veterinarian friend, but her sedate trip to a wealthy community becomes much more interesting when the body of a celebrity photographer is found. This is a wry, engaging read that's hard to put down.

"The Cat's Meow" by Emily Carmichael (Bantam Books) debuts Nov. 2. Hotshot defense attorney Mckenna Wright loses her memory in a car accident, and while dealing with her amnesia and the possibility that someone out there doesn't want her remembering anything, she discovers that her cat, Nefertiti, has suddenly learned how to talk. As a legal whodunit with a few observations thrown in from a cat's point of view, pet owners will find this one worth checking out.

A dog plays a central role in Carol Lea Benjamin's newest mystery, "Fall Guy" (HarperCollins Publishers). Private investigator Rachel Alexander finds herself appointed the executor of a stranger's will — a New York City police officer found dead in his apartment. Their only apparent connection is the officer's rapport with Alexander's dog, Dashiell. Finding out more about why this man died, and how she and Dashiell became part of his life, could lead Alexander into danger. Author Benjamin has established a solid reputation as both a writer of dog training books and mysteries, and this new installment shouldn't be missed.

"Who's picking? I take 'em as they come!"

"It was only one of her loose eyelashes that fell, Sir!"

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• In 1922, the Kentucky legislature passed a law stating that anyone wearing only a bathing suit on the streets of a city that had no police protection must be fined anywhere from $5 to $25. There was no explanation at hand regarding why such a law was determined to be necessary, but it was not repealed until 1974.

Off Alaska, at the bottom of the Bering Sea, you can find the Navarin Canyon, which is a whopping 60 miles wide, and nearby Zhemchung Canyon is nearly 2 miles deep.

Victorian Inkwell

Q. I would like to know more about an inkwell that I received from a friend. It appears to be from the Victorian era and is silver-plated and quite ornate. — Rosemary, Sacred Heart, Minn.

A. Receptacles for various types of writing fluids have been available since ancient times. They have been crafted from many different materials, including glass, porcelain, wood and even papier-mâché.

During the Victorian era, inkwells were available in precious metals, including both gold and silver. Some of the more ornate inkwells were ones that were presented for some sort of public achievement or recognition. When dip pens became the standard during the 19th century, inkwells and inkstands became more common. Three of the most popular styles among serious collectors include Victorian, Art Nouveau and the highly stylized Art Deco.

One of the better groups for collectors is the Society of Inkwell Collectors, 10 Meadow Drive, Spenceport, NY 14559. Ray Jaegers is president of the St. Louis Inkwell Collectors Society, P.O. Box 29396, St. Louis, MO 63126. Gene Benson is owner of Antique Line, a shop that specializes in inkwells, desk accessories and fountain pens. His address is 771 West End Ave., New York, NY 10025.

POINT OF SALE NEW TO LUNCH LINES

On Oct. 26 Southern High School will be the first school in Garrett County to begin the Schoolhouse Point of Sale system. Students and parents will be able to deposit money into each student's account. That money then can be used to purchase breakfast, lunch, and a la carte. Each student will receive a letter the week before with his or her PIN (personal identification number). Each time students makes a purchase, they will be required to enter their PIN, even if they are paying cash. Any amount of money will be accepted for payment on the account at any time. Paying for meals in advance reduces the possibility of lost or stolen money. All meals on existing breakfast or lunch tickets will be converted into each student's account. As with any new process, we expect there to be some delays. Any delays should be resolved within a week or two. We appreciate your understanding and assistance. Any questions may be directed to Scott Germain in Food and Nutrition Services at 301-334-8917 or Mrs. Yommer in the cafeteria.

PEER COUNSELORS SELL "CARDS OF HOPE"

Peer counselors are taking orders until the end of October for "Cards of Hope." Holiday cards feature art work designed by children with cancer, cancer survivors and/or their siblings, and are $12.50 for a box of 20 cards. Two of the 10 cards were designed by children from Oakland. Two dollars from each box sold supports Southern's peer counseling group, while the remainder of the money benefits the Pediatric Cancer Care and Research Fund – a joint project of the Mary Babb Randolph Cancer Center and WVU Children's Hospital. Peer counselors chose to support this project because cancer touches the lives of so many of our friends and family. If you would like to order a box of cards please contact Kelley Davis, guidance counselor, at 301-334-1660. Cards will be available for delivery the second week of November.

Dove Center Offers Suggestions For Helping Domestic Violence Victims

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month. In recognition of the event, the Dove Center has offered the public some advice on helping victims of domestic violence.

"Why doesn't she just leave?"

"How often have you heard people say this about someone who is in an abusive relationship?" asked a center spokesperson. "To someone who is not in that position simply leaving may seem like an easy solution. However, turning your back on an abuser is not easy or uncomplicated."

Below are some of the reasons that actual victims have cited for staying in abusive relations:

•Fear that leaving will further agitate the abuser and he may follow through on threats such as, "If you leave me I will find and kill (or hurt) you and the kids." Leaving may be the most dangerous time for a victim.

•Lack of financial resources to support self and children.

•Concern about loss of economic security and benefits, such as retirement, income, and health insurance that is obtained through the spouse's employment.

•Feelings of love toward the spouse/partner, along with false hopes that "he will eventaully change" and the violence will stop.

•Emotional dependency on the relationship, along with feelings of low self-esteem and self blame that can cause a victim to believe they are not capable of making it on their own.

•Denial of the potential for severe abuse, rationalizing the abuse, and the making of excuses for the abuser's behavior.

•Keeping the family together no matter what it takes because they are afraid the divorce/separation will cause problems for the children. However, studies have shown that growing up in a violent home has many adverse effects and continues domestic violence through generations.

•Physical and/or social isolation from family, friends, and available resources that could possibly assist that victim in leaving the situation. This problem is worse in rural areas due in part to longer traveling distances and lack of public transportation.

•Strong cultural and religious beliefs about the importance of staying in a marriage, regardless of abuse being present in the relationship.

For more information, persons may call the Dove Center at 301-334-9000.

LAKE FORD UNITED METHODIST CHURCH will conclude its year-long centennial year celebration with a rededication service on Sunday, Nov. 7, at 3:30 p.m. Several former pastors are expected to attend, as well as returning guest pianist Jan Chalkey of Oakland and guest organist Horace Sheffer of Hanover, Pa. Rev. Dr. Frederick Perry, recently appointed pastor at Lake Ford and Faith Church, will officiate. The service will include recognition of former pastors, members, and "special" friends of the church. A very brief history will also be given, and many pictures will be displayed showing the growth of the church and its special events over the years. The church, located along Cranesville Road on the banks of Muddy Creek, was originally dedicated on Sept. 1, 1904. It was built on a lot purchased from Eugene and Jennie Teets for $10. At that time, there was a hemlock grove behind the church, and a bridge across Muddy Creek where it borders the Cranesville Sub-Artic Swamp. In the 1950s, the creek changed its course, and it now flows directly adjacent to the church. "Beaver dams periodically built there add a picturesque setting of the church, but are of concern during spring thaws and melting snows," said a church spokesperson. The Cranesville Cemetery is located on the hillside directly across the road from the church. Many families, some dating back more than a century, are represented there: Teets, Boyer, Sisler, Feather, Eary, and many others. The rededication service will be followed by light refreshments. For further details, persons may call C. Royer at 301-334-3948.

School Cafeterias To Implement Point Of Sale System

The Garrett County Board of Education will begin implementation of the Schoolhouse Point of Sale system in the cafeterias next week.

Students and parents will be able to deposit money into each student's account. That money then can be used to purchase breakfast, lunch, and a la carte. Each student will receive a letter the week before with his or her PIN (personal identification number). Each time students makes a purchase, they will be required to enter their PIN, even if they are paying cash.

Any amount of money will be accepted for payment on the account at any time. Paying for meals in advance reduces the possibility of lost or stolen money, said Scott Germain, director of Food and Nutrition Services. All meals on existing breakfast or lunch tickets will be converted into each student's account.

"As with any new process, we expect there to be some delays," Germain. "Any delays should be resolved within a week or two. We appreciate your understanding and assistance."

Any questions may be directed to Germain at 301-334-8917.

Computer Class Slated At Two Library Branches

The Ruth Enlow Library will offer a free class in personal computer basics from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 16, at the Oakland library, and from 9 to 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 30, at the Grantsville library.

This beginners' class will teach participants how to connect basic computer components, turn the machine on and off, open and save files, use a mouse, and navigate menus.

Each class is limited to eight people, and does not cover Apple Macintosh use.

Persons interested in attending the class in Oakland can register at the Oakland library's information desk, while those who wish to attend the class in Grantsville, can sign up at the circulation desk in the Grantsville library.

GC Community Network Advisory Comm. Formed

A community network advisory committee is being organized at Garrett College, according to Dr. Nancy Priselac, dean of student development. The group's task is to keep the college in touch with its community and help improve customer relations.

NURSES NEEDED – The Department of Labor Statistics estimates that by the year 2008, the United States will need nearly 451,000 more registered nurses. With that in mind, nursing support grant coordinator Toni Glotfelty, Garrett County Memorial Hospital, created a program to promote nursing as a career. Glotfelty, who is also the assistant director of nursing at Western Maryland Health Center's Memorial Campus, and her mother, JoAnn Forno, nurse manager of surgical services at GCMH, team up and speak to a wide variety of groups, ranging from pre-kindergarten to college students. "We adjust our presentations to accommodate the age and type of group we are educating," said Glotfelty. "On one occasion, we went to Friendsville Elementary School and spoke to a pre-K class and dressed the children up in surgical attire. We also spoke to fifth graders at Accident Elementary about how nurses use math in their careers. I encourage all elementary and secondary schools in our area to contact us to schedule a presentation." Other modules in the program include GCMH's Nursing Extern Program and Shadow a Nurse Program. To schedule a presentation, persons may call Glotfelty at 301-533-4357 or Forno at 301-533-4252. Pictured is Glotfelty at the Accident Elementary School presentation, which was held during the last school year.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Sgt. 1st Class Larry Schlossnagle has been promoted to his current rank with the Maryland Army National Guard, 243rd Engineers, Baltimore.

SFC Schlossnagle is a section leader with the Direct Support Maintenance Group (DSM), which requires him to oversee eight mechanics working on Hummers, 5-ton trucks, 20-ton trucks, graders, dozers, and rollers. He had transferred to the DSM section from the Construction Equipment Section, where he was a supervisor of heavy equipment operators.

The sergeant has spent his entire career in the engineer group, working his way through the ranks of enlistment from private E-1 to sergeant first class E-7. He has held the positions of demo specialist, truck driver, dispatcher, light-wheel vehicle mechanic, assistant squad leader, squad leader, equipment operator, construction supervisor, and safety noncommissioned officer.

Schlossnagle has also worked in recruiting and has received the recruiting ribbon and citation. In addition, he has won several honors in the Public Affairs Section and received an honor for best performance of the year for his unit. His other awards include the Army Commendation Ribbon, Army Achievement Ribbon, Army Drug Enforcement Ribbon, Army Leadership Ribbon, and two Unit Presidential ribbons.

During his career in the National Guard, the sergeant has also had the opportunity to travel to the West Coast, Puerto Rico, and Panama.

"The Maryland Army National Guard has been very good to me for may years and has given me the opportunity to help others in many ways while serving my country," he said. "I have been in riots, floods, snow emergencies, and other natural disasters. I would recommend this unit and career to anyone; it has unlimited opportunities to meet anyone's desires."

Garrett Unveils Cutting-Edge Nail Tech Program

Participants are being accepted for a new "Nail Technician Program" that will be offered in the spring at Garrett College's Grantsville Outreach Center.

"As the cosmetology industry has recently moved toward specialization, one of the biggest areas of growth is nail care," a college spokesperson said. "This growth has created the need for, properly trained and licensed nail design technicians."

Proposed as a 250 hour program, the course will cover both practical and theory training in the application of artificial nail enhancements, manicures, and pedicures. Students will learn correct application of wraps, acrylics, and gel products, and also natural nail care for hands and feet. The course will also cover hygiene, technique, and professionalism in the theory outline to prepare the technician for successful employment in a salon environment. In addition, the program will prepare the student to take the State Board of Cosmetology testing in order to become a licensed nail technician in Maryland.

Heise Named Honorary Golden AG Ambassador

by Jo Donaldson
Garrett County Chamber of Commerce

The honorary title of Golden Ambassador was bestowed on Evelyn Heise during the kick-off reception for the 37th annual Autumn Glory Festival last week.

Friends and family attended the dinner with Heise, who was surprised they were able to keep this secret from her.

Born and reared in Terra Alta, W.Va., Evelyn Lamberto married Helmuth Heise and moved to the Will O' the Wisp, which she later managed. As her husband continued to build and expand the business, added the Lodge, the Four Seasons Dining Room and the Wisp Resort Hotel, Evelyn followed to run the enterprises.

She kept the books in the beginning for the Will O' the Wisp and Wisp, and was secretary for the beginning Deep Creek Lake – Garrett County Promotion Council.

Son Martin remembers her making apple pies and chili for the skiers, as well as running the office and dining room at Will O' the Wisp.

"She managed our business operations: the restaurants both at Will O' the Wisp and Wisp, the motel and later the condominium, advertising, marketing, bookkeeping, personnel and much more," he said. For the county, she was a member of the Promotion Council for many years and answered all correspondence about Garrett County. He remembers seeing Promotion Council letterhead in the office along with their stationery.

When asked by his mother if he was proud of her, Martin replied that he had always been proud of her.

"However, it is gratifying to see that others know of mother's work, her value, her contribution, her truth," he said.

The Golden Ambassador award is given each year, as part of the Autumn Glory Festival, to an individual for his or her contributions to the tourism industry of Garrett County.

This is a way of recognizing those who helped make the Autumn Glory festival what it is today, said Chamber of Commerce president Charlie Ross as he introduced last year's recipient, Jeff McCauley.

The Honorary Golden Ambassador is nominated by the general membership of the Chamber of Commerce and selected by the former Golden Ambassadors, who welcome the newest member of their group at the kick-off reception.

In 1985 Tom Butscher became the first Honorary Golden Ambassador because of his efforts in starting the Autumn Glory Festival. Butscher, general chairman of the festival in its early years, was honored in 1985 at the kick-off reception at Silver Tree Inn and by riding in the 18th annual Autumn Glory Festival Grand Feature Parade.

Besides Butscher, Honorary Golden Ambassadors were 1986, R.T. Thayer; 1987, Rev. I. Lynn Beckman; 1988, R. Rudy Jr.; 1989, Helmuth M. Heise; 1990, Dr. Alta E. Schrock; 1991, Ernest J. Gregg Jr.; 1992, Theodore J. Lascaris; 1993, Art Naylor; 1994, Johnny Marple; 1995, Bill Sisler; 1996, Asa M. McCain Jr.; 1997, Edwin S. Walthall; 1998, Jerry Thayer; 1999, Elaine McDonald; 2000, Karen Myers; 2001, Jerry Geisler; 2002, Randy Rodeheaver; and McCauley in 2003.

Zion Lutheran Women Convene

Women of the ELCA, Zion Lutheran Church, Jennings, held their monthly meeting last Friday. The study theme – God's Gracious Economy – was introduced by Leota Baker.

Based on the parable of the workers in the vinyard, the lesson's purpose was to help the group to better understand the Biblical image of the vineyard; to consider how God's economy is not limited to the world's standards; and to reflect one's own reactions to God's gifts.

The session opened with the prayer-hymn "God Is Here" and closed with the reading of the hymn, "Rejoice! Rejoice! The Kingdom Comes."

Judy Stanton presided over the business meeting.

Announcement was made of the fall retreat of the women in the Ohio-Kanawha Valley and Monogahelia Valley-Mountain Clusters to be held at Jackson's Mill near Weston, W.Va., on Oct. 23 and 24. The theme of the retreat is Women of the Bible – Spirit Led.

A bulletin of reports of the 17th annual convention of the West Virginia-Western Maryland Women of the ELCA, held in August, was received from Delores Steege, synodical secretary.

The quarterly offering was sent to the American Bible Society, and a thank-you card was received from the Lutheran Home at Kane, Pa., for the package recently sent by Zion's unit.

Items are being packed for shipment to Our Savior's Lutheran Church, Box Elder, Mont., for its Christmas clothing give-away on the Rocky Boy Indian Reservation. Articles may be left at the church until the first week in November.

It was noted in the last issue of The Lutheran that the pastor of Our Savior's Lutheran Church on the Rocky Boy Indian Reservation, the Rev. Rufina Votaw, died of respiratory failure. Zion's Women of the ELCA remember her for her interesting articles in their newsletter, "Teepee Smoke," and her prompt thank-you letters.

The meeting adjourned with the group praying "The Lord's Prayer." The ingathering of thank offerings will be observed at the November meeting.

Library Unveils "Patron Hold" Internet Service

The Ruth Enlow Library has unveiled its new "patron hold" service, which allows library-card-holding computer users the opportunity to reserve a wide variety of library materials from their home or office via an Internet connection. The new service allows for on-line holds to be placed on all circulating library items, with the exception of magazines and paperback books.

Patrons intending to use the service must first obtain a PIN (Personal Identification Number) to access the system. Individuals who do not yet have a PIN number must first visit any library branch and obtain a PIN number of their own choice from a staff person. The numbers are not available over the phone or by e-mail.

The process for reserving an item online involves just a few easy steps:

•From the library's website at www.relib.net, access the Online Catalog.

•Once a desired item is located, click on that title, then click on the "Hold Request" button.

When the "held" item is available, the library will make a telephone notification and hold the item for 10 days.

While online, patrons can also browse the numerous databases accessible on the REL website, and conduct research from home.

Free bookmarks bearing instructions for online access are available at every REL location. For more information, persons may call the Oakland library at 301-334-3996.

OCTOBER IS BREAST CANCER AWARENESS MONTH – The Garrett County commissioners this week signed a proclamation declaring October as Breast Cancer Awareness Month. According to the Garrett County Health Department, breast cancer is the most common form of cancer in women. In 2004 it is predicted that 41,000 Maryland women will be diagnosed and 760 will die from the disease. Research shows that breast cancer mortality could be reduced by at least 30 percent if women follow recommended breast cancer screening guidelines. "The general well-being and sound health of Maryland women is strengthened and nurtured by a carefully planned regimen of screening for breast cancer due to the valuable life-saving, early detection practices," said Rebecca Parks, coordinator of the GCHD Cancer Screening Program. Pictured, left to right, in the front row are Commissioners Ernie Gregg, Dave Beard, and Fred Holliday. In the second row are breast cancer survivor Donna Orris, McHenry; Parks; Robyn Bowman, clerical support, GCHD; and outreach worker Connie Savage, GCHD Community Health. For more information, persons may call the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7770. Photo courtesy of the Health Department.

In Loving Memory of Richard Alan Lee

April 27, 1966 - October 19, 2001

Loving memories never die as the years pass by so quickly.
Some days are dark and lonely and everything goes wrong.
We seem to hear you whisper
"Cheer up and carry on."
Though your smile is gone forever and your face we cannot touch.
We will never lose the precious memories of the one we loved so much.

USDA Creates Register To Reach Minority Producers

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) has announced that minority farmers and ranchers in Garrett County and across the nation may now join a new voluntary register to receive information about USDA.

"The new Minority Farm Register is an outreach tool to reach underserved farmers and ranchers who are not currently enrolled in USDA loan, farm, or conservation programs," said Michael Kozier, the FSA executive director for Garrett County. "The register will create a shared outreach list that will help USDA, community-based organizations, and minority-serving educational institutions to communicate with minority farmers and ranchers."

By joining the register, minority producers may receive outreach materials, newsletters, and program announcements from USDA agencies. They may also receive information and assistance from other USDA-approved partners, such as community-based organizations, faith-based organizations, and minority-serving educational institutions. USDA will carefully control access to and use of the register, Kozier said.

A pamphlet about the register containing the registration form is available at the Garrett County USDA Service Center. Completed forms are to be mailed to Minority Farm Register USDA Stop Code 0503 1400 Independence Ave SW, Washington, DC 20250. Registration information is also available on the FSA web site located at www.fsa.usda.gov/pas publications/mfr/default.htm.

For more information persons may reach the local office at 301-334-6950.

THE MAGIC OF BUYING A HOME!

You walk into the darkened conference room of a real estate office and see a crystal ball on the table. The agent's hands pass over the sphere. Like magic, it lights up and there, in plain sight, is the home of your dreams!

Time for a reality check! There is no magic to finding your next home. It takes lots of work and time by a dedicated agent to locate just the right home.

Begin by pouring out your heart, sharing every aspect of the home you want – location, style, size, price, and more. This helps the agent begin a comprehensive search among the many available homes, eliminating those that don't match your needs. The result is a great selection from which to choose.

Wait, there's more, it's called feedback. As you look at homes, share your impressions with the agent so that the process of elimination begins.

Continue to narrow the search by making a decision as you visit each home. Compare it with the one just before it, and choose one. When you visit the next home, compare it with your previous choice. This way, you are comparing only two homes at a time.

When you have seen them all, your choice will be clear. There is no magic involved, just a sincere effort by the agent to turn your dreams into reality!

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call at the office, or on my cell phone at 301-501-DALE.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the eighth year, The Republican is asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special corps of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Members of the Civic Club of Oakland will soon be taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $100 per child.

The Civic Club of Oakland is again heading up the volunteer/shopping coordination in the southern part of the county. Betty Ellington and Bobby Andersen are the head coordinators, assisted by several other Civic Club members. For the northern part of the county, Lisa Broadwater will continue her role as the coordinator of shopping at the LaVale Wal-Mart. Many other functions of the program are being handled by Civic Club members, for which the newspaper staff is very grateful.

THE REPUBLICAN with the GWFC Civic Club of Oakland

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Please make your donations before December 3, 2004. Those collected after December 3 will be saved for next year's campaign.

A chronic, non-productive cough can be more than just annoying. The primary function of a cough is to expel irritating secretions from the lungs, which decreases the risk of developing pneumonia. However, the act of coughing itself can also irritate the airway, thus causing a cycle that is hard to stop.

Coughs due to a common cold generally can be treated with over-the-counter medications and drinking plenty of fluids. People with asthma tend to have a dry, non-productive cough that is a result of asthma itself irritating the airways. Appropriate dosing of asthma inhalers or steroid inhalers, used under a doctor's supervision, can help bring an end to an asthma-related cough. Smokers tend to develop a cough that can be dry or productive. Smoking cessation and the use of nicotine addition aids (patch, gum) can lessen or alleviate this complaint. Although under-diagnosed, almost 20% of all chronic coughs are actually caused by gastro-esophageal reflux, or GERD. Taking medications designed to neutralize stomach acid like calcium carbonate antacid or cimetadine can consistently help with GERD-related cough by decreasing irritation to the throat. Nasal decongestants may help alleviate cough due to post-nasal drip.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Although it was wonderful to see my Claire once again, if even only for a few minutes, she had lots of people to see, lots of places to be, and even worked a final shift at Lakeside Creamery for the big ice cream eating contest. She was even part of a wet, unusual, gloomy Autumn Glory weekend. She braved the rain, sleet, and snow to watch her cousin Blakely, Northern High School's Autumn Glory Princess, who shivered on their float in the parade in Oakland on Saturday. It was not a day to wear a sleeveless gown outside.

The Northern High School Band also marched in the parade, got soaked, and then had to participate in the band competition at Southern High School on Saturday evening. They won in their particular category with their highest score this season.

Someone wise said that God didn't give us our children, but he only lent them to us, even that is only part-time. Band competitions are coming up and they have a very busy practice schedule. It seems as if they don't mind it at all, as they want more practice and more work because they want to excel.

Riding on the festival's ambassadors' float were turkey growers from the early 1950s who began the Autumn Turkey Festival, serving turkey dinners and packed lunches for the visitors on the trains coming to Oakland for the fall. Helen Glotfelty, Loretta Opel, Donna Glotfelty, Dorothy Teets, Ruth DiPaolo, and Sam Bowman graced the float, along with our senior lady, 99-year-old Ida Reckner. They rode in a surrey pulled by a beautiful horse. They reported that they also were cold and wet.

Mother Ruth and friend Betty Sacra of Winchester, Va., attended the Autumn Glory Kick-off Reception on Wednesday evening and the various activities on Friday and Saturday. George and Chris Farmer, Baltimore, visited the Glotfeltys and attended the festivities.

I guess we can't get too much rain, as Rock Lodge spring is barely running. It is something I never remember being so low at this time of year. I wish I knew what is wrong; however, maybe it is better not to know. I worry if I don't understand something, but if I know the truth, that is almost worse for me. Sometimes I almost envy the thoughtless people like Alfred E. Newman of Mad magazine, who says, "What, me worry?"

I am almost filled with dread about the dark cold months we are in for soon. Last evening, last night, and this morning I had a glimpse of how life used to be and how it should be now. For what reason I don't know, Caitlin and Meredith's father preferred they stay with me on Monday evening. I rarely have the pleasure of just being a full-time mother anymore. I know that the time for that runs out, but last night I slept better and longer than I have for a long time. It was just nice watching them do their own things, even if it included cranky outbursts or watching unbearable television shows. During my younger days most programs suited pretty much all my family. "Bonanza," "Cheyenne," and the "Wonderful World of Disney" pretty much suited everyone.

Whoever decides to go ahead or not with school activities in the county knew they chose wisely last evening when they postponed the NHS soccer game, for which the band was supposed to perform. It turned out to be a terribly wet evening.

A dreary rain certainly did not prevent me when I was a young rider from riding as long as daylight permitted. Joey didn't mind the rain anymore than I did. When he was jumping in shows, mud did not matter to him.

I am happy to report that Lottie Brenneman returned home from the hospital on Sunday. Her girls have been busy taking care of her, and she seems to be getting along fine after her surgery and long stay in the hospital.

Not on the good side, Don Sealing is back in the Sacred Heart Hospital. He recently returned home from the hospital following surgery. He was rushed back to the hospital Sunday evening following chest pains. He had some more shunts inserted into the heart on Monday. Prayers for his recovery are appreciated.

GOBA To Hold GoblinFest Before Halloween Parade

GOBA (Greater Oakland Business Association) is inviting "goblins" of all ages to the B&O train station before the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club Halloween Parade and Social on Thursday, Oct. 28. Beginning at 4 p.m. and continuing until the parade, there will be old, black and white classic horror films shown on a big screen TV at the train station.

For the first 50 children arriving, there will be pumpkins and gourds for painting.

For more information, persons may call Cherie Ross at 301-616-3026.

Grantsville Fall Festival Slated For October 30

The Grantsville Elementary PTO has announced that its annual Fall Festival will be held at the school on Saturday, Oct. 30, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The public is invited to attend, and children and adults are encouraged to dress in costume for the occasion. Costumes will be judged in three categories.

There will be a 50-cent admission charge for those attending who are not Grantsville Elementary School students. Children age 4 and under will be admitted free.

Planned activities and games include a bake sale, fish pond, golfing, cake walk, radar baseball throw, face painting, limbo, duck pond, dime toss, moon bounce, hay rides, haunted house, bean bag toss, whale slide, and sack race. Tickets will be priced at four for $1.

Refreshments will include hot dogs, sloppy joes, nachos, snow cones, popcorn, and soda.

Raffle tickets are currently on sale for a 50/50 drawing, half a beef, and $1,000 worth of gas.

The PTO leaders noted that they are still in need of volunteers for the festival, as well as donations from area businesses. Middle and high school students may earn service credit hours by helping at the festival.

For more information, persons may contact PTO vice president Becky Thomas at 301-895-4540.

SOUTHERN BAND — STATE CHAMPS! The Southern Garrett Marching Band brought home a state championship this week, defeating eight other marching bands in the 18th annual Maryland State High School Band Championships — Freestate Spectacular XVIII. The event took place on Saturday at Towson University's Johnny Unitas Stadium. An impressive score of 84.05 led to the local group's victory, and three specialty awards were also presented to Southern: Best Drum Major, Best Music, and Best Auxiliary. Under the direction of Richard Clever, the band has won competitions consistently this season. See story for details. They will continue in competition this Saturday at Musselman High School in Bunker Hill, W.Va. Northern Garrett Marching Band fared well in the state contest, too, taking fourth out of nine. Northern will also compete in Bunker Hill this weekend. The photo above was taken at the state event and provided by Kathy Johnson.

GC Schools Make The Grade With New State Results

Garrett County schools scored very well when the Maryland State Department of Education released system and state level results regarding Adequate yearly Progress (AYP) this week. According to Dr. Pat Mullinix, coordinator of research, evaluation, and information, the Garrett County school system achieved AYP, indicating that a significant number of students scored at the proficient and advanced levels in reading and mathematics on the Maryland School Assessment and Alternate Maryland School Assessment.

For 2004, 66.7% of all Garrett County students in the tested group achieved scores at the proficient level in reading, and 59.4% of the students achieved scores at the proficient level in mathematics. As well as the overall populations, in order to meet federal guidelines of No Child Left Behind, students in specified subgroups – including racial/ethnic classifications, students eligible for free or reduced price meals, and student with special needs – must also meet the AYP goals. All of these groups of students in Garrett County successfully met their goals, said Mullinix.

Previously released results from the High School Assessments (HSA), statewide tests which are given at the end of each course in algebra, biology, English, and government, indicate further successes of Garrett

TWO OPINIONS, ONE YARD – Yes, even households are divided this election season, as both of these signs are located in one lawn located along an Oakland street. The division among voters is quite evident this year across the country as the General Election nears. There will be no public school in session next Tuesday, by the way, as the school buildings are used as polling places. At last, next week, voters will finally get the opportunity to have their voices heard. Voting is not just a privilege — it is a duty of all citizens of the United States. Be informed, make wise choices. While political division in the country can be stressful and cause problems, it is yet one more significant sign of the freedom all Americans possess — the freedom to think for oneself, the freedom of democracy, the freedom to argue and debate and opine about the government, the laws, the direction of the country. Exercise your right to vote next week. It does matter. Photo by John McEwen.

Blaze Damages Apartment In Oakland Tuesday

Damages were estimated to be $5,000 after a fire of undetermined origin was discovered in an apartment in Oakland Tuesday morning.

Volunteers from the Oakland, Deer Park, Gorman, Terra Alta, and Deep Creek fire departments were summoned at 11:19 a.m. to respond to a two-story, four-unit apartment building located at 523 East Alder Street. A passerby saw smoke coming from the wood-frame structure and called 911.

Heavy smoke was discovered in a second-floor bedroom of one of the units, and a small fire was quickly extinguished by Oakland firefighters. The unit is occupied by Kimberly Strawser, and the building is owned by Mason Hopkins.

A smoke alarm in the unit activated properly. There were no injuries reported.

The cause of the fire, which may have been electrical in nature, remains under investigation, with deputy state fire marshals Jamie Rodeheaver, R. Chapman, and Bruce Shafer in charge.

Units remained on the scene for about one hour. Also responding was the Southern Rescue Squad.

DCL Property Owners Voice Concerns About Annexations

Nearly 50 residents attended a public hearing this week in the Garrett County commissioners' meeting room on the proposed annexation of their properties into the Deep Creek Lake Sanitary District. The Garrett County Department of Public Utilities wants to provide sewer service to two new areas.

Area I contains properties at the Holy Cross Development site, Blakeslee, Penn Point, Paradise Acres, and Heron Cove. Area II includes lands along Mayhew Inn, Oakland Sang Run, and Bray School roads. The Area II line would eventually serve the southern portion of the lake, including Turkey Neck, Green Glade, and Hazelhurst, noted Mark Tonkovich, director of Public Utilities.

Maps of the proposed annexations are available online at garrettcounty.org/sanitary/index.html.

Tonkovich stressed that the annexations were important in keeping the lake from being contaminated by failing sewer systems.

"Long-term, you're just rolling the dice, unless you fix it and fix it right," he said about the rehabilitation of the entire Deep Creek Lake sewer system. He noted that the county's master plan calls for all lake properties to eventually be connected to the system.

Several persons attending the standing-room-only hearing voiced their opposition about the annexations to the commissioners. The residents noted that they already had working sewer systems and could not afford to pay thousands of dollars for hook-up fees, lines, user rates, and ad valorem taxes if they were required to connect to the public system.

Tonkovich said private developers would bear the cost of right-of-way and construction of a 4-inch pressure sewer line to the Southern Band Captures Group I Title In Maryland Championships

Success in the 2004 field show competition season continued this week for the Southern Garrett Marching Band, as the local student musicians won first place in the 18th annual Maryland State High School Band Championships — Freestate Spectacular XVIII — held at Towson University's Johnny Unitas Stadium on Saturday.

Southern Garrett earned a score of 84.05 to defeat eight other bands in the Group I division. The band also won three specialty awards — Best Drum Major, Best Music, and Best Auxiliary.

Allison Richter, Southern's drum major, was rated second best in the entire competition (16 bands total), finishing just two-tenths of a point behind Allegany High School's drum major.

Southern's color guard not only won the Best Auxiliary specialty trophy for Group I, but earned the highest score among all guards in the competition.

The Northern High School Band placed fourth in Group I with a score of 79.5.

Winning the title in Group II was Annapolis Area Christian, while defending champion Allegany won in Group III and Se-

Public Meeting Set To Discuss Draft Proposals Of DCL Study

The future of the Deep Creek Lake area will be discussed at a public meeting set for 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 8, at the Lodge at Wisp. The Garrett County commissioners, the 10-member citizen's task force they appointed to study future lake development, and staff of Environmental Resource Management (ERM) will be on hand for the session to discuss the consulting firm's work on the Deep Creek Watershed Economic Growth and Planning Analysis.

The task force and the consultant are nearing completion of this growth and planning analysis and have prepared a draft set of recommendations that will form the touchstone for the Nov. 8 discussion. A 41-page ERM document outlining the recommendations is currently available for public review, and persons who intend to participate in the meeting are encouraged to study the recommendations prior to the public meeting.

The draft recommendations, intended to serve as a guide for officials as the lake area continues to develop, can be reviewed on the Garrett County Planning Office web site at www.garrettcounty.org/pandz. Copies of the document can also be obtained from the Planning Office, located on the second floor of the Fourth Street wing of the Garrett County Courthouse.

The draft plan details nine major recommendations to help guide the lake's future, and seven additional recommendations for county officials to consider. In the 41-page document, each recommendation is followed by a specific strategy designed to help meet the stated goal:

The major recommendations are as follows.

•Develop a master land use and development plan for the DCL area.

•Protect the scenic quality of the mountains at

GCCAC To Receive Funds For Counseling

Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. was one of the Maryland agencies to receive part of the $36 million in housing counseling grants that were issued through the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

It is estimated that these grants will assist more than 709,000 people to either become first-time homeowners or remain homeowners after their purchase, according to a HUD spokesperson. These organization will provide counseling services and will help meet the Bush Administration's goal of increasing minority homeownership by 5.5 million families by the end of the decade.

GCCAC will receive $20,596 for comprehensive counseling. Since 1994, the agency's homeownership counseling program has facilitated the first-time home purchase of 164 low-income families.

More than 500 potential homebuyers have completed the homeownership counseling workshops and are in the home-buying process. GCCAC administers a Family Self-Sufficiency program and Individual Development Accounts, and promotes a Section 8 Homeownership Program.

"HUD's Housing Counseling program plays a key role in support of the President's goal," said Alphonso Jackson, HUD secretary. "Under this administration, more families are receiving counseling services than ever before and more families are purchasing and keeping their homes. In addition, this program is also helping more families find the help they need to secure decent and affordable rental housing."

Trooper Risks Life To Rescue Trucker From Burning Tanker

Maryland State Police trooper Troy Wagoner pulled an injured trucker from his burning tanker rig last Thursday, Oct. 21, saving the truck driver's life. Tfc. Wagoner, a member of the MSP detachment based at the McHenry barrack, was in the right place at the right time, as he was following the gasoline tanker truck when it ran off westbound Interstate 68 and crashed shortly after 7 a.m. just west of the Finzel weigh station.

David Kevin Taylor, 44, Jefferson, Pa., who sustained injuries when his truck hit the outside guardrail and burst into flames, was transported by the Frostburg Ambulance Service to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released. Wagoner was also later treated for a minor knee injury and smoke inhalation and released from Cumberland Memorial.

The crash closed westbound I-68 for almost 13 hours while crews from a number of fire departments and state agencies worked to extinguish the fire and clean up the tanker load of gasoline that Taylor had been transporting.

Wagoner told reporters that he was approaching the westbound rig from behind when the truck and its 8,500 gallon cargo drifted out of the right lane. "The truck was traveling at 55 to 60 miles per hour when it began drifting off the right shoulder and up onto the guardrail. There was a little flame and then a large explosion.

"I stopped behind him in the slow lane and there was one huge explosion. I called the barrack for assistance and got my fire extinguisher and began making my way to the tanker through the grassy median. The heat was intense like an open oven on full blast," the trooper said.

"I got up along the passenger side of the cab – it was slightly elevated – the driver was partially out and he was bleeding from the head. I helped carry him away from the scene and there was another explosion. The heat was intense.

"After I got the driver safely away to the side of the road [by a distance of 50 yards], I went back and saw two trucks and another vehicle ride past the burning tanker on the left shoulder. There was another explosion that knocked me to the

Leaf Composting Available At Mellott Farm, GC Landfill

Garrett County Solid Waste & Recycling announced this week that composting is available at the county landfill, located at 3118 Oakland Sang Run Road.

The landfill accepts wet or dry leaves for composting for a fee of $30 per ton or 1½ cents per pound. Leaves – free of rocks, sticks, and brush – must be brought across the scale and weighed before being placed in the compost area. If the leaves are delivered to the landfill in bags (even biodegradable bags), the leaves must be emptied at the compost area and the bags disposed of in the residential trash area.

"Because of state regulations," said a division spokesperson, "leaves are not permitted in the main cell at the landfill, and must therefore be composted. Additionally, leaves cannot be accepted at the refuse and recycling collection."

As an alternative to delivering leaves for composting at the landfill, individuals may take their wet or dry leaves – free of rocks, sticks, and brush – free of charge to the Mellott Farm at 1375 Mellott Road, located off Swallow Falls Road.

"If leaves are delivered to the farm in bags," said the spokesperson, "they must be emptied in an area designated by the Mellott family, and the bags must be disposed of elsewhere."

For additional information, persons may call the Garrett County Solid Waste & Recycling Division at 301-387-0322.

IT'S THE CREEPY TIME OF YEAR, and hardly anywhere is that better evidenced than at the Mitchell Manor home of Jim Crabtree, shown here. And seeing it in the daytime is only half the fun. At night the lighting is spectacular, making a truly ghoulish atmosphere. A ghost flies back and forth in a large picture window, too, sure to help provide some serious willies to anyone watching. Halloween is Sunday, but a number of seasonal events are taking place throughout the weekend. The Kitzmiller Empowerment Group is hosting a haunted house in the town (see Community Youth Calendar). The annual Lions Club Halloween Parade and Social will be held this evening in Oakland, beginning with the parade line-up at 6 p.m. along Center Street. The carnival will be held in the Oakland fire hall, as always. Trick-or-treating will take place in most Garrett County towns on Saturday evening. Check local town halls for times. And have a happy, hair-raising holiday! Photo by John McEwen.

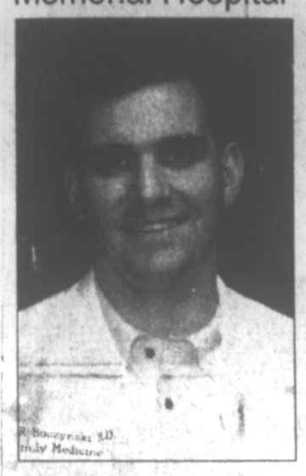
Dr. Ken Buczynski Joins Garrett Co. Memorial Hospital



Garrett County Memorial Hospital this week announced the arrival of Dr. Ken R. Buczynski, who will practice family medicine and obstetrics.

Buczynski completed his undergraduate studies at the University of Virginia, where he was on a full four-year football scholarship. He received his medical degree from Penn State College of Medicine and recently completed his residency training at the Via Christi Regional Medical Center in Wichita, Kan.

During the winter of 2003, Buczynski was moonlighting at a small hospital in Hoisington, Kan. He and his wife Becky were staying in the obstetrics suite since there was no motel in town. As they were watching CNN, a story ran about an area in western Maryland that had received a large amount of snow in a very short time.

Buczynski told his wife, "Becky, we've got to find that place!" Through a series of events, he and his wife began looking at opportunities in Garrett County, and realized this was the area they had seen on television nearly two years earlier.

"To me, medicine is a calling, an expression of my faith. I view medicine as a ministry – taking care of the whole person, the physical, emotional, and spiritual aspects," Buczynski said. "I really have an interest in caring for young working families."

He and wife reside in Oakland with their two children: Caleb, 2, and Sarah, 5 months.

Dr. Buczynski will be sharing office space with Dr. Charles Walch.

Caring, Sharing Event Deemed A "Huge Success"

The Garrett County Day of Caring and Sharing held last Saturday was a "huge success," according to event organizers.

Volunteers organized by the United Way of Garrett County celebrated National Make A Difference Day by performing volunteer work at seven different sites around the community. The day began with volunteers meeting at the Mary Browning Senior Center, where a light breakfast was served compliments · of Oakland Wal-Mart, Perkins Family Restaurant and the Senior Center. The Oakland Oak Leaves 4-H club led the assembly in the pledge to the flag, and United Way chairman Jeannette Fitzwater welcomed the group.

The cold, damp weather did not deter the crew assigned to Mountain Glade Adult Day Care, which had planned outside work including painting, said the spokesperson. Director Joann Harsh adapted by putting the crew to work inside on light maintenance and general cleaning. The crew quickly finished their work and returned to the Mary Browning Senior Center, where they helped clean lights and windows.

The crew that helped with Habitat for Humanity was from Hawkeye Cohesion, a new information technology business with an office in McHenry.

"We had a great crew today," said Habitat board member Bill Riley. "We were able to put the storm doors up and put the finishing touches on the house. It's exciting to see new people involved in our building projects."

Dove Center board member Larry Gnegy was equally excited with the work crew made up of Garrett County Health Department AmeriCorps members. The crew painted doors and windows in the cold. Upon finishing, they took on the project of assembling a shelving unit for the basement of the center. Big Brother Big Sisters used the day to complete their Adopt-a-Highway project.

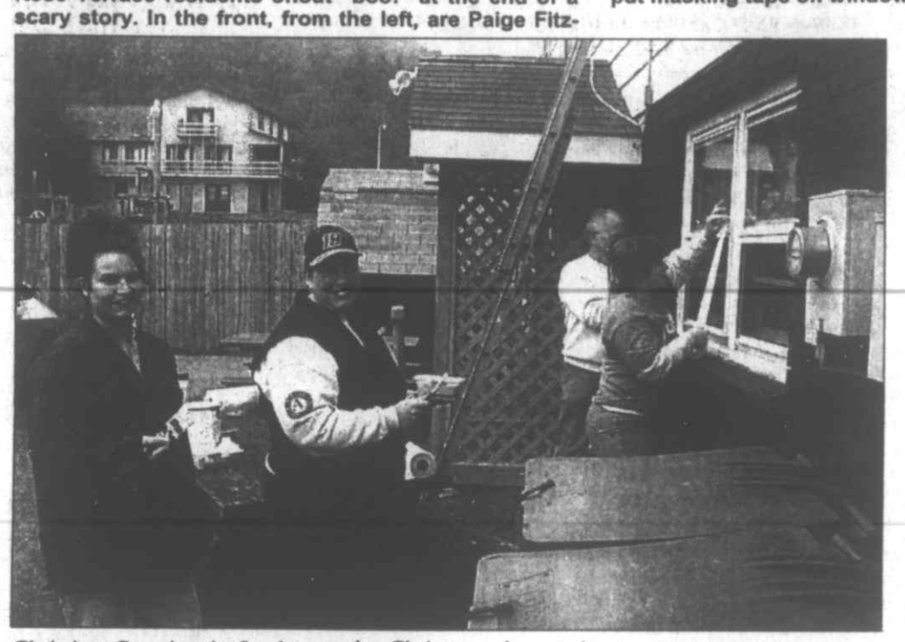
"As a United Way agency we want to give back to the community, and this is one of the ways we do it," said county coordinator Shannon Brode.

Back at Rose Terrace assisted living apartments, the members of the Oakland Oak Leaf 4-H group helped residents with autumn decorations, cookie baking, and pumpkin carving. They also said they enjoyed hearing and telling ghost stories with the residents.

The largest group of volunteers was sent to the Christian Crossing in Loch Lynn, where they joined the regular volunteers in sorting clothing and labeling items. Volunteers helped set up the Christmas shop and also helped in the book store and housewares department.

Upon returning to the Mary Browning Senior Center, the volunteers ate lunch provided by Wisp Mountain Resort and viewed a slide show of pictures from the various sites. All of the volunteers also received commemorative T-shirts courtesy of the major sponsors (Fitzwater Furniture, Proudfoot's Pharmacy, and Rudy's Clothing.)

Bob Stephens, who helped to organize the event, said he was especially pleased. "Even though the weather did not cooperate, everyone had a wonderful time. The best thing about this event is seeing all of the different people involved from around the community. Volunteers are able to help the agencies with volunteer labor while also getting a chance to visit different agencies that make a difference in our community," he said. "Our purpose is to celebrate the volunteer spirit while helping community members see first hand the work of United Way affiliate agencies."



CARING AND SHARING IN THE COUNTY – Volunteers organized by the United Way of Garrett County celebrated National Make A Difference Day last week by performing volunteer work at seven different sites around the community. Four-Wheeler Accident Under Investigation

The accident involving an Oakland man who was injured in an off-road four-wheeler accident Sunday evening is under investigation by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Robert Anthony Lewis, 29, was driving southbound on Underwood Road when for unknown reasons he lost control of the 4x4 and was ejected onto the northbound shoulder of the road, police said.

He was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Oakland firefighters also assisted at the 7 p.m. scene.

In other police news, a loud music complaint in Loch Lynn early Saturday morning resulted in a drug arrest, police said.

Deputies responded to a Lewis Street residence and while knocking on the door, they observed a subject inside the residence toss drug paraphernalia behind a living room couch and observed the same subject hide drug paraphernalia in the kitchen.

Further investigation resulted in the recovery of a quantity of marijuana, and the arrest of Adam Cutter Thompson, 27, Newburg. Thompson was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia.

TWO ACCIDENTS WITHIN A HALF HOUR in Oakland yesterday afternoon sent two people to the hospital, according to Oakland City Police. The first accident, pictured above, sent Loretta Ann Glotfelty, 24, Oakland, and her 5-year-old son to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment. They were stopped in the eastbound lane of Oak Street attempting to turn onto Fourth Street when their van was struck in the rear by a 2001 Kia operated by Nikki Marie Donley, 19, Mtn. Lake Park. Donley was charged with failure to control vehicle speed on a highway to avoid a collision. Approximately 25 minutes later, police responded to another accident on Oak Street. Jennifer Elaine Louhgry, 31, Rowlesburg, W.Va., was traveling eastbound on Oak Street in a 2003 Chevy Avalanche and failed to stop for a traffic light and struck the right front passenger door of a 2004 Subaru operated by Carole Louise Gregg, 67, Oakland. Both refused treatment, according to police. Loughry was charged with failure to stop for a stop light. Southern Rescue Squad and Oakland firefighters responded to both scenes. Photo by John McEwen.

RECOVERING WELL after this frightening scene is a 16-year-old Cove youth who lost control of his car on a rain-soaked curve on Brethren Church Road Saturday as the sedan spun off the road and into a tree. Keenan Kabell, 16, reportedly sustained a broken leg but no life-threatening injuries in the 1:50 p.m. mishap, which occurred about a half-mile south of Accident Bittinger Road. Rescue personnel from the Accident Volunteer Fire Department, the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company, and the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad worked for two hours to free the driver, who was flown to Ruby Memorial Hospital by a HealthNet medevac helicopter. The accident is reportedly still under investigation by Maryland State Police troopers. Photo by Rich Keller.

Chamber's "Our Story" Conference To Take Networking To New Level

Dennis Castleman, chief marketing officer for Maryland, will top the roster of speakers during the "Our Story" strategic thinking conference set for Friday, Nov. 12, at Garrett College. With the theme "Networking to the Action!" the one-day conference will feature leaders in education, politics, and economic analysis who will provide insight into the latest trends in successful marketing and networking.

"This is a chance to recognize the progress of the citizens and business community of Garrett County," said county Chamber of Commerce president Charlie Ross. "It is a great chance to network with Mountain Maryland business leaders."

This year's conference will also feature a ribbon-cutting ceremony at the new Garrett Containers building in Accident, and a ceremonial groundbreaking event for the Adventure Sports whitewater course located on top of Marsh Mountain.

Castleman also serves as assistant secretary for tourism, film, and the arts, and executive director of the Maryland Office of Tourism. His new post of chief marketing officer for the state, which he will hold in addition to the other two, was recommended by the Governor's Commission on Advanced Technology Business, commonly referred to as the Pappas Commission.

In his new role, Castleman will be charged with ensuring that state agencies "convey a unified message and use the Maryland brand on all marketing vehicles," according to the office of Governor Robert Ehrlich.

Castleman joined the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development in July after a career in the hospitality field. After serving as general manager of the Crowne Plaza Washington, a 318-room hotel in the heart of downtown D.C., he held the posts of area director for Meristar Hotels in Philadelphia, general manager of the Churchill Hotel in D.C., and general manager of the Radisson Suite Resort on Sand Key. He has spent much of his career working for the ITT Sheraton Corporation, including hotels in Washington, Savannah, Ga., and Monterey, Calif. In 1991, Castleman moved to Howard County to accept employment at the Sheraton Inner Harbor Hotel, where he has held a number of positions.

The event's luncheon speaker will be University of Maryland provost William W. Destler, a recognized authority on vocational and higher education issues. Jim Rzepkowski, Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development assistant secretary for rural businesses and former delegate for District 32, Anne Arundel County, will also speak, along with management guru Andrew Sherman.

Attorney Patricia Smith of the People's Council of Maryland, and Candace Donohoe, legislative director for the Maryland Municipal League, will speak on "The Economics of Utility Deregulation."

The Our Story conference is coordinated by Garrett County's Chamber of Commerce and Department of Economic Development, as well as Garrett College and several business sponsors. Individuals, organizations, or businesses interested in undertaking a sponsorship, or in registering to attend, may call the chamber office at 301-387-4386 for more details.

MLP Woman Charged After Rt. 135 Crash

A Mtn. Lake Park woman faces charges filed by Maryland State Police troopers who investigated a Saturday afternoon collision on Maryland Highway. She was slightly injured in the 1 p.m. crash near Deer Park Hotel Road.

Martha Ann Martin, 51, was traveling east in a 2003 Ford when she struck another vehicle from behind. The 1990 Buick LeSabre had stopped to make a left turn, according to the MSP, and Martin struck the rear of the Buick.

Martin was transported by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The Buick's driver, Edgar Louis Powell, 80, Oakland, escaped injury.

Martin was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision.

Oakland Man Injured In Dirt Bike Accident

An Oakland man was injured when he wrecked his dirt bike in the gravel while operating it on property just off the Old Morgantown Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Melvin Lee Minnick, 25, was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital for minor scrapes and cuts, police said. No charges were filed.

Red Cross Ready For '04 Holiday House Tours

The Garrett County Chapter of the Red Cross has announced that the 13th annual Home for the Holidays House Tours will be held the first weekend of December. Guests may tour this year's four locations on Friday, Dec. 3, from 4 until 9 p.m., and on Saturday, Dec. 4, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

The four sites for this year's tour are two homes, those of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bello and Roger Sines and Suzie Mattson, and the McHenry United Methodist Church and the new German Village, located at Fantasy Valley, also in the McHenry area.

Persons may purchase tickets to tour the four sites, with all proceeds going to meet the local Red Cross chapter's needs. This is one of the best sources of additional income for the local organization, a spokesperson said.

At the time of the event, directional signs will be placed at intersections to help guests find the locations. Red Cross yard signs will also be placed at the sites. Raffles will be held at each stop for gifts donated by local businesses. Each location will be decorated for the Christmas season.

Tickets for all guests, including children, are $8 in advance and $10 at the "door" (on the days of the tours).

Those taking the tours will be asked to remove their shoes before touring the sites, organizers noted. They will also be asked to refrain from photographing or videotaping in the homes.

Tickets will go on sale at Proudfoot's and Gregg's pharmacies in Oakland, Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek, and the Deep Creek Pharmacy.

For more information, persons may contact Bea Crosco at 301-334-3153. Feature stories on each site will be published in The Republican in the next four issues.

Endorsement — Yes and No...

It has been many years since there has been such a high level of passion demonstrated by both sides in a U.S. presidential campaign, resulting, unfortunately, in a polarization not experienced in this country for a long time. Sadly, for many it has become highly personal. Probably for this reason, we here in our newsroom have never received so many inquiries about whether or not our newspaper intends to make an endorsement.

The best answer to those inquiries is yes...and no. Yes, strictly as an individual, this writer will state his choice. No, this does not mean that we, or that The Republican newspaper, is making an official endorsement. The aforementioned polarization that exists nationwide is also quite pronounced right here in our office. In fact, even the four owners of this paper are split right down the middle in this campaign.

This writer will somewhat reluctantly cast a vote for George Bush, reluctant because there are some characteristics of the sitting president that are unflattering and some of his policies with which there is disagreement. Conversely, there are some characteristics and some proposed policies of John Kerry that are appealing and have merit.

But for this voter, the single issue that has evoked the greatest emotion, the most contention between the two candidates and their supporters, is the war/situation in Iraq — whether or not going there at all was the right or wrong thing to do, and now that we are there, how best to complete the mission and get back out. The president has been blasted, ripped to pieces, by his opponents for sending troops into Iraq in the first place, accusing him of being little more than an arrogant bully who is sacrificing the lives of our troops as pawns in his own personal war.

The following are some quotes — absolutely true, verifiable, exact quotes — that were made by some of the president's staunchest opponents, some of whom have more recently labeled him a liar concerning Iraq.

"If Saddam rejects peace and we have to use force, our purpose is clear. We want to seriously diminish the threat posed by Iraq's weapons of mass destruction program." President Clinton, Feb. 17, 1998.

"We know that he has stored secret supplies of biological and chemical weapons throughout his country." Al Gore, Sept. 23, 2002.

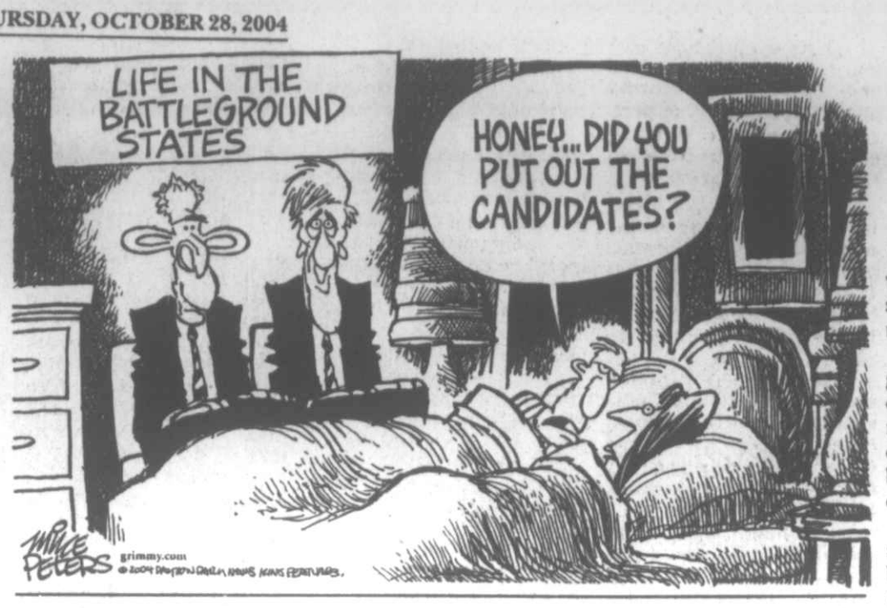
"Iraq's search for weapons of mass destruction has proven impossible to deter and we should assume that it will continue for as long as Saddam is in power." Al Gore, Sept. 23, 2002.

"I will be voting to give the President of the United States the authority to use force — if necessary — to disarm Saddam Hussein because I believe that a deadly arsenal of weapons of mass destruction in his hands is a real and grave threat to our security." Sen. John F. Kerry, Oct. 9, 2002.

"Without question, we need to disarm Saddam Hussein. He is a brutal, murderous dictator, leading an oppressive regime.... He presents a particularly grievous threat because he is so consistently prone to miscalculation.... And now he is miscalculating America's response to his continued deceit and his consistent grasp for weapons of mass destruction. So the threat of Saddam Hussein with weapons of mass destruction is real." Sen. John F. Kerry, Jan. 23, 2003.

For this voter, the security of our nation supersedes every other issue in importance, and in this one, humble opinion, President Bush is the better choice to keep our nation safe.

On the other hand, if Senator Kerry is the winner in Tuesday's election, this voter believes that our nation will certainly not suffer immensely negative consequences, as many of his opponents predict. If he is the winner, then may God bless him, keep him, and guide him as he assumes the highest post in our land as our new commander in chief.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I read in our local paper (The Daily Star in Oneonta, N.Y.) that bear season had opened up in your state, and that it's been 51 years since anyone has been allowed to hunt. As I continued to read, I did a double take and read about a female bear, 84 pounds and 9 months old, being shot at 40 yards. This bear is no bigger than my black Lab.

I would think that Department of Natural Resources would have set guidelines for the opening day and for the rest of the season, but then again, there is no way I would have shot a bear that is no bigger than my dog and brag about it. Yes, I am an avid hunter, and to David Ciekot, 35, of Cambridge, I hope that you don't shoot someone's dog.

To the Editor:

Senator John Kerry features himself as a major league player in American government. His record shows that he has only been a bat boy. Do we want to elect a "bat boy" to defend America and lead us in our continuing economic growth? I think not.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

Can you imagine living in a country where you couldn't vote? You can vote on November 2, 2004. So go vote!

Did you know that in the last election only 4% of 18-25-year-olds voted? That's really sad. There are only 16,274 registered voters in our county. That might seem like a lot, but that's only half of our population.

Also, did you know that in the last election only 27% of Garrett County citizens voted? WOW! That's not good.

Guess what? They have new touch-screen computers to vote on. If you're at college or on a road trip, don't worry, because you can get an absentee ballot.

There are 19 polling places in Garrett County. So there will always be somewhere close so you can vote. I know when I get older I am going to vote.

You can make a difference just by voting. So for more information, call the Election Board at 301-334-6985. Remember to go vote on November 2, 2004.

To the Editor:

When Bush Administration II institutes the draft and Ed Clemons II (October 14 letter to the editor) is sent to Iraq about two years from now, I will be sad to learn he has been sent, and I won't write in to The Republican to say, "I told you so."

But it saddens me to see someone suffer such delusions.

When President Bush the elder said, "Read my lips," in his promise about not raising taxes, what happened?

When President Bush the younger told Nevada citizens before the 2000 elections that he would oppose Yucca Mountain nuclear waste, what happened?

When President Bush the younger claimed before the 2000 elections that he would support continuation of the ban on assault weapons, what happened?

The litany could go on and on, but the point is clear – stock in promises by Bush prior to an election is sadly misplaced.

And Congressman Rangel did not recently introduce his bill calling for the draft – it was introduced prior to the start of the Iraq war as he wanted everyone who voted on the Iraq war to first realize what the long term consequences and natural result from approval of that resolution would incur. Indeed, the Republican-controlled Congress was perfectly happy to let the bill lie fertile, a sleeping giant, until questions started arising about their true motives in refusing to deal with the issue!

Sincerely yours,
Douglas Scott Arey

To the Editor:

I would like to tell the people what the news media and other have not.

On Januray 28, 2004, I, Charles G. "Bud" Railey, filed to run for governor of West Virginia on the Republican ticket for the May 11, 2004, primary election. With a Democratic registration in West Virginia of two to one Republican, I felt a need to stand up where others have not.

For the May 11 Primary Election there were nine other Republicans to file for governor. My platform was the one of the Republican National Committee that few seem to know about.

My two main issues were "right to life" and "right to work."

The Republican Platform: "The unborn child has a fundamental, individual right to life which cannot be infringed.---"

The Republican Platform: "We affirm the right of individuals to participate in labor organizations and to bargain collectively, consistent with state laws. Because that participation should always be voluntary, we support the right of States to enact Right-To-Work laws."

The National Democratic Platform: "The Democratic Party stands behind the right of every woman to choose, consistent with Roe v. Wade, and regardless of ability to pay.

The Democratic National Platform: "We vigorously oppose Republican efforts to pass Right-To-Work legislation.---"

Of the 10 Republican candidates to run for governor, I was the only one who promised to follow the Republican Platform. For those who may not know, the voters elect delegates to the national conventions to design a platform for each party. All have a choice.

I cannot understand why the Republican and Democratic leaders do not make their platforms available to the voters. The schools and the churches could inform the students and the congregations about how our political process works. The news media could do that too.

In my case, the news media chose not to tell about my campaign. Why? I accepted no campaign contributions, hoping the churches would sound the trumpet for the unborn child. It didn't happen.

Sincerely,
Charles G. "Bud" Railey

The Global Village: Impact

by John Ducoli

We indeed live in a global village. Modern communications have enabled us, for example, to follow a swarm of locusts as it makes its way across parts of Saharan Africa, devouring virtually all vegetation in its migration. This news or similar news may elicit a shrug on the grounds that everyone has troubles, that we have national and international agencies to cope with such emergent disasters.

But there are also horrors for which such bodies do not provide solace or surcease from suffering. And these horrors have an impact far from their sources.

Consider the experiences of a middle-aged woman from Beslan, Russia, as told to a reporter of a Russian weekly.

"What arguments?" she asked, referring to the reporter's employer [Arguments and Facts]. "I have facts. Come on in," she said, inviting the reporter into her home.

"Take a look at my beautiful darling... the one I lost. Innochka had just turned 16. I reared her since she was 7, when together we fled the shooting of the first Chechen war [1991-92]. We became as one when hiding in basements in [the town]. I lived all these years to help her forge3t those horrors. It was only when Innochka reached 15 that she began to thaw, again to laugh whole-heartedly, again to love life. For her I undertook preparing tastier food and also herbs so she could sleep soundly at night, so her nocturnal cries would pass. And she kept pleading, 'Granny, buy me a camera. I want to snap your picture.' I put together my few kopeks and when she turned 16 the camera was hers.

"She and the instrument were inseparable and she photographed just about everything, as though she sensed that her days were numbered. And now my swallow lies in the earth, her life extinguished before mine. What is my life without her? I have none. Excuse me; I speak from grief."

The feeling one senses here, and that from a plethora of similar tales, transcends their seeming Dostoyevskian aspect and even enhance the maternal instinct that was energized by 9/11. The question that arises is, how many "soccer moms" have now turned or are turning into "safety moms"? Has this phenomenon a bearing on the American presidential election?

The global village also provides opportunities for learning — learning from other, less moving, experiences. Allusion here, e.g., is the promotion of a flat tax in the U.S., a path its proponents say will simplify a complex and arbitrary tax code. Such a tax is now being leveled in Russia and its advantages and disadvantages are being scrutinized and discussed. A person earning the equivalent of $1,000 a month pays proportionately the same as an individual earning $500,000 a month. The former may rent a house, drive a 10-year-old car, and just stand slightly above the poverty level. The latter, conversely, may own a yacht, and summer and winter homes on various continents.

Wars have a tendency to bring forth the savagery that seems to be instinctive in virtually every human. It is not, ergo, surprising that Russian retaliation on the male and female perpetrators of Beslan was quick and merciless. Virtually all the gassed, unconscious terrorists were dispatched with a gunshot to the head.

Does this vengeance help explain American actions at Abu Ghraib? Or can we attribute such vengeful acts to mankind's past arboreal life when, descending to the earth, homo sapiens had to fight or flee to survive? The retaliatory act appears to have defied moral evolution.

The global village has brought us earthlings closer together in knowledge of one another. But the fulfillment of the second great commandment has millennia to go. This notwithstanding, the global village is promoting mutual understanding among the planet's disparate peoples. Life's vicissitudes are common, almost prosaic.

View from My Window

Mel Gibson and Albrecht Dürer

During Lent of this year I went to see Mel Gibson's The Passion of the Christ twice, first with my son and then with the elder of my daughters. For those forty days and some time thereafter Gibson's Passion was a cultural phenomenon.

There were many surprises for me. One was how evangelical Christians took to this very Catholic depiction of our Lord's last twenty hours before his death. For the nearly five hundred years since the Reformation, the crucifix has been largely forbidden to Protestants. We have been Christians of the empty cross, of Christ risen and coming again.

The vivid portrayal of Christ's suffering on the silver screen reduced busloads of evangelicals to audible sobbing in the movie theatres. That movie may have been the most important ecumenical event since Luther nailed his 95 theses on the Wittenberg Church door in A.D. 1517. Protestants became engaged in Catholic piety as had never-never is a big word-happened before.

Another surprise was the negative reaction within certain circles of Catholic intellectuals. At Catholic University, where I am a doctoral student in philosophy, the dean of the School of Theology, a distinguished Catholic New Testament scholar, took some trouble to make explicitly clear his profound disapproval of Gibson's Passion.

Were I the president of Catholic University, an impoverished academic institution, I would have telephoned the Reverend Dean, and said, "Couldn't you have waited until after we got a donation to condemn the film?"

In fact, I was and remain a Presbyterian pastor, sitting on the sidelines. I just shook my head. How the world had turned! Evangelicals praise an icon of Catholic piety. Catholic scholars, some anyway, condemn it.

Fast forward to the autumn of this year. Now I am in Paris. At the town hall of the Fifth Arrondissement (each of the twenty divisions of Paris has a town hall) there was an exhibition of engravings by Albrecht Dürer (A.D. 1471-1528). Many of the works depicted scenes from Christ's passion.

What I found fascinating is that Dürer's engravings are examples of the piety which Luther and Protestants, in general, rejected. A feature of that piety was the explicit depiction of Christ's suffering.

One consistent comment and, sometimes, criticism I heard about Gibson's Passion was the ten-minute long sequence of Christ being flogged. I reckon, that approximately the percentage of the film given to the flogging corresponds roughly to the percentage of time it took in Christ's last twenty hours.

Over and over Dürer depicts that scene. The muscling of Christ differs. The angle and attitude of his body differs. The architecture differs. The expression on his face differs. What remains the same is the interest in the physical torture which Christ experienced. The message is clear: "Yes, he suffered on the cross, but the cross was the home stretch of his suffering; there was much that went before."

In some of Dürer's engravings, Christ appears stoical, as if he can bear all things. In others, there is anguish in his face as if he is at the breaking point. By exhibiting the scenes side by side, the viewer understands something of Dürer's theological imagination.

Dürer wonders how it actually was on that day when the whip or the cat o' nine tails fell across the back of God the eternal Son in human flesh. These are points on which there is no historical record.

We are told that in the Garden of Gethsemane the sweat ran on his flesh like blood, but other than that, there are few details about Christ's reaction to his suffering. It is interesting too that the one specific, physical description in the gospels is from Christ's anticipation of suffering, rather than of his actual suffering.

In this regard Gibson and Dürer, separated by half a millennium, ask the same questions, and give similar answers. To gain access to the full complexity of Gibson's musing we would have to see the director's cuts. The film as shown in theatres is the fruit of his reflections, but-I imagine-not the only conception he had of those events.

I also wonder if the Dean of Theology at Catholic University, had he lived in A.D. 1520, would have found the same kinds of faults with Dürer's work as he did with Gibson's. What he clearly missed in the spring of A.D. 2004 was that the film, The Passion of the Christ, was the work of an artist trying to conceive visually events around and culminating in our Lord's death.

Gibson and Dürer , in different ages, in different countries, in different cultures, in different media imagined in their art how it was that Christ suffered.

In a sense, profoundly ironic, the good Dean played the role to Gibson's vision that Luther played to the late medieval vision of Christ's suffering. All the while, the offspring of Luther appreciated the work of the Catholic artist.

The world has turned. What remains the same is that the Biblical and theological imagination of artists challenged theologians five hundred years ago, and challenges them today.

rity to the highest bidder, Kerry met at least two times with the Viet Cong's provisional government in 1970 and 1971 in Paris. He was still in uniform in those days. It will soon be documented that Kerry did not receive an honorable discharge from the Navy because of his disloyal action to all America and especially to every soldier who served in Vietnam.

Kerry took the position of the enemy while many of our soldiers were suffering in POW camps. He lied under oath to Congress about the so-called atrocities that he witnessed for his own political gain. He aligned himself with the likes of Jane Fonda, who also supported the enemy against every soldier in Vietnam. Kerry pledged recently to an audience in Colorado that he would hunt down and capture or kill the terrorists before they harm us with the same energy he hunted down the Viet Cong. This big media rhetoric certainly does not enhance his credibility. Kerry's speeches are fixated on Osama, who is either dead or holed up in a bunker for the last several years.

Bush consistently has made the point that the threat to America is real and the battleground is global. When you look at the terrorist attacks on the U.S., Saudi Arabia, Bali, Istanbul, Casablanca, Tunisia, and Spain – four continents in all – the globalness of this war becomes very clear. So does the moral clarity of defining our enemy and separating us from our enemies.

Kerry does not possess the moral clarity to lead this nation.

He and his advisors believe that this war is not a war, but a nuisance, and can be fought in criminal courts. In fact, this is a war on a global level that can only be defeated through military means.

Kerry's speeches call Iraq a diversion, but we have learned from the Duelfer Report that Saddam was using UN's oil-for-food program to bribe officials in France, Germany, Russia, and elsewhere. Iraq was only months away from producing mustard agents and nerve agents, according to a recent column in U.S. News and World Report. Kerry has chosen to ignore all this. Kerry's "global test" would place America's security in the hands of the UN or Europe.

George Bush has a vision and a policy for keeping America safe. Kerry is dangerous for America.

To the Editor:

Whether you intended your last editorial to be pro-Bush or anti-Kerry is immaterial, it came off as anti-Democratic as have most of your recent editorials. You welcomed letters of explanation, which this is not, because you answered your own question. To see Michael Moore's film Fahrenheit 911 you had to drive or walk to your local Cineplex and purchase a ticket. As you also pointed out, the Federal Election Commission has rules governing the public airways.

You reminded your readers a couple of weeks ago that your paper is privately owned and you have the right to express whatever view you want to. I do not disagree with that. Just as the Orlando Sentinel had the right to endorse Senator Kerry, the first Democrat they have endorsed in 40 years.

But enough of past editorials! The article, "The European Vote," by Jeffrey Wilson in last week's paper was very thought provoking. I couldn't agree more with Mr. Wilson's view of this election. Like it or not, the president of the United States is the leader of the free world.

This past Sunday there was an article in the New York Times Magazine by Ron Suskind on George W. Bush. He described a scene that took place in the Oval Office in December 2002. The president was meeting with a few ranking senators and members of the House, both Republicans and Democrats. Tom Lantos, a Democrat from California and the only Holocaust survivor in Congress, suggested that the Swedish Army might be a good choice to lead a small peacekeeping force on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. Sweden has a well-trained force of about 25,000. Bush responded to him saying, "I don't know why you're talking about Sweden; they're the neutral one. They don't have an army." To which Lantos graciously replied, "Mr. President, you may have thought that I said Switzerland. They're the ones that are historically neutral, without an army." Bush did not budge, "No, no, it's Sweden that has no army." The room was silent.

Suskind also reports that when his own cabinet members, Christine Todd Whitman, Colin Powell, and Paul O'Neil, or generals fighting in Iraq request explanations for many of the president's decisions, policies he said that often collide with accepted facts, the president would say he relied on his "gut" or his "instinct" to "guide the ship of state." If you missed Suskind's article you can probably read it online.

Call me old-fashioned, but I believe that the leader of the free world should know who has the armies. I believe he should read the newspaper, and be able to admit mistakes. And from the horrifying headlines from Iraq, I firmly believe it takes more than relying on your "gut" to run the world.

Sincerely,
Susan Bell

To the Editor:

I often wonder how hard-working folks can support Bush and vote against their own interests. New jobs that pay less – mostly part time – no benefits. More people working and owning homes – there are simply more people. Bankruptcies and foreclosures are sky high. More jobs lost – fewer people working longer hours to keep production up. CEO's rewarded because they improve the bottom line by cutting back on the work force. Tax cuts offset by loss of services, tuition hikes, higher cost of health care, etc.

Voting for Bush because of social issues such as abortion, stem-cell research, and gay marriage? You do not understand the importance of this crucial election to your future. Cultural issues are tied to personal values and should be resolved by the best use of our democracy and its ability to address the balanced needs of all of our people in due time.

At this critical time we need a president not aligned with the oil industry or those manufacturing and selling arms. Bush has militarized foreign policy and neglected diplomacy. Why does anyone take pride in being able to beat up on the rest of the world?

We need a president who will return us to the honorable position of world leader based on respect, cooperation, and acknowledgment of the worth of all countries and all peoples.

Think before you vote; become fully aware of the importance of your action – your future. On George Bush's watch, America is becoming marginalized in the world community because of the deficit he has created by cutting taxes at a time of war. Deficits must be financed by the sale of treasury bonds to foreign investors – Japan and China lead the list. Net purchases have dropped as the European Union and South American countries feel more and more independent and less aligned with our policies. This means interest rates on bonds will have to rise to keep foreigners buying. The American consumers, already burdened with debt, therefore will also face higher interest rates. Our economy will suffer as consumer spending goes down. History shows what happens if countries lose confidence and call in their debt. Note the former British Empire.

We need John Kerry – his "pay as you go" economic responsibility, his compassion for the troops and all those who suffer and die, his respect for diplomacy, his concern and hope for our country.

Sincerely,
Cynthia Knight

To the Editor:

In this election season, people on both sides have put up yard signs for their favorite candidates. Regrettably, some other people have torn some yard signs down.

I definitely can speak for the Republicans, and I am quite confident that I represent the position of leading Democratic officials as well, in saying that it is just plain wrong to tear down the other guy's signs.

Beyond the fact that this action constitutes vandalism, subject to possible prosecution, it is really childish. We think it's a prank by kids wishing to start a battle between the two parties. We won't take that bait, and we won't have anything to do with this. I have clearly told my campaign workers to suppress any inclination along this line among our people.

One of the great privileges of living in America is that we can put up yard signs, express our preferences, and campaign for candidates without interference. As divided as the country may be at election time, still the very fact of an election should be an occasion to celebrate what America means to the whole world. The sight of opposing yard signs is an indication of the strength of American principles, and should remind us that there are plenty of countries where that can't happen. There is a very valuable civics lesson on display along our roads during these few weeks.

If your yard sign has been stolen, don't retaliate! Come to our headquarters in Oakland and we'll give you a replacement. Respecting the opponent, while still striving to beat him, is the right way to campaign in America.

To the Editor:

I have worked in the data processing industry for almost 30 years, and I am writing to make everyone aware of some of the issues surrounding the electronic voting machines that we will be using next week.

I am a long-time subscriber to ComputerWorld, a well-respected journal of the industry. They published a carefully balanced analysis of voting machines in their October 18th edition. I will briefly summarize the main points.

Almost all of the machines in the U.S. are made by the same company, Diebold – the same folks who make ATMs. According to Johns Hopkins Professor Aviel Rubin, the software in these machines was not tested to even the minimum standards required by banks. Another software expert calls the code "amateurish." Still another industry expert points out that the Diebold code was not tested under actual conditions. Finally, a private company that examined Maryland's March primary pointed out that the Diebold programs suffered from "a general lack of security awareness."

Maryland elections official Linda Lamone says that the criticisms are meaningless because the critics didn't test the voting machines "in a polling-place environment" under actual conditions. However, she doesn't admit that neither Diebold nor the elections commission ever did so either! The approach seems to be to "test" the machines by actually using them on a real election – a scary thought with so much at stake.

I can't say whether there is a real potential for someone falsifying the results of this election. However, the mere possibility is enough to generate real concerns. The fact is, no matter how carefully worded the official statements may be, these machines will be tested for the first time in a real election. Given all the predictions that this presidential contest will be very close, I am honestly worried about the potential for fraud. I'm even more worried about the potential for endless lawsuits contesting the election because of these machines.

As a person who is fairly knowledgeable about computers, I am shocked that the Diebold systems are being used without adequate quality controls and rigorous testing.

At the very least, every voter should look carefully at the "Summary Page" (Step 4 in the voting procedure) and make sure that the screen says whatever the voter's choices are. We can only hope that the machine will work correctly, that no one will tamper with the results, and that the vote can be communicated correctly to the election board.

To the Editor:

President Bush has been justly criticized for oversimplifying complex issues for political gain. This strategy was repeated by three Bush supporters in letters published in last week's issue of The Republican. Due to space limitations I will limit my comments to one of those letters.

Mr. Haddox claims that Democrats are more likely to endorse conscription because a House Democrat introduced a bill to reinstate the draft. He then lauds House Republicans for defeating the bill in a recent vote. What he doesn't mention is that the bill was voted down 402-2, clearly indicating that its defeat was bipartisan. The bill in question, S.89 (along with companion bill H.R. 163), was introduced by Rep. Charles Rangel (D-NY) in January of 2003. Rep. Rangel's purpose for crafting this legislation was twofold: to signal his opposition to the impending war with Iraq and to provide assurance that fighting forces would not disproportionately consist of economically underprivileged citizens. The bill never received support.

Senator Kerry has stated that he believes a draft is more likely under the Bush Administration because Bush has proven to be incapable of devising an effective exit strategy for Iraq. I will take Kerry's argument one step further. In their book America Alone: The Neo-Conservatives and the Global Order, respected conservative foreign policy experts Stefen Halper and Jonathan Clarke criticize Bush and the neo-conservatives in his cabinet (Cheney, Rumsfeld, et al.) for endorsing the preemptive war with Iraq as a required step in gaining greater U.S. control over the Middle East. This predilection for exerting influence by force makes our country ripe for more warfare.

A recent Pew Research poll showed that 51% of Americans are concerned that under Bush we will go to war with another country. Quite possibly in the next four years we will have little recourse but to enter into combat with Iran, a country that, unlike Iraq, poses a legitimate threat to our nation's security. With the U.S. already strapped for troops in Iraq, and with a continued presence needed there, a draft may be needed to ensure that we have adequate armed forces. I believe that Kerry has a better plan for stabilizing the chaotic situation in Iraq and quickly reducing the number of troops needed there. I also believe he can work more effectively with foreign governments – friend and foe – to stave off future wars.

To the Editor:

President Bush is trying to con the American people into believing that he is the only one who can fight and win the war on terrorism. He is wrong, and he is wrong about many other things. Things such as why he declared war on Iraq. The inspectors could not find any trace of weapons of mass destruction in Iraq, and yet President Bush plunged us into a war there, a war which seems to have "no end." A war which has caused the U.S. to spend billions of our hard-earned money, a debt our grandchildren must repay. Pay for what? So Iraq can become a democratic country? Thousands of our troops have given their blood and many have given their lives for this?

President Bush claims he will defeat terrorism. That's why our troops are there, he says. Boo! The other day Vice President Cheney spoke to a group here in Philadelphia. He said, "President Bush will prevent the terrorist from stepping in your front door." That is spreading fear to our people, something we do not need! We need a president who can bring back the spirit which presidents Kennedy and F.D. Roosevelt gave to our nation. The spirit to be brave and secure! The spirit to be strong! A nation to be proud and friendly with all foreign countries, such as France, England, Russia, China, and more!

SMS SUPPORTS RED RIBBON WEEK – Students at Southern Middle School supported National Red Ribbon Week this week by participating in various activities, including decorating classroom doors with anti-drug messages. Pictured above is the first place winner: Steve Savage's third period sixth grade science class. The class won a pizza party. Second place was awarded to Jackie Mousch's seventh grade homeroom, and third place went to Dianne Avona's eighth grade homeroom. Each of these rooms will receive Yo Cookies. The week's events were sponsored by the Student Council, and were under the direction of Nancy Pagenhardt. On other days of the week, students wore mismatched clothes and crazy socks, carried a stuffed animal, and wore sporting attire. New this year is an opportunity for students to receive SMS Bucks. When a student is seen by a teacher displaying one of the four R's: responsibility, ready to learn, respect, and rethinking, he/she may be awarded a "buck." These bucks can be used to purchase Southern Rams hats and visors and pins to wear on them. Students who purchased a hat or visor will be allowed to wear them this Friday.

"You can count on me to fight our enemies," boasted President Bush, who actually did not fight those enemies when they happened to be in Vietnam. At this particular time, Mr. Bush was playing "hooky" with the draft board so he would not have to go to Vietnam. I ask you, was this bravery or cheating? Cheney said he had "other commitments" at this time.

President John F. Kennedy, his brother, and his sister were deeply involved in World War II. His brother and sister gave their lives in line of duty. President Kennedy got a serious back injury during his term of duty. Our president should be brave and true, and unite instead of divide our country. The Roosevelts and the Kennedys united our great country and made other countries realize we are the greatest country on earth. Our country now is a divided country. That's why, Mr. and Mrs. America, we need a change! I am changing from a Republican to a Democrat.

To the Editor:

John Kerry received the Silver Star, Bronze Star, and three Purple Hearts for serving in Vietnam. When he returned home he spoke out in opposition of the war, as many others who served there did.

Senator McCain, a Vietnam veteran POW for about seven years, has criticized the Swift Boat ads and asked for their removal. Members of Senator Kerry's boat deny accusations made in the ads.

By contrast, let us look at President Bush and Dick Cheney's record during the Vietnam War. President Bush joined the Air National Guard to escape being drafted and failed to report for duty in Alabama. Vice President Cheney received five deferments and has stated that he had "other priorities" during the Vietnam War.

The reason for beginning the Iraq war was that of "weapons of mass destruction." The inspectors proved that theory to be incorrect before President Bush declared war there.

There has been "no mission accomplished." President Bush looked good and stated, "The war is over," when he stood on the deck of the Abraham Lincoln. You know and everyone knows, this remark was untrue; the war had just begun! Since that remark, many hundreds of our boys' lives have been taken and many hundreds more have had serious injuries. For what, I ask you? The soldiers there, whom I write to say the same, "no end in sight!"

In addition, the present administration inherited a budget surplus, which in four years has resulted in the largest deficit in American history and continues to grow! The substantial tax reduction has gone mostly to those who earn $200,000 yearly, or earn more than that figure.

Medicare has gone up 17%...on and on.

President Bush disallows the parents to come to the location where their sons' remains are unloaded at the end of "the Bush War"! Why? Make him look bad!

So many times I have read that people who know say, "We desperately need a change!" We need it now!

Sincerely,
John Williams

Marine Corps Lance Cpl. William A. Fultz and the marines and sailors of the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU) and Iraqi Security Forces (IFS) recently captured four suspected anti-Iraqi militants in Northern Babil province.

The corporal is the son of Carol and Ralph Fultz, Mt. Storm, and is a 2000 graduate of Union High School. He joined the Marine Corps in February 2000.

Fultz's unit also provided assistance from the MEU's Force Reconnaissance platoon to Iraqi Special Weapons and Tactics members, as well as Iraqi national guardsmen, to help capture a former Baath Party leader and apprehend two men suspected of firing on marines.

Since assuming operational control of Northern Babil on July 29, Fultz's unit has worked closely with ISF to disrupt criminal and other anti-Iraqi activity in the area. To date, they have captured more than 160 individuals throughout the province, according to the Department of the Navy.

"Their mission is to assist Iraqi authorities in fostering security and stability for the nearly 900,000 citizens of the province," said a Navy spokesperson.

MEUs are a marine air ground task force. With a strength of about 2,200 personnel, the MEU consists of a command element, a reinforced infantry battalion, a composite helicopter squadron, and MEU service support group.

New 300-Bed Residence Hall Slated For PSC

The West Virginia Higher Education Policy Commission has approved a $230 million bonding package proposal from West Virginia University that includes $12.5 million for the construction of a 300-bed facility on the campus of Potomac State College in Keyser.

The new housing at PSC will allow for the replacement of two existing residence halls, and will facilitate the continuation of enrollment growth, according to a college spokesperson.

Potomac State's enrollment jumped in fall 2001 with a 13 percent increase, earning the institution the highest percentage increase throughout the state's higher education system in the 2001-02 academic year. Then, in fall 2002, enrollment increased another four percent, bringing the total to 1,308 students, the first time enrollment had exceeded 1,300 since 1990.

In 2003, the college experienced its highest enrollment in history with 1,330 students, another nearly 2 percent increase over the previous year. In 2004, the college has maintained its 2003 enrollment. In three of the past four years, the residence halls were filled to over 100 percent capacity.

The proposed facility will include suite-, double suite-, and private-type rooms, a community center that includes a cafeteria to support dining and catering, a fitness center, theater/classroom, student mailboxes, centralized laundry facilities, and residence life offices. The hall is projected to be ready for occupancy no later than fall 2007.

NMS RAISES FUNDS IN MEMORY OF DONNA CARR – Northern Middle School recently participated in a service learning project that was planned and organized by the students. Eighth grade health classes chose to hold a walk-a-thon for the Donna Carr Memorial Fund to be used for a concession stand being built on the baseball field at Northern High School. Twenty students collected pledges and walked the loop around Hickory for three hours to fulfill their service learning requirement for health class. Students chose this project in memory of Donna Carr, who was a classroom assistant at Northern High School. Members of the class remembered her as being very active with the high school football and baseball teams. She was also active in the Deep Creek VFC Ladies Auxiliary. Two local businesses that donated prizes and supplies for the walk were Hill Top Fruit Market, Grantsville, and Hartman's Amoco, Accident. The top pledge earners were Cecalie Georg and Rachel Margroff. A total of $852.25 was presented to Ed Carr before the Northern Huskies homecoming game last week. "Thanks to all walkers, parents, businesses and individuals who donated money for this worthy cause," said a spokesperson. Linda Wengerd, NMS health teacher, praised participants. "This class worked well together planning and organizing this project. The group did an outstanding job. Well done, Northern Middle School," she said. Students participating were Hannah Sines, Patrick Terry, Caitlin Spear, Josh Maust, Claire Vallano, Karina Walker, Rachel Margroff, Elizabeth Walker, Travis McFarland, Blair Crisson, Cecalie Georg, Aaron Warnick, Chad Friend, Troy Hall, Wil Herpel, Ed Herpel, Kelsey Jones, Julia Miller, Garrett Otto, Charlene Beiler, Dane Beitzel, and Kara Savage. The Arts

DON'T BELIEVE A WORD FROM THESE FOLKS, except when they say they helped raise funds for the American Association of University Women (AAUW) scholarship fund at Garrett College by taking part in the recent Autumn Glory Tall Tale Storytelling and Book Festival. Among the participants in the annual event were, in the front row from the left, Jim Beeman, Jeannie Whitehair, Katie Ross, Bill Watkins, and Otto Ross. In the back row are Fanny Crawford and Howard Payne. The event took place at St. Paul's United Methodist Church.

Tall Tales And Liars Who Tell Them Turn AG Fest Into Sure Spin Zone

Tale Tale coordinator

Cars might have radios and CD players to listen to, but Autumn Glory has the Tall Tale Storytelling and Book Festival, which took place the morning of the Autumn Glory Parade. Audience members had a nice, dry, warm place to listen to the stories at St. Paul's United Methodist Church fellowship hall before walking a block in the rain to see the parade and its brave, drenched marching bands.

Some of the tales came from Europe, while others from the Appalachians as tellers embellished their mountain lives with lumbering, farming, and mining experiences. Other stories came from real-life events of occupations on the C&O Canal and the B&O Railroad. Many other original and some true stories were shared.

Proceeds generated by the event help fund a Garrett Branch of the American Association of University Women scholarship for a Garrett College student. Prizes were donated by area businesses and the AAUW, and the judges were St. Paul's administrator Patti Getchell and Dennett Road Elementary School teacher Dan Taylor. Several AAUW volunteers assisted with the book sale.

Jeanne Whitehair of Eglon, W.Va., told an original story about "The Freeze Monster" who protects the forests, which she wrote with her grandchildren. She won a first place prize of a whitewater rafting trip donated by the Garrett College Adventure Sports Program.

Howard Payne of Ijamsville and Garrett County won second place and was noted as Most Humorous with his rendition of "Casey Jones and the Squid." He won a gift of two movie tickets to the Garrett 8 Cinemas and a gift certificate to Marvin's Men's Wear.

Jack Slocomb of Grantsville took third place for his original story of "Paul Bunyan and the Black Duck Dinner," which was filled with exaggerations. Slocomb won Christmas house decorations from Naylor's Hardware.

Katie Ross of Rawlings won the prizes for the Best Movements and Best Voices for her C&O Canal story, "Haunted House Bend." She won a Deep Creek Lake sweatshirt and an Uno Restaurant gift certificate. Ross is one of five finalists for the 2004 Storyteller of the Year Award sponsored by the Creative Arts Institute.

Hagerstown resident Fanny Crawford won the prize for the Most Original "Too-True" story titled "Frog in My Brother's Throat!" She received a Deep Creek sweatshirt from Tee Wee's Trading Post.

Jim Beeman of Barton was awarded the Most Entertaining and Best Audience Response prizes after he brought down the house by singing the story of "The Fur Coat" by Mike Snyder. The story-song is about a man who couldn't afford to buy his wife a nice coat until a dog helped him out. Beeman won a bouquet of flowers from Jan Florist and a book of stories from the Book Mark'et.

Dr. William "Doc" Savage told two creative humorous stories in his relaxed Professional Tall Tale category, and earned a prize of outdoor Christmas decorations from Naylor's Hardware.

Pikesville resident Bill Watkins told a true story about his "Old Aunt Alice: A Disgrace or a Real Cool Lady?" The tale earned the prize for the Best Characters, and the teller was presented with a book from the Book Mark'et in Oakland.

Otto Ross, a musician and music teacher, entertained the audience with banjo music, and received outdoor decorations from Naylor's Hardware.

The 2005 Autumn Glory Festival Tall Tale competition will take place the morning of next year's AGF parade. Once again, the event will benefit the AAUW's Garrett College scholarship fund.

Tickets are available for $12 a person. The menu consists of soups, rolls, corn muffins, apple sauce, cole slaw, brownies, and cookies all served from the "soup kitchen of 1899." The play is centered on the street children in New York City at the turn of the 20th century. The children were adopted by families in the Midwest. This true story is a musical in the fashion of Oliver Twist. Pictured above in the front is Olivia Gaither. Across the stage, from the left, are Kelsey Skipper, Derek Getson, Holly Weissgerber, Kamrin Weimer, Coy Ozias, Carlee Andrews, Patricia Sherrard, Rebecca Wilkes, and Camden Nichols. Also participating in the performance are Maria Lewis, Lara Schad, Lindsay Crabtree, Megan Fitzwater, Meredith Pagenhardt, Holly Logdson, Sara Jones, Royce Warnick, and Nick Crabtree.

Hermans Set To Teach Ballroom Dancing Classes

Dr. Steve Herman, president of Garrett College, and his wife Gail Herman will be teaching ballroom dancing at the Balanced Body Studio located next to Foodland Fresh in Market Square starting Nov. 12.

Mrs. Herman travels extensively teaching Movement in Curriculum to schools, and both she and her husband, after moving here 18 years ago, have kept their interest in teaching ballroom dancing. They both have taught ballroom dancing previously in both Eastford and Woodstock, Conn., and said they are excited about introducing it to the community to both beginners and seasoned dancers.

Couples and singles are both welcome to join the classes, and there will be a variety of dance forms presented and taught, including everything from the waltz and jitterbug to the tango and the rhumba.

For more information call, persons may call the Balanced Body Studio at 301-387-7585.

FSU TO PRESENT THE INVISIBLE MAN – The Frostburg State University Cultural Events Series will present the Aquila Theatre Company's The Invisible Man on Sunday, Nov. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the FSU Performing Arts Drama Theatre. This classic by H.G. Wells, often considered the father of modern science fiction, has been adapted for the stage by Peter Meineck and is directed by Robert Richmond. Set in Victorian England, the play tells the story of a young scientist named Griffin who is obsessed with the notion of invisibility. He sets out on a quest to put his radical theories into practice, eventually rendering himself completely invisible. But science goes too far and the invisibility proves more a curse then a blessing. This engagement of Aquila Theatre Company of London is a Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation Tour, funded by the foundation in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts Regional Touring Program. The show will include a 6:30 p.m. pre-performance discussion with Aquila Theatre personnel detailing the challenges of adapting the novel into a stage piece. For ticket information, persons may call the FSU box office at 301-687-3137 or 1-866-TIXX-CES, or visit online at ces.frostburg.edu.

Student Tall Tale Tellers Follow In Crooked Footsteps Of Elders

Tall Tale Coordinator

Dark clouds might have dropped rain on the Autumn Glory Parade this year, but the light was shining brightly on the student storytellers at the 2004 Tall Tale Festival at St. Paul's United Methodist fellowship hall. The tellers received rave reviews from audience members, who were delighted to be entertained by the wonderful array of stories – and who were also thankful to be inside, dry and out of the drizzling rain.

For the Best Original Story and Best Telling, Jennifer Cuppett of Pat Foley's third grade at Dennett Road School won the first-place prize of a $50 savings bond donated by First United Bank. Jennifer not only wrote "The Hip Hop Bunny" herself, but she created movements and voices for all the characters, including the Dancing Bunny and the President of the United States!

Emily Huxford won the second prize for the Best Performance with her costume, props, and her version of the old camp story "Wishy-Washy." Emily won a large snack gift basket from Green Acres. She said she planned to share it with her friend Kristen Yant, who helped with the telling.

Kristen also won the third prize for the Best Plot with her original story, "Burp."

Broad Ford Elementary School fourth graders Samuel Thomas and Austin Eyler took the Best Character prize with their poetic version of "Pecos Bill – The Best in the West." They boys' story featured coordinated movements, lassos, and cowboy outfits.

Tyler Artice and Rachel Huxford won the prize for the Best Audience Participation. Their story "Welcome to Garrett County" was written by every member of Jackie Stuck's third grade class at Broad Ford School during a visit by Tall Tales Festival coordinator Dr. Gail Herman.

Jackie Chapman, Grace Hoffman, and Kelsey Eichorn told their class's story about "Moving." Kim Weimer's Broad Ford School class studied different types of homes, and Herman helped the students write a tall tale about moving into various structures.

Morgan Sanders and Julie LaRue of Pat Foley's Dennett Road class won the prize for the Best Movements for Morgan's story, "The Amazing Dog," which audience members agreed was truly a "super dog."

Broad Ford third grader Jillian Yant was named Most Poised for her original, well crafted, and imaginative story, "The Gerfil."

Fifth grader Catherine Baker told the story of Davy Crockett, which earned Best Historical Story honors.

Brother and sister tandem teller team Sara and Samuel Jones told their true and humorous story, "The Tale of the Chicken," about their vacation to more than two cities.

Dennett Road School student Taylor Kisselovich created "The Cat and the SuperPowered Kittens," which won the prize for Most Exaggerated Tall Tale.

Evelyn McGehee told a story about the "Dumpster Dog" and won the prize for Best Voices.

Zach Shreve from Yough Glades told a hunting tale, which was awarded the Most Adventurous Story prize.

Alicia Roth told "The Scarecrow and the Creature."

Fifth grade twins Erin and Kristen Layton each told their own original stories.

Proceeds from the student and adult Tall Tale Festival benefited the Association of American University Women Scholarship at Garrett College. Prizes were donated by First United, the Garrett College Adventure-Sports Institute, Naylor's, Jan Florist, Farmer's Market, the Book Mark'et, CVS, Green Acres Garden Center, Marvin's Men's Wear, Uno Restaurant, Garrett 8 Cinemas, Haley Farm Bed and Breakfast, Arrowhead Market, and Mark IV Office Supply.

Spruce Forest Slates Three New Artist Workshops

Spruce Forest Artisan Village, Grantsville, will host three more workshops by area artists this fall. They will include one-day classes in pysanky, paper quilling, and slate painting.

Susan Helbig will offer a pysanky egg dying workshop this Saturday, Oct. 30. Pysanky is the intricate art of dying decorative eggs. Originating in the Ukraine, traditional pysanky designs reference myths and stories from eastern Europe.

Helbig will provide examples of traditional and contemporary pysanky. Students will learn to apply wax designs to real egg shells, dye the eggs, and finally finish their ornament with a device for hanging in a window or on the Christmas tree.

For more information, persons may call Susan at 301-387-6720.

Esther Kinney will facilitate a paper quilling project on Saturday, Nov. 6, for students interested in the art of decorative paper.

Quilling is used for jewelry and ornamentation, and students will learn various techniques and take home finished pieces. For more information about this workshop, persons may call Esther at 814-634-9956.

On Saturday, Nov. 20, Peggy Nixon will offer a step-by-step slate painting class that will introduce students to the materials and methods she uses in her own studio. Nixon collects old roofing slate, then primes and paints it with woodland scenes, animals, and other custom designs.

During this workshop, students will paint a decorative slate with a theme for the winter season. Questions may be directed to Nixon at 301-895-3332.

All workshops will take place at Spruce Forest Artisan Village at Penn Alps. For information about the various crafts, persons should contact the teacher directly.

To register for a class, persons should call 301-895-3332.

Huskies Pounce On Pendleton With Five Second-Half Scores

Five unanswered second-half touchdowns, four of which came during a 10-minute span of the third quarter, boosted the Northern High School varsity football squad over visiting Pendleton County Friday for a 51-14 homecoming game victory. The scoring flurry was credited in large part to the Huskies' halftime "chalk-talk," but as Northern head coach Phil Carr observed, "We can talk all we want, but it's the kids who have to step up and get the job done – and they did."

As a measure of the success of the locker room education and exhortation, one can look to the NHS offense, which roared back after only four first-half possessions and two touchdowns to put 37 points on the board. Similarly, Northern's "Grave Digger" defense brought out the heavy equipment as the Huskies turned Pendleton's highly successful first-half 11-for-15, 150-yard passing attack into a meager 4-for-18, 55-yard second-half tally.

"We told the kids their early execution was not good all around, and challenged some of our blockers to step it up," said Carr. "On defense, Coach Ewing and the players worked up schemes to put more pressure on the Pendleton quarterback, and they moved our linebacker Tyler Warn outside to the flat to jam the Wildcats' top receiver, who had been hurting us throughout the first half.

"Everything fell together from then on, and that's a really good feeling to be able to ask the guys to up their efforts and have it pay off."

Pendleton opened the night's scoring by taking the opening kickoff and embarking on a drive that running back J.T. Pope capped with a nine-yard touchdown carry. Justin Dahmer kicked the extra point.

Northern needed only three minutes to respond, as a Husky drive ended when halfback Michael Wolf found the end zone from five yards out. NHS failed to score on the two-point conversion attempt, and was left on the short end of a 7-6 deficit as the first quarter ended.

Northern's defense presented the Huskies with a scoring opportunity early in the second quarter, when defensive end Jeremiah Wilt hit Pendleton quarterback Thomas Ruddle from behind, causing a fumble that fellow NHS lineman Corey Yoder recovered inside the Wildcat 30. The Huskies drove the ball down to the Wildcats' five-yard line, where Robert Stark reeled off an option keeper to carry the ball across the goal line. Fullback Warn scored on the two-point conversion run.

Pendleton knotted the score with 2:35 remaining in the half on a five-yard scoring pass from Ruddle to his favorite target, John Harper. Dahmer hit his second PAT kick to send the teams into the half tied at 14-all.

The third quarter was all Northern, as the Huskies turned the homecoming festivities into one big celebration by passing out touchdowns like party favors. After less than 12 minutes, NHS put 30 points on the board and 235 yards in the rushing column.

Just 1½ minutes after Northern received the half's opening kickoff, senior field general Stark scampered 57 yards on a TD keeper. At the 5:53 mark, senior running back Eric Johnson scored on a five-yard carry, and followed with a successful conversion run to give the hosts a 29-14 advantage. Wolf got into the act two minutes later with his second touchdown of the night on a 16-yard run, and Stark scored on the subsequent conversion run. Just another two minutes elapsed before Warn rumbled 25 yards for a score, and Johnson's conversion carry gave the Huskies an insurmountable 43-15 lead.

Midway through the fourth quarter, sophomore Corey Carr scored on a 30-yard carry, and kicked the point-after to make the score 51-14, where it stood after the smoke cleared from the game-ending gun.

Northern amassed 488 rushing yards over the course of the outing, with Wolf and Warn netting over 100 yards apiece. On defense, Wilt and Corey Carr turned in eight tackles apiece, and Yoder and Eric Johnson both pounced on Wildcat fumbles.

The Huskies hope to feast on Wildcat again tomorrow when they visit Westmar's 'Cats in the tough Lonaconing atmosphere. Westmar (1-7) is coming off a 15-14 loss in a defensive struggle at Turkeyfoot last week.

Northern is preparing for the main weapon of the Wildcats' shotgun offense, senior quarterback Russell Miller (6-3, 190), a big, mobile threat who can do damage with his arm and his legs. The three-year starter is joined in the backfield by two sophomores, halfback Justin Keller (5-9, 195) and slot back Caleb Smith (5-10, 180).

Westmar's defense will likely line up in a 5-3 formation, and the Huskies expect the hosts to throw a lot of blitzes at them. Keller and Smith are the 'Cats top linebackers, and Miller, who had two interceptions against Turkeyfoot, anchors the secondary at strong safety. "We're going to see how our running game goes, but we'll also go to the air to keep them honest," stated Carr.

Northern fans planning on making the trip down the mountain should note that Lonaconing's annual downtown Halloween Parade is slated for 6 p.m. tomorrow, which makes the Backbone Mountain approach preferable to coming in from the north. Kickoff is slated for 7 p.m.

Sharps, Wotring, Lions Inducted Into SHS Hall

Rob Sharps, Gary Wotring, and the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club were named the 2004 inductees into the Southern High School Football Hall of Fame during recent pregame ceremonies at the SHS athletic field.

Sharps earned 10 varsity athletic letters during his high school years, including four in football from 1963-66. He was a starting freshman receiver on a Ram team that finished with a 6-3 record, the best-ever finish for an SHS team up to that time. He also excelled as a defensive back and special teams performer during his tenure. As a senior, he was a leader on the team that finished with a 6-2-1 record.

Sharps was also a standout in basketball, for which he was named as one of the top 50 players of Southern High School in its 50-plus years of existence.

Sharps, a resident of Oakland, is employed by First United Bank & Trust, directing the Primevest Financial Division. He is also a founder and serves as the first president of the Southern High School Alumni Association. He and his wife Maureen are the parents of two sons, Rob and Preston.

Gary Wotring, a 1987 graduate of SHS, was a standout offensive guard and defensive linebacker for the Rams from 1983 to '86. He was named first-team All-Potomac Valley Conference, All-Highland Football Conference, and All-Area during his junior and senior years. In his final high school game, against Northern, he had his one and only opportunity to carry the ball, and he galloped 67 yards for a touchdown. He was the recipient of the Golden Helmet Award his senior year, presented to the best all-around player on the team.

Wotring resides along White Church Road with his wife Johnna and four children. His oldest son Rick is currently a lineman on the Southern varsity.

The Lions Club was inducted for its long-time sponsorship and operation of the concession booth at the SHS athletic field for over 50 years. The club has donated over $200,000 to the school athletic department during those five decades in support of all sports at the school. Representing the club at the induction were members Alfred "Blue" Marucci and Garrett County commissioner Dave Beard.

Presenting the plaques to the inductees was Tom Woods, school principal and former head football coach.

The SHS Hall of Fame, founded 10 years ago, now includes 33 former players, two former coaches, and five community leaders/organizations. Nominations for future selections are always welcome and should be sent to the school, according to Matt Redinger.

Rams Fall To 2-6 With 21-6 Loss To Falcons

It became another long evening on the road last Friday for the Southern High School varsity football team, as the Rams were defeated by host Frankfort, 21-6.

It was the sixth loss in eight starts for the Rams, while the Falcons improved to 6-3.

Seth Mongold put the home team up 6-0 at the 5:39 mark of the first quarter when he pulled in a 33-yard touchdown pass from Corey Dolly. The kick for the extra point was no good.

Marcus Haines doubled the Falcons' total with 11:27 remaining in the second period when he scored on a three-yard scamper. The run for the two-point conversion was stopped, leaving the Falcons with a 12-0 halftime lead.

Nathan Metz, who led the Falcons in rushing with 86 yards on 15 carries, put Frankfort on top 18-0, but it was via another pass from Dolly, this time covering 61 yards with 2:02 to play in the third stanza. Again the run for the conversion was halted by the Ram defense.

With 5:05 remaining in the game, Andrew Lopez booted a 42-yard field goal for the Falcons.

The Rams averted a shutout when Bret Dewitt scored on a four-yard run with just 2:20 remaining. The two-point conversion run was no good.

Among the few highlights for the Rams was the effort of Brad Reese, who had eight of his team's nine receptions for a total of 106 yards. Five of those were from Cory Bosley, and three were thrown by Jason Wakefield.

The Ram quarterbacks gave up the ball six times by way of interceptions, with Phil Mason and Robbie Ackerman each recording two picks.

"We actually played pretty well defensively," stated Southern coach Fred Gregg, "but it was probably our worst effort up front offensively. It's impossible to consistently move the ball with inconsistent play on the offensive line."

Gregg said that his players have once again put the loss behind them and are now preparing for what is surely the biggest challenge on their schedule — Fort Hill.

"We come to work every day," Gregg said. "We (the coaches) worked all weekend on a game plan, and our kids got back to work with the same effort and dedication that they have shown all year. It's always tough to lose, but this is one of the greatest group of kids I've ever worked with. They are young, but they continue to be willing to work and to learn."

The Rams will travel to Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland to meet a Fort Hill team that is stinging from a 7-6 loss to Martinsburg last week.

While the Sentinels have lost perhaps their most outstanding athlete in Andre Pope, who sustained a torn knee ligament several weeks ago, they seem to have plenty of depth to fill that void.

Their power-oriented, I-formation offense is led by two talented senior running backs in Kevin Page (5-9, 152) and Josh Root (6-2, 235).

"The absence of Andre Pope is a real shame, because he is not only a gifted athlete, but from everything we have heard about him, he is a fine young man," Gregg said. "So from that perspective, it's certainly unfortunate that a person of that caliber, athletically and otherwise, has to miss his senior year. His college aspirations may even be in jeopardy, from what we understand.

"But they really don't lose a lot in their backfield with the addition of Page," he said. "He has excellent speed, and he may be only 152 pounds, but he plays hard and he can really hit.

"Root is a four-year starter who was moved to fullback from guard. With Page running on the perimeter and Root on the inside, it gives them a nice combination," Gregg said.

Root is also an anchor in the Sentinels' 6-2 defensive unit as an inside linebacker, as is junior Kain Metz (6-0, 195).

"They both do an excellent job, but the key to their defense is their line," Gregg said. "Their up-front people do such a great job, it really frees up the linebackers to provide good coverage and keep things contained."

When asked what it would take to upset the Sentinels, Gregg said that his team will still try to execute with the basic fundamentals, but will also throw in a few new wrinkles.

"We will try to do a few things that they don't expect us to do, try a couple of different formations, and just see what happens," he said.

"Obviously we will be the underdog, but it's been our experience that playing very good teams usually makes us elevate our own level of play," he said. "In fact, just getting ready to play a team like Fort Hill is something that we believe is very good for our program overall because it helps our kids improve their skills."

The only Ram who is listed as questionable because of injury this week is T.J. Sisler, who is nursing a sore ankle.

Maddawgs Come From Behind To Catch Frostburg

The Northern Maddawgs A & B squad rallied Sunday to take a see-saw Pee Wee Football League playoff battle over the Frostburg Cougars, 28-26. The unit goes on to face the Cresaptown Eagles this Sunday in the second round of the post-season.

Frostburg's B team broke two long plays for touchdowns in the first quarter and took a 14-0 lead into the second quarter.

It was all Northern in the second quarter as the Maddawgs' A-team defense stifled Frostburg. The hosts knotted the score at 14-all by halftime as Patrick Sines carried the ball into the end zone from one yard out, and Jason Opel notched a two-yard TD carry. Alex Baker rushed for both successful conversion attempts.

Frostburg answered in the third quarter by putting up two more touchdowns on long runs. Northern's B team defense held the cougars on both extra point attempts. Northern responded in the fourth quarter with 30-yard touchdown run by Kameron Kamp and a 12-yard touchdown carry by Baker. Jacob Bosley and Opel ran in the deciding extra points to give Northern its thrilling come-from-behind two-point victory.

Northern's coaching staff saluted the efforts of offensive linemen Guy Vignoli, Kenneth Friend, Alex Ruff, Bosley, Derek Yoder, Matt Thomas, and Josh Bittinger.

Defensive kudos went to Thomas, Austin Tombley, Daniel Uphole, Zack Meyers, and Garrett Raynor on the A team, and Tristen Devaulk, Seth Layton, Tyler Ireland, Chris Murdock, and Robert and Ryan Houseman stood out on defense for the B squad.

Northern's A & B team moves on to Sunday's CAYFL Division I Championship contest against Cresaptown. Kickoff is set for 2 p.m. at Greenway Avenue Stadium.

Vikings Down 'Dawgs In Pee Wee Playoffs

Two Garrett County squads went head-to-head in the C team Pee Wee Football League playoffs this week, and the Oakland Vikings came away with a 28-19 win over the Northern Maddawgs' C squad. Oakland' quarterfinals victory puts the Vikes in Sunday's semifinal match-up against the Frankfort Colts, slated to get under way at noon in Cumberland's Greenway Avenue Stadium.

No details or statistical information on Oakland's victory were made available by the Vikings' coaching staff.

Northern's C team had gained the right to battle Oakland by taking a 21-6 first-round win over the LaVale Lions.

The Maddawgs' Trevon Jones scored a total of five touchdowns over the pair of Pee Wee post-season contests. Teammate Aaron Rodeheaver added a touchdown and an extra-point run, and Shawn Carr added two extra-point runs.

Steelers Knocked From Youth Lea. Playoffs Saturday

The Northern Steelers' run for an appearance in the Cumberland Area Youth Football League (CAYFL) Super Bowl was stopped one step shy of the goal Saturday when the defending champion Keyser Steelers downed the Garrett County squad 44-20 in Cumberland.

Keyser ran off with the game from the beginning by scoring two touchdowns in each of the first two quarters to take a 26-0 halftime lead. Both teams were scoreless through the third stanza, then Keyser put another TD on the board in the fourth quarter to go up by 32 unanswered points.

Randy Wiley finally put the local Steelers into the scoring column with a 70-yard fourth-quarter run, but Keyser answered with another score of its own. Northern's Ryan Evans then reeled off a 65-yard scoring run of his own, which Keyser followed with yet another TD, then Wiley closed out the scoring with his second touchdown on a 55-yard scamper.

Keyser's Jeremy Green gained 159 yards and scored two TDs on the ground.

The Garrett Steelers' coaching staff noted the defensive efforts of Nick Graham, Kyle Gillum, and Dustin Stough.

Huskies Edged By Unbeaten Beall, But Get By Sentinels

A loss and a victory wrapped up the regular season this past week for the Northern High School boys' varsity soccer squad, as the Huskies, ranked third in the area, were edged by undefeated Beall, 2-1, last Thursday at the Cove, and then recorded a 1-0 win over visiting and fourth-ranked Fort Hill on Tuesday.

Coach Tom Ables and his team will take an overall record of 11-3 into the 1A West Region playoffs next week.

Two of the Huskies' three losses this season were at the feet of the Beall Mountaineers, both times by just a one-goal margin.

Beall's Michael Cunningham opened the scoring last Thursday with a goal off an assist by Josh Bittner with 15:46 remaining in the first half.

Matt Fiorita made it 2-0 with a goal off a feed by Carter Dickel at the 6:06 mark.

The Husky defense stiffened and kept the Mountaineers out of the net the rest of the contest, but the Northern offensive unit was able to record just one goal. It was scored by Chris Speicher off an assist by Gonzalo Velasquez with 15:58 remaining.

The Huskies out-shot the 13-0-1 Mountaineers by an 18-14 margin. Chris Fickes turned away 10 of Beall's attempts, while Mountaineer keeper Chris Fike was credited with 15 saves.

Beall has not lost a match since the 2002 season, a 3-1 defeat by Allegany. Since then the Mountaineers have amassed a two-year mark of 28-0-1 in the regular season. The tie was with University of Morgantown on October 2 of this year.

While Speicher accounted for the Huskies' only score against Beall, he repeated that effort Tuesday night versus Fort Hill. However, the Sentinels were held scoreless by the Fickes and the rest of the Husky defense, giving Northern the 1-0 win.

Speicher's goal came just under five minutes into the match, once again off an assist by Velasquez.

Each team finished with 17 shots on goal, and the Huskies had a 6-3 advantage in corner kicks. Fickes had a dozen saves, while Tyler Reed recorded 14 for the Sentinels, who dropped to 8-5 overall and 6-4 in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League.

The win gave the Huskies second place in the WMIL standings, second only to Beall.

The Northern junior varsity earned a 3-2 win in the preliminary match.

The Huskies will host Westmar in a 1A West quarterfinal next Tuesday, with the kickoff set for 5 p.m. The contest will be followed by a girls' playoff match between Northern and Clear Spring.

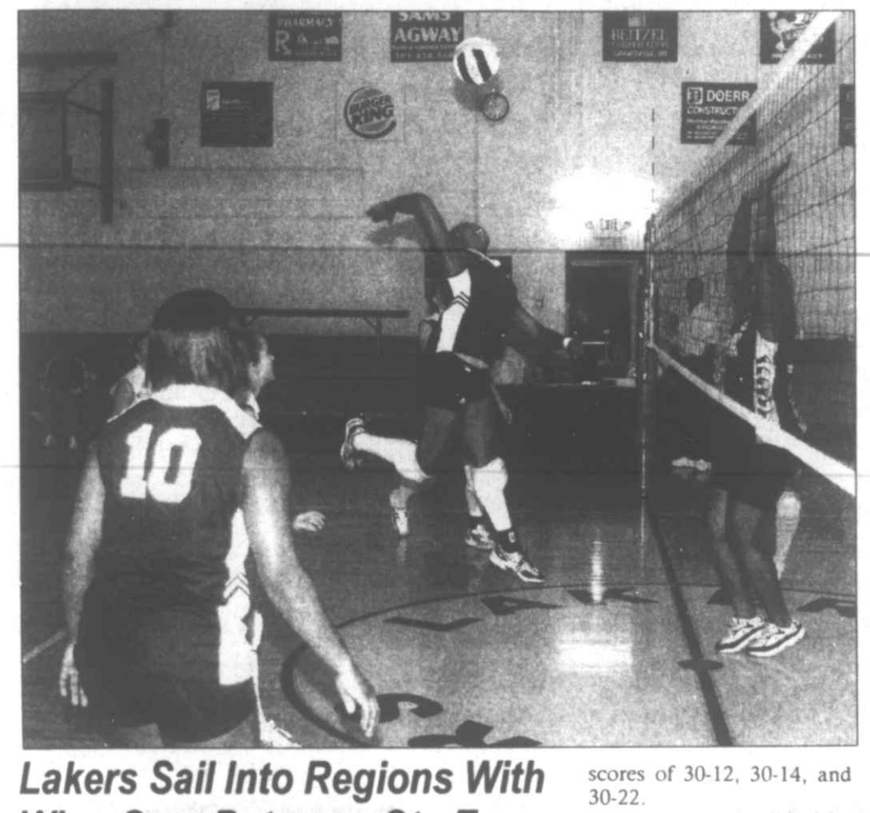
NHS NETTERS NOTE SENIOR NIGHT – The Northern High School varsity volleyball team ended its season this week with Senior Night observances that saluted the play of student-athletes slated to graduate this spring. Pictured from the left, in family groupings, are Lakin Weimer, kneeling in front of her parents Warren and Sherry Weimer; Jayme Miller, and Christy and John Miller; Nicole Kovach, and Mary Fazenbaker and Thomas Kovach; Danielle Glotfelty, and Addie and Warren Glotfelty; and Amanda Anderson, and Judith and Robert Anderson. The occasion also marked the close of NHS's regular season, which the Huskies capped with a 3-2 win over visiting BW.



Lakers Sail Into Regions With Wins Over Potomac St., Essex

The Garrett College women's volleyball team mounted a season-ending push that gave the Lakers two big wins and a measure of valuable momentum heading into this weekend's Region XX Tournament. GC downed Potomac State 3-1 last Thursday, Oct. 21, then swept visiting Essex in three straight games Saturday to finish out at 8-17 for the campaign.

Playing on Potomac State's Keyser court, the Lakers took the first game 30-19 before being edged in the second, 30-28. Garrett rolled through the next two, 30-16 and 30-22.

Sophomore Amanda Frantz tallied 17 kills, 15 digs, 14 points, and four aces to pace the Lakers, while freshman Yolanda Anthony netted a team-high 15 points, nine kills, and eight digs. Sophomore Autumn Beavers contributed 10 digs and nine kills, freshman Jhonna Newby had eight kills, three blocks, five digs, and 10 points, and freshman Danyell Thompson dished out 18 assists while sophomore Molly Wolf turned in 15 assists.

The Catamounts' Jodie Sites led in the assists department with 23, and PSC teammate Amanda Whedbee put together 11 kills, four aces, and a pair of digs.

Garrett ran away from Essex Saturday by game scores of 30-12, 30-14, and 30-22.

Beavers led the Lakers' way with 18 service points, nine kills, eight aces, seven digs, and a 20-for-25 attack tally. Frantz recorded 11 points, eight kills, six digs, two aces, and was 14-for-17 from the service line, while Newby contributed 11 points, four kills, and was 6-for-6 on attacks. Anthony tallied eight kills, six digs, three assists, and two aces, Thompson paced the squad with 14 assists, and Wolf handed out nine assists while recording three digs.

The Lakers travel to Catonsville this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 30-31, for the Region XX Tournament.

Ram Netters Close Out With Sweeps Over Westmar, BW

The Southern High School volleyball team appears poised to make a strong run through the upcoming 1A West Region playoffs, as the Rams swept Westmar and Bishop Walsh this week to close out their season with a 13-1 mark. SHS has now recorded four consecutive 3-0 sweeps, with its only defeat of the campaign coming at the hands of 2A Fort Hill, a 3-1 loss that came after the Rams had earlier downed the Sentinels by an identical 3-1 tally.

The outcome of Monday's match at Westmar was never really in doubt, as the Rams rolled up big wins by substantial game margins of 25-15, 25-14, and 25-18.

Senior Sarah Bittinger paced Southern with 12 points, four aces, while classmate Julia Bosley added 10 points with six aces. Junior Chelsea Wassell netted six kills and three blocks. Amber Lewis led the Wildcats (4-10) with eight points in Westmar's last match of the year.

Southern's junior varsity ran away with a sweep of its own, as the younger Rams got a nine-point, five-ace, three-assist performance from sophomore Natalie Rohrbaugh. April Jones had five points for the hosts.

The following night's SHS season finale ended with the Rams taking 25-16, 25-18, and 26-24 wins over host Bishop Walsh.

Bittinger netted 10 points and dished out 12 assists, senior Kayla Nazelrod recorded eight points, five kills, and two blocks, and Bosley contributed eight kills and seven digs for Southern. Sophomore Sarah Stephens had four kills and three digs, and Wassell snagged three kills and three blocks. Jessica Palumbo had five points and seven digs to lead the Spartans.

The Ram JVs brought their year to a close with a 25-8, 25-13 sweep. Sophomore Adrienne Yoder put together an 11-point, four-ace, three assist tally, and freshman Melodie Stolbom netted 11 points and two aces. The Spartans were led by Carissa Montoya's five points.

The playoff drawing will be held Monday.

Huskies' Late-Season Surge Primes Hopes

Perhaps the Northern High School varsity volleyball squad and the world champion Boston Red Sox have something in common, as both teams struggled through a long regular season before finishing up on a roll. The Huskies, who won only two of their first nine outings this year, have surged of late by taking four of their last six matches to finish the regular season at 6-9 and enter the upcoming 1A West Region playoffs on a high note.

Northern's latest victim fell last Thursday in Accident, where the Huskies brought their season to an end with a hard-fought 3-2 triumph over visiting Bishop Walsh. NHS took the first two games with ease, 25-8 and 25-9, before the Spartans knotted the contest with 25-21, 25-19 victories. The Huskies took the nightcap, and the match, with a 15-10 win.

Senior Lakin Weimer recorded 20 attacks, three kills, and three points, while Jayme Miller contributed 28 service points, 15 attacks, and three kills. Dani Glotfelty netted eight attacks, one kill, and five points.

Lauren Devlin paced BW with nine points and one ace.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special corps of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Members of the Civic Club of Oakland will soon be taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $100 per child.

The Civic Club of Oakland is again heading up the volunteer/shopping coordination in the southern part of the county. Betty Ellington and Bobby Andersen are the head coordinators, assisted by several other Civic Club members. For the northern part of the county, Lisa Broadwater will continue her role as the coordinator of shopping at the LaVale Wal-Mart. Many other functions of the program are being handled by Civic Club members, for which the newspaper staff is very grateful.

THE REPUBLICAN with the GWFC Civic Club of Oakland

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Please make your donations before December 3, 2004. Those collected after December 3 will be saved for next year's campaign.

LOCAL BANDS EARN HONORS – Both the Southern and Northern Garrett marching bands performed well in the 18th annual Maryland State High School Band Championships — Freestate Spectacular XVIII, held Saturday at Towson. Southern won first place in Group 1 and Northern earned 4th. There were nine bands in competition in that division. In the photo above, the Garrett County commissioners are shown as they present the Southern band with a congratulatory certificate. Pictured from left are Duane Salisbury, assistant director, Commissioner Ernie Gregg, band director Richard Clever, and Commissioners Dave Beard and Fred Holliday. Northern band drum major Blakely Glotfelty is pictured below, along with the band's section leaders, as they receive a trophy at the competition.

verna Park won the Group IV title.

"Mr. (Rick) Clever (director) and I are so proud of our students," stated assistant director Duane Salisbury. "They have worked very hard this year, and it seems they get better each week. This was easily the best show we have performed this year, and it couldn't have come at a better time."

Salisbury credited all sections of the band, as well as the various auxiliary personnel and parent boosters, for the award-winning performance.

"Each section of the band — the woodwinds, brass, pit percussion, battery percussion, and the color guard — have contributed mightily to our success this year," he said, "and without our managers and boosters, we would certainly not be in this position.

"Our boosters are the best. They have found ways to enhance our program by raising funds, organizing equipment, and creating props, like the large ship we use in our show. Everywhere we go, it is the topic of conversation. The fans love it, the judges love it, and even the other bands are impressed by it. We have our boosters to thank for its creation, and our managers to thank for getting it on and off the field."

The ship was designed by Bonnie Frederick, a band booster who is also the art teacher at Dennett Road Elementary School.

The Southern band's next competition will be the Big Apple Tournament of Bands, hosted by Musselman High School, Bunker Hill, W.Va., and scheduled for this Saturday, Oct. 30. The show will begin at 6 p.m., with Southern scheduled to perform at 6:30. The Northern band is slated to perform at 6:45.

TRUMPETERS TO HERALD VETERANS – Two local musicians, Royce Warnick (left) and Joe Ashby, will lend their talents on the trumpet to this year's Veterans Day Salute, sponsored by the Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross and slated for Sunday, Nov. 7, at 2 p.m. The salute will be held at the St. Peter the Apostle Church, located along Fourth Street in Oakland. Warnick has performed with the Garrett College Community Band (GCCB) for the past three years, as well as the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department's Oktoberfest "Oom-Pah" Band. Ashby, an alumnus of the Southern High School Band (and winner of the school's John Philip Sousa Award), has played with the Oom-Pah band for 27 years, being a charter member. He is also an original member of the GCCB. Ashby often plays for the Garrett Choral Society, local funerals, and with the Cumberland Shriners Band during Autumn Glory. The salute will involve a wide range of musical performers, as well as special speakers, area church choirs, and a reading of fallen Garrett County veterans.

Holy Cross sites and a portion of a 12-inch line that would serve the Blakeslee area. The county would put in a parallel line to other residences with failing systems.

According to the Maryland annotated code, Tonkovich said, residents would be required to hook-up to the public system if their lands were adjacent to developed properties that were connected to the system. Additionally, the code does not allow the formation of "Swiss cheese" districts, where boundary lines meander in a haphazard manner.

He noted, however, that some portions of the two areas might not be developed, and some residents would not be required to hook up to the public system; therefore, they would not have to pay hook-up or user fees. They would, however, have to pay ad valorem taxes if their properties were annexed into the district.

Several residents asked about the amount of the ad valorem tax. Tonkovich said the rate would depend on whether the commissioners decided to combine the county's 10 water and seven sewer districts into one universal water district and one universal sewer district.

"I think public sewer and water are important," said Russell Sines. "My position is, simply, if I'm not connected, don't tax me."

One resident said that just because one lived at the lake did not mean one was rich.

"There is only so much a person can afford to do," said Carolyn Barnard, who moved to the lake 14 years ago. "I don't want to be forced to move because I can't afford my home. That's not why I moved here." If her property is annexed, she will have to pay for a 400-foot line to her home, she noted, along with other fees.

Grace Pennington, Bray School Road, said she was on a fixed income. "Where are the ordinary workers and the retired going to get the money?" she asked. She urged the commissioners to help out all of the people, not just the rich ones.

Tonkovich said the Garrett County Health Department "strongly" supported the extension of a public system to Area I.

"Area I has residences that have experienced difficulties with their septic systems and includes old systems with a very limited repair area," wrote Steve Sherrard, director of Environmental Health, in a letter to Tonkovich. "A public sewer system serving this area would clearly alleviate existing problems and prevent any problems with failing systems or ground water contamination. It would also protect the water of Deep Creek Lake, an extremely valuable recreational resource."

Sherrard also wrote, "Area II is adjacent to an existing sewer line and contains properties with soils that do not perc well. Since some of the infrastructure is already present in this area, Environmental Health Services has no objection to the extension of sewer service to these properties."

Kyle Newsome was in favor of the annexation. He would like to build on his Area II property, located near the DCL wastewater treatment plant, but his land will not perc. His only option, he said, was a public system.

"I'm not the only one benefiting from this," he said, noting that property values would go up.

Tom Sheahan, representing Four Hooppole property owners, said his community had already paid for its own high-quality, self-contained sewer system. He said there was no purpose in bringing the public lines to his community, adding that it seemed this was only being done for the Holy Cross developers' benefit.

Gary Daum, a partner in the Holy Cross project, indicated that everyone within three or four miles of the lake had a stake in its welfare. Something had to be done, he said, about the failing systems and the drainage into the lake "before the goose that laid the golden egg gets cooked."

Additionally, if people with failing systems cannot connect to a public one, he noted, they will have to abandon their properties.

"I don't know what the answer is for those who can't afford to hook up," he added.

"We will take this under advisement for at least a couple of weeks before a decision is made," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg about the annexations. "Obviously, some reconfiguration to these plans is needed, based on what we've heard here today."

The commissioners will hold another public hearing in the near future in an attempt to answer some of the questions that were raised this week, before making a final decision on the annexations.

Adorable Adoptables

HANDSOME AND PLAYFUL is how the young Heinz 57-mix pictured above is described. He was found along Teets Road and was brought to the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Also looking for new homes is a male orange tabby who was picked up as a stray. Other cats and dogs are available at the shelter. The numbers and breeds to choose from change almost daily. For more information, persons may stop by the shelter, located along Oakland Sang Run Road, or call 301-334-3553. "The ASPCA recommends that you protect your cats, especially black ones, from pranksters around Halloween time," said a Garrett County Humane Society spokesperson. Residents are also asked to save their "Paw Points" from Fresh Step and Scoop Away cat litter and bring them to the shelter. The points can be used to buy food and litter for the shelter animals.

Bear Hunt Closes After One Day; Harvest May Grow By Next Fall

by Judson Berger
Capital News Service

FROSTBURG–They traveled from as far away as Worcester County, driving for hours to participate in Maryland's first black bear hunt in 51 years. One pair came from Prince George's the week before to scout the best spots. Others took a couple days off work for a shot at the slight chance of killing a bear, for its hide, head or meat. But by Tuesday morning, the second day, anyone who called the Department of Natural Resources' bear hotline would have heard the same message: "The black bear hunt is officially closed . . . due to an overwhelming first-day success."

After 20 kills Monday, the state called off the hunt, which could have lasted through Saturday and into December, fearing another day would risk exceeding the state's mandated 30-bear limit. Months of controversy led to a one-day affair that left some state officials confirming its need, some protestors still decrying the hunt and some hunters exiting empty-handed.

So many bears were caught the first day, said Heidi Prescott, national director for the Fund for Animals, because they were "vulnerable" and not used to being hunted. "We believe that no bears should be hunted in Maryland," Prescott said, "but it certainly was a tragedy that a young bear that hadn't even left its mother yet was the first to be killed." Prescott referred to the 84-pound, 10-month-old female shot by David Ciekot early Monday morning.

The largest bear taken weighed in at 496 pounds, and the average weight of the 11 males and 9 females killed was 178.4 pounds.

"The fact that it started and ended in a day took us a little bit by surprise," said Harry Spiker, DNR's black bear project leader.

"I think that really goes along with what we've been saying all along – we do have a dense bear population here." Regarding the small size of the first bear checked in, he said, "We want to stabilize the population growth, and to do that it doesn't matter whether it's an 80-pound bear or a 400-pound bear. It achieves the same goal for us."

The state called for the hunt because bear-related nuisance complaints were increasing, and dozens of bears were being run down by cars. "All 20 bears were taken within half a mile from a public road," said Paul Peditto, director of the DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Service. And most – 80 percent – were taken from private land.

The DNR reports about 400 bears residing in the hunting region, and 500 statewide. Another hunt is planned for next year, though the DNR will review the terms. That prospect has the Humane Society and the Fund for Animals stalwart in their opposition.

Dear Neighbors in Garrett County and Friends in West Virginia –

In the last three weeks we have written open letters explaining our concerns about policies of the Bush administration. Data show the world is not safer since we invaded and occupied Iraq. Increasing terrorist attacks and casualties are taking place at an alarming rate and scope in Western Europe and the Middle East. We have grave concerns about our economy's direction and the explosion in government debt, too often owed to foreign countries. The $30,000,000,000 tax cuts for the wealthiest 250,000 families are indefensible, as are the President's environmental and healthcare policies. On every issue it seems that greed and corporate profit are the major concern, rather than the average American citizen's welfare. We think that is wrong.

We understand that not everyone looks at these facts and comes to the same conclusions we have. Many still hold that it was the right thing to invade and occupy Iraq. Recent revelations make it clear the invasion was ill advised, poorly planned, under manned, and diverted attention from the global war on terrorism, which should be our primary focus. We agree with the views of the first President Bush, which he expressed in his memoir A World Transformed,

"Trying to eliminate Saddam … would have incurred incalculable human and political costs. We would have been forced to occupy Baghdad and, in effect, rule Iraq . . . There was no viable 'exit strategy' we could see, violating another of our principles. Furthermore, we had been self-consciously trying to set a pattern of handling aggression in the post-Cold War world. Going in and occupying Iraq, thus unilaterally exceeding the United Nation's mandate, would have destroyed the precedent of international response to aggression that we hoped to establish. Had we gone the invasion route, the United States could conceivably still be an occupying power in a bitterly hostile land."

All of his predictions came true. The President should have consulted his father. This is one reason the Lone Star Iconoclast, the hometown newspaper of President Bush in Crawford, Texas, which endorsed Bush in 2000, recently ran an editorial endorsing Kerry for president under the headline – "Kerry Will Restore American Dignity." The editorial said, in part, "We were ready to follow Bush's lead through any travail. He let us down." Similarly, the Seattle Times, which also endorsed Bush in 2000, recently endorsed Kerry for president. The editorial read, in part, "Four years ago, this page endorsed George W. Bush for president. We cannot do so again – because of an ill-conceived war and its aftermath, undisciplined spending, shrinkage of constitutional rights and an intrusive social agenda. The Bush presidency is not what we had in mind. Our endorsement of John Kerry is not without reservations, but he is head and shoulders above the incumbent."

President Bush criticizes Kerry for being a tax and spend liberal. What should we call a president who spends without taxing? Irresponsible. The result is the largest deficit in our nation's history. These deficits are increasingly owed to foreign countries, which, in the very near future, could pose a greater threat to our way of life than terrorism does today.

Although some who support President Bush agree with our concerns, they want to vote for the President because of his positions on gay marriage, abortion, stem-cell research, etc. We emphasize two important points. First, there are legitimate differences of opinion among religious communities. There is not just one position on these issues in the religious community. People of faith differ on these issues. This nation has been historically tolerant on issues of religious faith. Second, the Constitution separates church and state to insure that one religious community does not impose its views on the rest of the country through government policy.

To illustrate, evangelical Christians in the late 18th century supported separation of church and state, partially because they were a minority and wanted their rights protected. Their faith was predicated on a personal, unmediated relationship between God and man. Union between church and state was seen as unnecessary and an insult to the Creator, whose claims preceded those of any civil government. Our Constitution is unique because it preserves personal freedom of religion, while insuring government policy is free from any religious group's influence. The intent was to protect the nation's welfare as a whole. In this context, we agree with President Theodore Roosevelt who said Our loyalty is due entirely to the United States. It is due to the President only and exactly to the degree in which he efficiently serves the United States. It is our duty to support him when he serves the United States well. It is our duty to oppose him when he serves it badly.

After researching the merits of both presidential candidates, we conclude that two vital institutions now in jeopardy – the Constitution and democracy – will only be preserved and strengthened under the leadership of President John Kerry.

County school, she said.

The percentage of students passing biology HSA in 2004 was 68.0, English 45.4, and government 72.0. Among students who completed an algebra I course last year, 79% achieved a passing score on the algebra/data analysis HSA, the highest passing rate among all systems within the state.

According to the Maryland State Department of Education, when results were compiled in 2003, not one single school system was making Adequate Yearly Progress toward its annual achievement targets. This year, 15 of Maryland's systems made all of their targets and the remainder made solid strides over last year.

"The key to continuous school improvement is to present high expectations and provide educators with the tools to reach those goals. The results speak for themselves," said State Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick. "Maryland schools are serious about reform."

"We are very proud of the hard work of our students and staff," said Mullinix.

DCL.

•Adopt a more proactive stance on the part of the county government toward management and enforcement [of development controls].

•Ensure that new residential construction is compatible in size and scale with nearby homes.

•Develop improvement plans for McHenry and Thayerville.

•Create an Advisory Committee for the DCL watershed to assist county boards and commissions.

•Adopt site design and architectural review for commercial development in the DCL watershed.

•Encourage the continued viability of traditional waterfront businesses.

•Increase public and private-quasi-public access in selected locations in and around DCL.

The seven additional recommendations are:

•Make changes to the Deep Creek Watershed Zoning and the County Subdivision and Sensitive Area ordinances.

•Review the regulations for grandfathered lots and development.

•Require new development to mitigate the effects of additional traffic on roadways and intersections.

•Create incentives for business development in the existing Town Center zoned area north of Thayerville.

•Support state and federal efforts to enforce the Clean Air Act to reduce mercury contamination from air emissions outside the watershed.

•Improve conditions for pedestrians and bicyclists.

•Adjust the sign regulations to encourage signage more in keeping with the mountain resort atmosphere.

The plan also includes an item urging the county to attract more retirees to the DCL watershed to boost the population of full-time, year-round residents.

For further information, persons may call the county's Planning Office at 301-334-1920.

VOLUNTEERS HONORED — Two local emergency service volunteers were honored during the annual Autumn Glory Festival, as John Feather, chief of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, was named Firefighter of the Year for Garrett County, and Barry Beall, a member of the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, was selected Emergency Medical Services Provider of the Year. Feather who has been a member of the OVFD for 25 years, is pictured above left with presenter Tim Clark, chairman of the Firefighter of the Year Committee. Beal, who has been a member of the Northern squad for over 25 years, is currently serving as chief of the squad. He is pictured above far right with Terry Spear, chairman of the NGCRS and chief of the Friendsville VFD. Both honorees have completed thousands of hours of training in their respective emergency service areas. Feather is also a former member of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. He is pictured below driving the OVFD's antique American LaFrance pumper during the recent Autumn Glory Grand Feature Parade.

ground," recalled Wagoner.

"I then positioned my vehicle to block traffic and went back to the driver. Tfc. Brian Willetts arrived and we placed a blanket around him (Taylor) and placed him in the cruiser."

Taylor, an employee of Oakland's Jacobs Petroleum Company, had been pulling a full load of gasoline behind a 2004 Peterbilt truck. Approximately a fourth of the gasoline survived the explosions and fire in liquid form, and had to be offloaded at the crash scene. The extent of the incident, combined with intermittent arrivals of heavy fog throughout the day, forced the closure of the westbound Interstate and the rerouting of traffic onto Route 40.

The list of personnel working on the scene included numerous state troopers and Allegany County sheriff's deputies, and units from the Eastern Garrett, Frostburg, Clarysville, Midland, Deep Creek and Salisbury (Pa.) volunteer fire departments, the Frostburg Ambulance Service, the Allegany County Hazardous Incident Response Team, the Maryland State Highway Administration, and the Maryland Department of the Environment.

1. IT'S YOUR MONEY!

The national debt, as of 10/22/04, is $7,440,685,081,747. That represents $25,000 for every man, woman and child in our country.★ The national debt is going up at a rate of 1.3 million dollars per MINUTE.★ Most of this debt is being financed overseas with China being the largest investor.★ The budget deficit over the next 10 years is projected by the bipartisan Congressional Budget Office to be nearly 5 TRILLION dollars. A bill to be paid by our children and grandchildren.★ Never before in the history of our Nation, or the world for that matter, has a government cut taxes in a time of war.★ As imports continue to exceed exports more and more of our money is flowing overseas along with American jobs.★ This administration has continued to cut taxes on large corporations, including oil companies, while many are moving offshore to avoid US taxes.★ The era of big business is back with this administration and the middle class will continue to pick up the tab as the upper 2% and corporations make off with the goods.★ Any monies many received as a middle class American through the tax rebate has been more than offset due to increases in state and local taxes. Most states are operating with huge deficits.★ If you are better off than you were four years ago, it is almost certain that it is a result of your extra efforts and nothing the government did for you.

2. HEALTH CARE

An estimated 43,000,000 Americans are without health care insurance. In the world's richest country this is a crime.

Health insurance costs have had double digit increases each of the last three years while wages for middle income Americans have decreased.

This administration has blocked legislation that would allow the importation of drugs from Canada. Republicans and the nation's largest HMO firm have refused to allow the legislation to move out of the committee to be voted on by the full House, which would likely pass the bill.

The Medicare reform bill that passed in the middle of the night provides no ability for the federal government to negotiate drug prices with the pharmaceutical companies.

3. CHILDREN WE ARE LEAVING BEHIND

The No Child Left Behind Act, lauded by the President as the centerpiece of his Education reform, has been under-funded by 9 BILLION DOLLARS, leaving the local schools to fend for themselves.

After-school programs, designed to help 15 million children, now get only 50% of the funds authorized by the act.

College tuition and fees have risen 35% in the last 3 years. The Pell Grant increases promised by Candidate Bush have not been passed.

The Head Start program enrollment will be frozen in 2005, keeping 40% of the children now eligible from participating.

4. HOMELAND SECURITY

Emergency procedures are under-funded and unprepared. $98.4 billion is needed to bring capabilities to minimum effectiveness. Bush's 2005 budget cuts funding for firefighters, first responders, and police by 50%!

This administration has resisted securing chemical and nuclear power plants. Of the 15,000+ such facilities, 123 of them are located in densely populated areas holding chemicals that could sicken or kill over a million people–EACH! Of course the nuclear power plants can be an even more inviting target. The companies are being told to manage their own security. Does this make you feel safe?

9 million cargo containers come into our ports each year. As of now only 5% of them are being inspected.

Terror attacks worldwide have increased 40% since our invasion of Iraq. If we are defeating the terrorists, they have a strange way of showing it.

5. JOBS

This is the first administration in 72 years to have a net job loss. Over 1.3 at last counting and they join the 35 million people living in poverty.

The jobs that have been created average $9.00 per hour less in pay than those lost.

Many of the new jobs are second and third jobs for people trying to get along with smaller paychecks.

This dismal record is all the worse for the lack of jobs that the huge tax rebate was to create. Now we have record deficits and fewer jobs to boot. With 45% of the tax cuts going to the upper 1%, it just doesn't make sense to continue such an unproven policy.

6. CIVIL LIBERTIES

John Ashcroft is batting 0% conviction rate for 5000 arrests by the Justice Department under the Patriot Act! NONE!

If we are to project ourselves to the world as an ideal democracy we must be careful that we are the best example of a democracy. We can not let the terrorists redesign our way of life.

When the Assault Weapons Ban was about to expire, which the President claimed to support, this administration encouraged "no action" in spite of near unanimous support by police departments across the nation.

9 REASONS to CHANGE HORSES in mid STREAM

Do we learn from history?

I see in the near future a crisis approaching that unnerves me and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country... Corporations have been enthroned. An era of corruption in high places will follow and the money power will endeavor to prolong its reign by working on the prejudices of the people until wealth is aggregated in a few hands and the Republic is destroyed.

–President Abraham Lincoln, 1864

Naturally, the common people don't want war...but after all it is the leaders of a country who determine the policy, and it is always a simple matter to drag the people along, whether it is a democracy, or a fascist dictatorship, or a parliament, or a communist dictatorship. Voice or no voice, the people can always be brought to the bidding of the leaders. That is easy. All you have to do is to tell them they are being attacked, and denounce the pacifists for lack of patriotism and exposing the country to danger. It works in every country.

–Hermann Goering,
Nazi leader at the Nuremberg Trials after WWII

7. THE IRAQ WAR

We went to war because of WMDs...none were found!★ President Bush declared "mission accomplished"...it wasn't!★ The president called for the terrorists to "bring it on"...and they did!★ As we know, there were no ties between Iraq and 9/11.★ 200 BILLION DOLLARS so far in our effort vs. 5 BILLION in the 1991 Gulf War!★ The "coalition of the willing" is made of 37 countries including Tonga, Albania, Azerbaijan, Latvia, Mongolia, Macedonia, Armenia, Kazakhstan, Bulgaria, Slovakia, and Moldova. Can you find these countries on a map?★ "Don't forget Poland," President Bush's debate retorts. Last month the Polish President said, "The Bush administration deceived us about the WMDs...we were taken for a ride." They are now pulling their troops out in 2005.★ The United Kingdom, Australia and Poland make up less than 1% of the total fighting force in the war theater.★ Now we're in a situation that is indeed "hard work." With over 1100 American sons and daughters dead and thousands wounded we see the price of a rush to war. Our troops are working under-equipped and for much longer than anticipated. Our armed forces are stretched thin which leaves us vulnerable to any further crisis that is likely to occur, according to the administration.★ Halliburton has received BILLIONS of dollars in no-bid contracts for the reconstruction of Iraq. They have been caught twice over-charging, with no penalties. It is hard to imagine that this could go on with hardly a mention of Vice President Cheney's role as former CEO of the company and the fact that he still receives money from them on a yearly basis.★ President Bush should be held accountable for this war and all that comes with it. As President, he is responsible. All the spin in the world doesn't change the facts.

8. THIS LAND IS YOUR LAND

President Bush has pulled out of all international treaties involving global warming while ignoring the results of a panel that he, himself, appointed to study the problem.

9. $OCIAL $ECURITY...

The administration promises again to "fix" social security. Their plan? Privatize. There are many thousands of pension plan retirees who can attest to the risk that brings–seeing their retirement checks shrink by 40-60% while healthcare and fuel costs have zoomed. There has to be a better way.

Paid for by FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS FOR CHANGE

THE SUN – The sun spends the first three weeks of November in Libra, then a week in Scorpius, and finishes the month in Ophiuchus, the little known 13th star group along the sun's path. The amount of daily sunlight drops in November; the month opens with about 10 hours and 28 minutes and closes with about 9 hours and 34 minutes of sunlight. In early November the sun rises about 6:48 a.m., setting around 5:15 p.m. In late November sunrises are about 7:20 a.m. while sunsets are about 4:54 p.m. The sun's midday height during November drops from 35 degrees (on the 1st) to 28 degrees (on the 30th). In November, the length of twilight is about an hour. This means that the fainter stars fade from view about an hour before sunrise and the stars reappear an hour after sunset. In mid November, we have about 12 hours each night for star gazing.

THE MOON – As November begins, the moon shines in the late evening sky. After Nov. 4 the moon shifts into the morning sky, then is most easily viewed at dawn. On Nov. 9, the crescent moon appears near the bright planet Jupiter and the brilliant planet Venus in the eastern dawn. On Nov. 12 and 13 the moon hides in the sun's glare. On Nov. 14 the moon reappears as a narrow crescent low in the western dusk. By Nov. 18 the moon has grown to half full, appearing as a letter "D"; this is the best moon shape for viewing the craters with binoculars. The moon grows to full on the evening of Nov. 26, then shining among the stars of Taurus. On the last evening of November, the moon appears in the late evening sky near the planet Saturn.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM – Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steady, unlike the bright night stars that twinkle. The brilliant planet Venus is spectacular in the eastern dawn in October. In early November, Venus nearly lines up with the bright planet Jupiter. As Venus and Jupiter separate, Venus moves towards the dull planet Mars below and to the left. At the start of October, Venus is close to the bright star Regulus of Leo. The planet Saturn is Gemini, near the bright stars Pollux and Castor. In late November, Saturn is high enough above the horizon for good telescopic viewing of its rings in the late evening. The planet Mercury sets about an hour after the sun in late November, but will be difficult to see.

THE STARS IN NOVEMBER – Two bright stars shine on either side of the North Star in the evening hours. In the northwest is the white-blue star Vega, which is slowly descending as the hours pass. In the northeast is the golden star Capella, which climbs higher as the hours pass. Late on November evenings, the star group Orion surfaces in the east. Orion's trademark is his belt of three stars in a row.

ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES – The Frostburg State Planetarium program for the first three November Sundays is "Dawn Sky Gazing" with public showings at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. The Planetarium is in Tawes Hall 302. Call 301-687-4270 for road directions and more information. The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet on Friday, November 19, at the LaVale Public Library at 7:30 p.m. All sky gazers are welcome.

Dr. Doyle writes this column for those who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or get a free brochure, 2005 Sky Calendar or free fall sky charts, persons may call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle hosts "SkyWatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights, that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM on 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and at 96.3 FM around Oakland. Ask The Everyday Scientist

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

Q. Why can't we just stay on Daylight Saving Time all year? Who needs early sunlight? I think it would be better not to have it dark in the late afternoon.

GOOD question!! The practice of changing clocks twice a year really doesn't make much sense any more.

Historically, Daylight Saving Time was thought up back in World War II in order to save on fuel, by shifting the time when people were awake to an hour earlier. A lot of people lived on farms in those days, and electricity wasn't taken for granted the way it is today. By using less electricity for lighting, some fuel was saved.

At the time of the first "oil shock" in late 1973, the government decided to dust off that old fuel-saving strategy, and so the country went on Daylight Saving Time year-round in 1974. But experience showed that total electricity saved was zilch that way, and the experiment didn't last long.

Each time zone should span 15 degrees of longitude, so that 24 time zones cover the entire 360° of the globe. Except for Alaska and Hawaii, the United States fits nicely into four time zones. Ideally, the boundaries between time zones are at certain longitude lines on the earth: 82.5° west, 97.5°, and 112.5°. Daylight Time for one zone is Standard Time for the next zone to the east. When Chicago (in the Central Time Zone) switches to Daylight Time, those clocks read exactly what our clocks here read during the winter when we're on Eastern Standard Time. Again ideally, it's easy to discern what time zone you belong in by just looking at a globe and finding the longitude lines.

Well, most people really like being on Daylight Saving Time. As a result, a lot of places (some entire states) have selected year-round Daylight Saving Time through a backdoor: Michigan and Indiana lie entirely west of longitude 82.5°, and should really be on Central Time. (That longitude line goes just barely west of Cleveland Ohio.) In Indiana, people never change their clocks; the time there is named "Eastern Standard Time" in the winter and "Central Daylight Time" in the summer. But Michigan just decided to define itself as being on Eastern Time – so the state in reality has "daylight time" in the winter and "double daylight time" in the summer. In Sault Ste. Marie in July, it just begins getting dark after 10 p.m. Similarly, North and South Dakota lie entirely west of 97.5° but won't go on Mountain Time, since they prefer the extra daylight of the Central Time zone. Except for the vicinity of El Paso, the huge majority of Texas likewise runs on Central Time.

Meanwhile, people in Maine and Boston (at the eastern end of the time zone) are watching the sun set around 4 p.m. in December and wondering why the country doesn't just stay on daylight time all year-round. The age-old excuse that the farmers need the early morning sunlight to milk the cows is completely ridiculous, since nearly all the farm states have chosen an earlier time zone anyway.

There is one distinct safety advantage of switching back to standard time for the winter: the morning rush hour takes place in more daylight. Children gathering at a school bus stop are not in complete darkness in December, and that improves their safety. Of course, the evening rush hour is in darkness, but icy patches on the roads are fewer in the evening.

The springtime switch was re-positioned from late April to early April a while back, and it would be easy to advance it still more to early March, without causing any problems. Dads who coach baseball practice after school would appreciate that.

Will the country ever change to year-round daylight time? About 25 years ago, this was a hot political topic for a while, but it faded away. For most people today, changing clocks is somewhere between a novelty and a nuisance, an easy conversation-starter for a day or so.

WEBELOS GO UNDERGROUND – Members of Cub Scout Pack 31 went to new depths to earn their Geology pins recently, as these Webelos followed up on classroom lessons on rocks and rock formations with a guided tour of Pennsylvania's Laurel Caverns. Based at Dennett Road Elementary School and chartered by the Oakland Elks BPO Lodge, Pack 31 got an unexpected lesson in how dark it can be in a cave when the caverns' electrical power was reduced by a nearby vehicle accident. Pictured in the front row, from the left, are Wesley Logsdon, J.R. Upole, Bryson Meadows, Mitchell Beeman, Nathan Ketterman, Zach Finch, and Ethan Walkling. Cub Scouts Set Dove Center Benefit Drive

A benefit drive for the Dove Center is being sponsored by Cub Scout Pack 31. Working in conjunction with the Boy Scouts of America "Scouting for Food" campaign, the cub scouts are seeking donations of items needed by local victims of domestic violence, including non-perishable food items, personal hygiene items, and small toy items.

Scouts will be placing door hangers at homes in their neighborhood this weekend, Oct. 29-31. Residents who receive a door hanger and who would like to donate are asked to place a bag outside their door on the morning of Saturday, Nov. 6, by 9 a.m. A neighboring Cub Scout will pick up the donation that morning.

Residents who do not receive a door hanger, but would also like to donate, may call Cubmaster Jim Walkling at 301-334-5295 to arrange for a pickup of the donation, or persons may drop off their donations at Dennett Road Elementary School by 11 a.m. on Nov. 6.

"This is our important Community Service Project to help others in the community," a Pack 31 spokesperson said. "We need the support of our community to make this drive a success. We are willing to do the work; we just need the donations. We are willing to collect at both local homes and businesses where employees would like to contribute. We will even drop collection boxes off at businesses if we are contacted."

Cub Scout Pack 31 is based at Dennett Road Elementary School, and chartered by Oakland Elks BPO Lodge.

Jimmie Johnson wins as Kurt Busch increases his lead

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Martinsville, Va.

The Nextel Cup points standings were scrambled yet again as Jimmie Johnson sped to his second consecutive victory on Sunday at Martinsville Speedway, while Dale Earnhardt Jr. had a disastrous points day, finishing 33rd and dropping from second to third in the standings.

The most consistent driver was points leader Kurt Busch, who has made it through five events in the 10-race Chase for the Nextel Cup without a finish worse than sixth. He was fifth Sunday, behind Johnson, Jamie McMurray, Ryan Newman and Sterling Marlin, and his points lead increased from 24 over Earnhardt to 96 over second-place Jeff Gordon with four races left to run.

Busch, who led four times for an event-leading 120 laps, said he wasn't points racing at the finish. He said the new Chase format, adopted this season, doesn't allow a driver to take it easy and protect a points lead, so he was trying as hard as he could to gain spots in the closing laps.

"Five points means everything the way this new system is set up," he said. "We couldn't quite get by [Marlin] at the end."

Earnhardt started third in the Subway 500 and, based on qualifying and practice speeds, appeared to be set to close the points gap on Busch. But his car didn't seem to want to turn properly in the corners and he was never a front-runner.

"We changed a lot of things during pit stops and nothing helped," Earnhardt said.

He had fallen three laps behind when the transmission broke in his No. 8 Chevrolet, and he lost 15 more laps in the pits while his crew repaired the car. Upon returning to the track, he ran into Dale Jarrett, bringing out the caution on Lap 410. Then he and Kyle Petty crashed in Turn 2 on Lap 467, sending him to the garage for good.

"That was just an insult to injury," he said. "It was a tough day . . . one thing after the other."

Earnhardt managed a smile as he climbed from his car for the final time and seemed somewhat upbeat about his prospects in the Bass Pro Shops MBNA 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway this weekend.

"I think we'll have a good run," he said. "We usually do this kind of thing — go have a bad week then have a good week.

"But it's unfortunate about the championship with the points."

The format for the Chase seems to penalize drivers more for bad finishes than it rewards them for good ones.

Jimmie Johnson, who dominated the points race in midsummer before the start of the Chase, dropped to ninth in points, 247 behind the leader, three weeks ago because of finishes of 37th at Talladega and 32nd at Kansas. He won the previous week at Lowe's Motor Speedway and again Sunday at Martinsville, moving up to fourth in the standings, but he's still 207 points behind Busch.

Gordon finished ninth in the Subway 500, and although he moved up one position in the standings, he fell 22 points further behind Busch.

Title talk doesn't distract Busch

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Martinsville, Va.

Nextel Cup points leader Kurt Busch said that while those around him are beginning to talk about the championship, he's taking things one day at a time, beginning with qualifying for next week's Bass Pro Shops MBNA 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

"Our sponsors are getting excited and the team is definitely feeling a bit closer to things, but we have to definitely look at each event individually and each day individually with qualifying in Atlanta that's coming [Friday]," Busch said after finishing fifth in the Subway 500 at Martinsville and boosting his points lead from 24 over Dale Earnhardt Jr. to 96 over new runner-up Jeff Gordon.

Plenty of contact

There were more than the usual number of fender-benders at Martinsville — 17 caution periods for 125 laps — and they largely were due to a new paving job that resulted in a one-groove racing surface.

As expected, several drivers used their bumpers to send messages.

Even mild-mannered Carl Edwards rammed Earnhardt Jr. in disgust after being spun on Lap 291.

"I had to run up there to his door and let him know that I don't appreciate him spinning me out," Edwards said.

Rusty Wallace bumped teammate Ryan Newman after the race to show his displeasure over a Lap 493 incident between the two that dropped Wallace from second place to 10th while Newman took third.

"I told [Newman] to stay out of my way and I could win the race, but he didn't do it," Wallace said.

Newman's reply: "I don't guess Rusty and I are on speaking terms right now. I was underneath him, and I know he came down on me. I wasn't going to give him anything, so he got loose and lost a bunch of spots.

"Our car was faster than his at the end. I'm not sure he's aware of that, but he will be."

Unfamiliar place

Jeff Green had the No. 43 Dodge in a position it hadn't been recently — among the leaders for most of the race. He ran as high as fourth and finished seventh, the team's best performance in more than two years.

Tragedy clouds Johnson's victory

By RICK MINTER

Martinsville, Va.

It was a surreal scene at Martinsville Speedway Sunday as the four drivers from Hendrick Motorsports were battling on the race track while NASCAR officials and others were preparing to inform them that a plane carrying 10 of their team members and associates had crashed en route to the track.

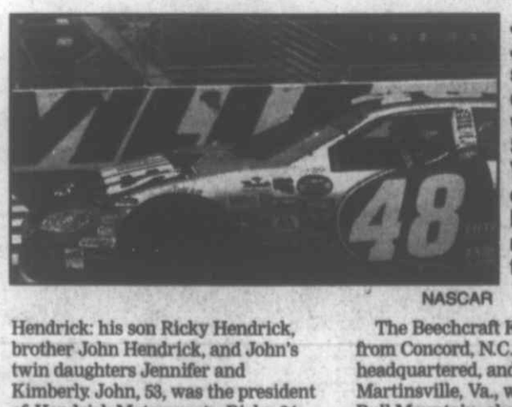
Jimmie Johnson took the checkered flag, did the usual celebratory burnout on the frontstretch, then was told by his publicist that the team plane had crashed, and the 10 on board were presumed dead.

He and the rest of the Hendrick drivers and crew members were ushered from the garage while the crowd lingered in a stunned silence after hearing NASCAR spokesman Jim Hunter explain why Johnson wouldn't be going to Victory Lane.

Eight passengers and two pilots died in the crash, a spokesman with the National Transportation Safety Board said.

The victims included four relatives of Hendrick Motorsports CEO Rick Hendrick: his son Ricky Hendrick, brother John Hendrick, and John's twin daughters Jennifer and Kimberly. John, 53, was the president of Hendrick Motorsports. Ricky, 24, was a former driver who owned the Busch Series team that fields the entry driven by Kyle Busch.

Also killed were five Hendrick Motorsports employees: general manager Jeff Turner; Randy Dorton, who ran the company's engine program; driver Tony Stewart's pilot, Scott Latham, and company pilots Dick Tracey and Liz Morrison. The 10th victim, Joe Jackson, was an executive with DuPont, which sponsors Jeff Gordon's car.



NASCAR

Jimmie Johnson salutes the crowd after winning Sunday. No Victory Lane celebration was held following news of the team tragedy.

The Beechcraft King Air departed from Concord, N.C., where the team is headquartered, and was headed to Martinsville, Va., when it crashed into Bull Mountain, about 10 miles west of the airport, shortly after 12:30 p.m.

Hendrick Motorsports, one of the powerhouse teams in NASCAR, had four drivers in the race — Johnson, Gordon, Terry Labonte and Brian Vickers.

Now in its 20th year of NASCAR competition, Hendrick Motorsports has won 128 races and five championships in the elite Nextel Cup circuit, three titles in the Craftsman Truck Series and one in the Busch circuit.

Truck win gives McMurray racing triumvirate

By RICK MINTER

Martinsville, Va.

Jamie McMurray became the eighth driver in NASCAR history to win in all three of the top divisions when he drove his No. 2 Dodge to victory in Saturday's Kroger 200 Craftsman Truck Series race at Martinsville Speedway.

McMurray took the lead when Travis Kvapil and Jack Sprague crashed while racing for the top spot with 27 laps to go then held off Dennis Setzer, Bobby Labonte, Jon Wood and Ted Musgrave for his first truck win in 24 starts.

Setzer's runner-up finish, coupled with Bobby Hamilton's misfortunes, resulted in a major shake-up in the points standings.

Hamilton entered the Kroger 200 with a 79-point lead over Setzer but finished 26th after losing 18 laps due to a punctured radiator and flat tire.

He dropped to second in points, one behind Setzer. Musgrave, who is third in points, closed the gap from 165 behind the leader to 91, and fourth-place Carl Edwards chopped his deficit from 173 to 122 with three races to go.

McMurray joins Greg Biffle, Bobby Hamilton, Kevin Harvick, Terry Labonte, Mark Martin, Ken Schrader and Jimmy Spencer as drivers who have won in the Cup, Busch and Craftsman Truck series. McMurray has five wins in Busch and one apiece in Cup and trucks.

New Playground Design Unveiled At Crellin School

The new playground design for Crellin School was unveiled recently as the students sang songs, performed skits, and read stories about the history of their community.

The kindergarten class wore engineer's caps and blew train whistles to let the audience know how important trains were to the establishment of the town of Crellin. The first and second graders sang songs.

The fifth grade class presented a skit written by Becky and Stephanie Shahan titled "Coal County." This play portrayed the role of the company store in the life of the coal mining families in Crellin early in the 20th century. The fourth grade class wrote original words to the tune of "This Land is Your Land" which shared the history of their community from its beginning as a logging town to present day Henline's Auction and Gibson's Store.

The hallway was filled with a model of Crellin in 1921 – including the Preston Railway, dioramas showing coal mine conditions, the sawmill, and the popular gun club – which demonstrated the students' expanded knowledge of their community's history. Tourist brochures touting the wonderful qualities of the town once known as Sunshine were created by the third and fourth grade.

These projects were created with the help of their teachers as students researched the history of Crellin. Students toured their community, the Historical Museum, and the Railroad Station. Guest speakers shared their personal memories and memorabilia.

Crellin Elementary PTO contracted with Leathers and Associates of Ithaca, N.Y., to design a playground based upon the history of Crellin. One day, called Design Day, engineer Lisa DeShano interviewed each student, teacher, and many community members to determine dreams and expectations for a new playground. After three hours of interviewing, she spent eight hours putting the ideas into a workable design that will become the "community's dream come true," said Dana McCauley, principal.

Construction of the playground is tentatively scheduled for late spring of 2005. A comprehensive list of needed supplies will be made available as early as next month for all who are interested in taking part in this project.

The Leathers and Associates engineers will be present at the five-day playground raising, but volunteers will complete all labor.

McCauley said she was very impressed by the level of organization and professionalism exhibited by the firm. "They have thought of everything from the provision of meals, to child care, to including the students' artwork. Fundraising will continue all winter with the help of every family represented in our school," she said.

"The staff of Crellin Elementary and the members of the Crellin community want the students to be proud of where they live. Students have gained the skills and knowledge to share the history of their home with friends, family, and even the next generation."

NEW PLAYGROUND DESIGN READY FOR CRELLIN – Todd Hinebaugh, parent, and Lisa DeShano, engineer with Leathers and Associates of Ithaca, N.Y., recently unveiled the new proposed playground design for Crellin Elementary School. The evening was also full of songs, skits, and readings portraying the history of the community. See story.

'Lost' actor started out playing junior sleuth

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q: Am I correct that the young man who hid his drugs in the airplane bathroom during the pilot episode of ABC's "Lost" is the same lad who played Hetty Wainthropp's assistant in that British mystery series? –M.J. Cordell via e-mail.

A: Nice catch! Yes, Dominic Monaghan makes his American TV series debut at age 27 as Charlie in "Lost." He first attracted attention in this country as fledgling sleuth Geoffrey Shawcross in the popular British mystery series "Hetty Wainthropp Investigates," starring Patricia Routledge.

Of course, to an international moviegoing audience, Monaghan also is known as courageous hobbit Meriadoc "Merry" Brandybuck in Peter Jackson's Oscar-winning epic trilogy "The Lord of the Rings," although Monaghan recently told me he doesn't get mobbed by autograph seekers.

"I don't really look like Merry without the wig and hobbit feet on," he explains, "so people don't generally recognize me when they see me out on the street. I usually get people just staring at me in that 'Where do I know you from?' way."

Q: Why was the actress who played Sydney, the oldest daughter, on "Hope & Faith" replaced this season? –Len Maio via e-mail.

A: In fine-tuning the character dynamics on the show, the writers and producers wanted to make oldest daughter Sydney a little wilder and headstrong, qualities for which they deemed new actress Megan Fox to be a better fit than the original player, Nicole Paggi.

That's a tough break for Paggi, but such creative changes are common in television these days.

Dominic Monaghan

Q: Is Christopher Meloni ("Law & Order: Special Victims Unit") married? Any children? –Betty, Wildwood Crest, N.J.

A: Yes, the 43-year-old Meloni, who recently completed work on the upcoming feature film "Pretty Persuasion," has been married to production designer Sherman Williams since 1995. They have two children, Sophia Eva Pietra, 3, and Dante Amadeo, born in January.

Q: My mother insists that Amanda Seyfried, who plays Lilly on UPN's new "Veronica Mars," also played Chandler's new girlfriend on a few episodes of "7th Heaven" last season. Wasn't that a different actress on "7th Heaven"? –Katy Malone, Citrus Heights, Calif.

A: Yes, you're right. Seyfried never appeared on "7th Heaven." That was an actress named Leighton Meester playing Kendall, Chandler's (Jeremy London) new girlfriend.

Past National Commander To Speak At American Legion Post 71 Pig Roast

JOHN A. BRIEDEN III

Oakland Proctor Kildow American Legion Post 71 will hold its 73rd annual Pig Roast on Friday, Nov. 5, at 6 p.m. Featured guest speaker will be John A. Brieden III, immediate past national commander of the American Legion.

Legion members are encouraged to attend. The event is open to those who are current with their Post 71 dues payment for 2005.

Brieden was born in Freer, Texas, and received a bachelor's degree in business administration from Texas A&M University. He was designated a distinguished military graduate and commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Brieden served as an infantry officer from June 1972 to April 1977. During this period he was a platoon leader, company executive officer, company commander, assistant battalion operations officer, and an assistant division operations officers.

His training included ranger, jungle warfare, and Artic warfare schools, and the infantry officer basic course, where he graduated second in his class.

Brieden was selected to serve in the 1st Battalion 75th Infantry (Rangers) when the U.S. Army was first going back to the concept of ranger battalions.

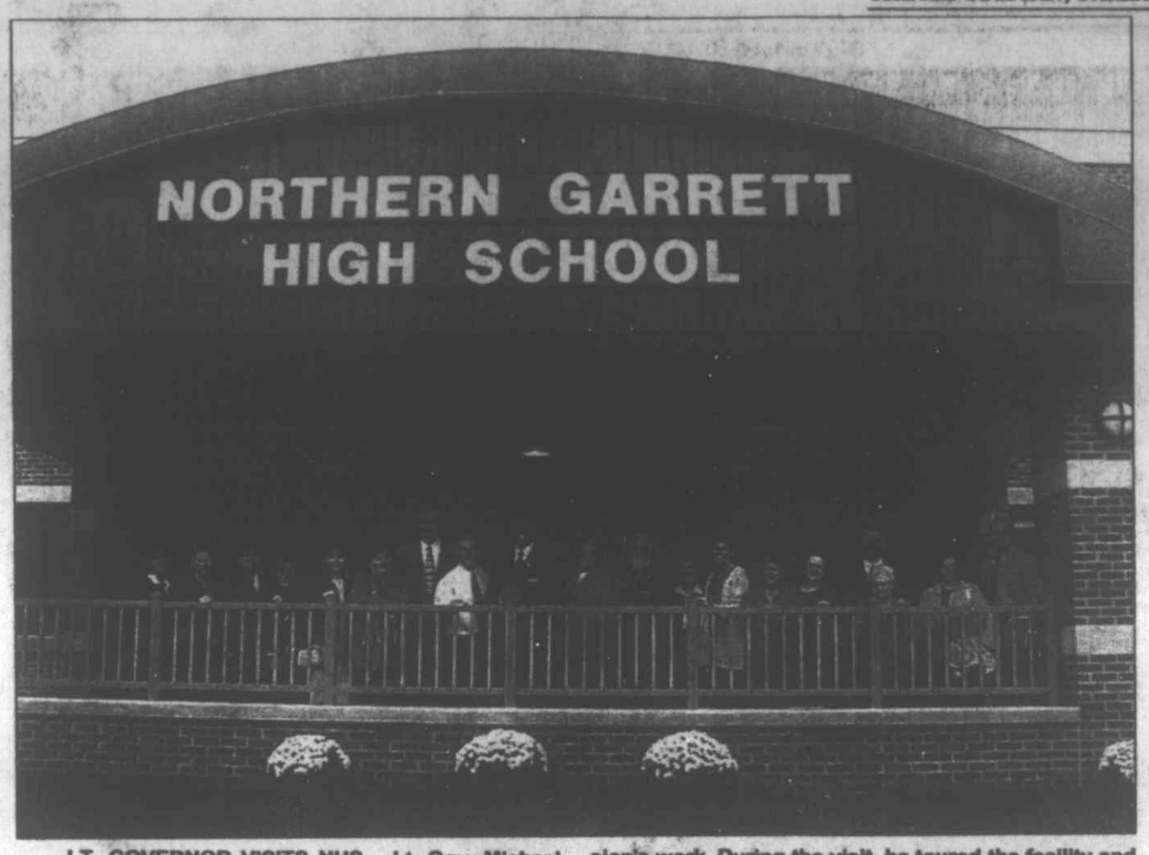
His military decorations include the Solder's Medal for Heroism and two Meritorious Service medals. He received an honorable discharge with the rank of captain.

After his discharge in 1980, Brieden moved to Brenham, Texas, and became a State Farm Insurance agent.

He joined the American Legion in 1979, and for 25 years he has served in key leadership positions at the post, district, department (state), and national level. His national-level appointments as chairman include the National Legislative Commission, the National Economic Commission, the National Foreign Relations Commission, and the National Americanism Council.

The past commander has also served as a member of Congressman Kevin Brady's Military Academy Selection Committee, was appointed by the Texas governor in 1998 to the Texas Veterans Commission, and served a term as secretary of that commission in 2000 and 2001.

Brieden and his wife Terry have four children and five grandchildren.



LT. GOVERNOR VISITS NHS – Lt. Gov. Michael Steele visited Northern High School last week to discuss issues relevant to the Governor's Commission on Quality Education in Maryland. In addition to his duties as chair of the commission, Lt. Gov. Steele will visit schools across the state to meet with educators, parents, administrators, students, community leaders, and others to collect critical data for the commission's work. During the visit, he toured the facility and participated in student interaction and a private discussion with a focus group comprising a cross section of the school community. Steele also visited West Side Elementary School in Cumberland. Above, Steele stands with county commissioners, board of education members, and other school personnel in front of the newly renovated school entrance.

Living History Program To Bring 1750-Era Garrett Camp To Life

The stories of 1750s-era "frontiersmen" and "Indians" at a local trading post and encampment will come to life from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 20, in the Bittinger area. The living history program will take place at the Western Maryland 4-H Center, located off Bittinger Road between Rock Lodge and New Germany roads.

The program will feature actual encampments, trading post of artifacts, historical characters in period dress, movies, and authentic colonial cooking. In conjunction with the event, over 170 Garrett County students and teachers will visit the encampment on Friday, Nov. 19, to travel back in time for the 251st anniversary of Col. George Washington's first expedition through Garrett County.

"This is a chance to learn what life was like when George Washington passed through Garrett County and to try some frontier cooking," said Charlie Ross, president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the event.

"George Washington got his start here," said committee member Jack Caruthers. "He found out he could lead men in combat."

"This is a good time to focus on George Washington," added colonial America historian Robert Adamovich, who leads some of the programs as a map maker. "He is the common denominator of everything that happened between 1753 and 1758."

A noted author and lecturer, Adamovich serves as an elected member of the board of directors of the Braddock Road Preservation Association and acting curator of the Rindfuss Museum at Jumonville, Pa.. He is a member of several historical societies, and hosts his own educational television program Historically Speaking, which airs on HSTV.

"It was a young Col. George Washington who lead Colonial militia across northern Garrett County in 1754 heading toward Fort Duquesne," said Ross. "We are going to revisit that time and reconnect with the people who were forming the future of our nation."

Local historian Bob Bantz will lead the students along a public section of Braddock's Trail. The students will have a chance to taste the frontier food, as well as hear from Adamovich and other reenactors.

"This offers a chance for today's students to come face to face with history," said Garrett County teacher Arlene Lantz. Committee member Paul Shogren added that he was pleased with the number of students taking advantage of this opportunity.

Students from Accident, Crellin, and Yough Glades elementary schools and Swan Meadow School will hike and map Nemacolin Trail (later Braddock's Trail) and learn from the reenactors what life was like when George Washington and General Edward Braddock traveled through Garrett County.

REMOVING THE "I'M" FROM "IMPATIENCE"

"Upon the heat and flame of thy distemper Sprinkle cool patience."
-Shakespeare-

MONDAY Psalm 10

TUESDAY Psalm 11

WEDNESDAY Psalm 12

THURSDAY Psalm 75

FRIDAY Psalm 76

SATURDAY Psalm 97

You are standing in line at the supermarket...a long line. There is still dinner to prepare and a meeting at seven, you remember, tapping your foot and biting your lower lip. The "express lane" is not in service. Behind you a customer waits with two items and cash in hand. What will you do?

This is your opportunity to remove the "I'm" from "impatience". The two minutes you will lose by looking outside yourself and letting that customer ahead of you might be far outweighed by the grateful smile you will receive and the warm glow in your heart. This small demonstration of patience could be the most meaningful moment in your busy day...and will make little difference in your evening schedule.

And where might you find this patience? In God's House, you will learn of our Father's patience, mercy, and love for us...His children. This special time of prayer, praise, and fellowship will be the most meaningful in your week. We read in Luke 8:15, "...they are those who, hearing the Word, hold it fast...and bring forth fruit with patience." You have no time to lose. Won't you worship this week?

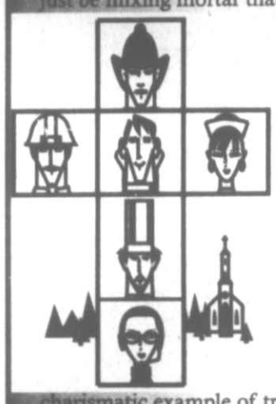
Work With Devotion

There is an old story, perhaps apocryphal, about an architect asking the workmen at a cathedral what they were doing. With tired voices, most replied that they were mixing mortar, moving supplies, or setting bricks; however, one young man enthusiastically replied that he was building a cathedral. What a difference it makes when we see our work in the context of something bigger and much nobler. Although we may euphemistically just be mixing mortar that is an integral part of building the cathedral.



When St. Francis was a young man and was struggling over what to do with his life, he had a conversation experience while praying in an old church. He heard God tell him to rebuild "My church," and taking this message literally, he set to work repairing the decrepit old church. Before long, others joined him in the work and decided to follow his charismatic example of trying to live the gospel as literally as possible. Only then, did it become clear that the noble work of rebuilding this small church was part of the larger work of rebuilding the spiritual church. Creation is the ongoing work of God in the world, and we are all called to be coworkers in this great work. So, whatever you do for a living, realize that it is part of a much larger project than it might first appear. It is larger than mixing mortar, or even than building a church. Indeed it is even larger than rebuilding the spiritual church of God; for we are all engaged in the ongoing work of creation itself.

Whatever your task, work heartily, as serving the Lord and not men, knowing that from the Lord you will receive the inheritanceas your reward...
R.S.V. Colossians 3: 23-24

Wormwood Effective Against Breast Cancer

The wormwood plant provides an herb that has been used for flavoring different alcoholic beverages, and scenting soaps and perfumes. Generally, its use orally is cautioned against because only a very small amount is needed to produce undesirable hallucinations and poisoning in humans. However, it has been used successfully by the Chinese for centuries as a way to fight cancer.

In laboratory experiments, a compound isolated from wormwood extract derivative effectively killed all the human breast cancer cells exposed to it within 16 hours. The derivatives, artemisinim and holo-transferrin, were produced from a "secret Chinese recipe." It is thought that these derivatives showed no effect, but when both derivatives were used, the results were dramatic. After 8 hours, 75% of them were obliterated, and by 16 hours, all were gone. Also noteworthy was that the cancer cells previously resistant to radiation treatment did succumb to the herbal combination.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• 270 million years ago, the continent of Antarctica was mostly covered with forest and marsh.

• Women in America were granted the right to vote in federal elections 1920, but that doesn't mean that women stayed out of the political arena before that. In 1886, the town of Oskaloosa, Kansas, elected a town council made up entirely of women, led by a female mayor.

• The CIA has some clever gadgets for its agents. Some of the gear issued includes: a dagger that can be concealed behind a jacket's lapels, a gun that looks like a cigarette, one that can pass for a tube of toothpaste, and a comb that has secret compartments for suicide capsules and ammunition.

• It was Frenchman Joseph Joubert who observed: "To be capable of respect is today almost as rare as to be worthy of it." Think it sounds like a condemnation of modern times? Not so; he said this all the way back in the early 1800s.

• In modern times, the word "knight" has connotations of chivalry and honor, but it didn't always bring to people's minds the image of a shining hero. When it was first used, in the year 900, it simply referred to a young man. In the 10th century, male servants were called "knights"; 200 years later its usage began to resemble today's — by then, mounted soldiers were referred to as "knights." It wasn't until the 16th century that it began being used as a non-military honor awarded for a one's service to the country — as it is used today in Great Britain.

• With December rapidly approaching, here's something to keep in mind: The average American spent $835 on holiday gifts in 2003.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Nov. 1, 1512, the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel in Rome, one of Italian artist Michelangelo's finest works, is exhibited to the public for the first time. "The Creation of Adam" was among his epic ceiling frescoes, which took years to complete.

• On Nov. 3, 1928, cartoon star Mickey Mouse appears in "Steamboat Willie," an animated short produced by Walt Disney. "Steamboat Willie" was the first fully synchronized sound cartoon ever produced, with Mickey's squeaky voice provided by Walt Disney himself.

• On Nov. 4, 1939, the first air-conditioned car, a Packard prototype, debuts at the 40th National Automobile Show in Chicago. Despite widespread acclaim, the expensive accessory would not be within the reach of the average American for several decades.

• On Nov. 6, 1946, actress Sally Field is born in Pasadena, Calif. Field knew as a child that she wanted to act, and by age 17 she had landed the title role in "Gidget," playing a perky teen surfer. She won Best Actress Oscars in 1979, for "Norma Rae," and 1984, for "Places in the Heart."

• On Nov. 5, 1968, in one of the closest elections in U.S. history, Republican challenger Richard Nixon defeats Vice President Hubert Humphrey by less than 500,000 votes. Nixon campaigned on a platform designed to reach the "silent majority" of middle-class and working-class Americans.

• On Nov. 7, 1989, in New York, former Manhattan borough president David Dinkins, a Democrat, is elected New York City's first black mayor, while in Virginia, Lt. Gov. Douglas Wilder, also a Democrat, becomes the first elected black state governor in U.S. history.

• On Nov. 2, 1992, producer, director and screenwriter Hal Roach dies at the age of 100. Roach is best remembered for his silent comedies featuring Laurel and Hardy, Harold Lloyd, and the gaggle of mischievous kids who starred in the "Our Gang" comedies (later known as the Little Rascals).

Cantankerous Cats

Q. My two older cats (about 8 and 9 years old) have me near my wits' end! We got them as kittens, and both were rescues. Each kitten litter-box trained him/herself, and we never had any trouble with accidents.

However, in the past few years, both have become extremely cantankerous and will go elsewhere. At first we thought it was only when the box was not clean to their satisfaction, so we made sure we cleaned it regularly. But sometimes they will do it even if the box is fresh.

I'm beginning to think they are doing it to be spiteful. I would never harm one of them, nor would I leave them at a shelter. But right now I feel I never want another cat after these two are gone. So, my question is twofold: How do I discourage them from going in places other than the litter box, and how do I get rid of the smell? — Michelle P., Lawrenceburg, Ind.

A. Older cats do tend to be picky about their litter boxes! In fact, senior cats present a number of new challenges to pet owners, from more-frequent illnesses to changes in behavior.

Some of the behavioral changes can be due to an undiagnosed disease, which is why I recommend taking your cats to the vet for a complete exam to rule out any illness that they may be sharing. In addition, purchase two new litter boxes and throw out the old one. Encourage each cat to use its own box. They may just not like sharing the box anymore.

Getting rid of the smell is tough. It's best to blot the wet carpet gently to avoid pushing the urine deeper into the carpet; then clean the area with carpet cleaner and blot for a long period (some say overnight) before treating with an enzymatic cleaner. If the cats frequently use the same spot and the smell is bad, you will have to replace that section of carpet and the padding underneath.

Brooklyn Memorabilia

Q. I have an engraved invitation to the grand opening of the Brooklyn Bridge that was issued May 24, 1883. With it is a card personally addressed to my husband's great-grandfather, a Baptist minister who gave the invocation at the ceremony. Where might I find a buyer for these two pieces of Americana? — Barbara, via e-mail

A. Brian Merlis collects memorabilia relating to Brooklyn and Long Island, including maps, documents, relics, badges, brochures and newspapers. He might be able to help you. His address is P.O. Box 14, Lynbrook, NY 11563.

Q. I have a clock that was manufactured by the Ansonia Clock Company of New York. I would like to find out more about it. — Jule, Pueblo West, Colo.

A. Most basic questions about clocks and their values can be easily found in an excellent reference book available at most book stores, the Antique Trader Clocks and Price Guide, edited by Kyle Husfloen (Krause Publications, $17.95). It provides a comprehensive reference to timepieces from the 17th through the 20th centuries with listings for some 1,400 clocks with accurate pricing information for each. This book may be also be ordered from the publisher's toll-free telephone number, 1-888-457-2873.

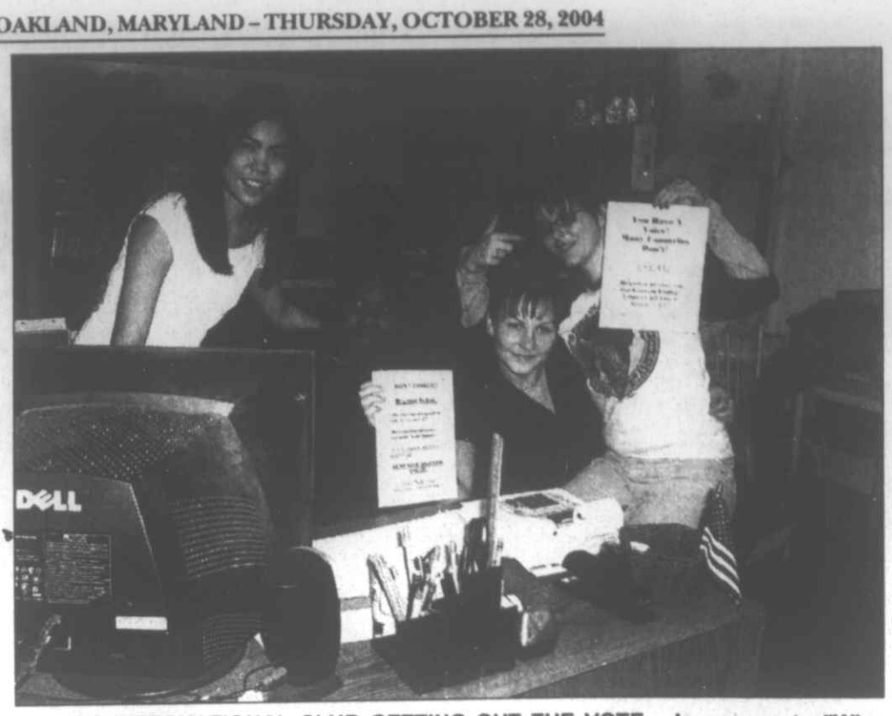
GC International Club Well Into Busy Semester

Cultural diversity, a stated goal of student life at Garrett College, has become a campus reality with the organization of the International Club, whose eleven members come from five different countries–Croatia, Estonia, India, Thailand, and the United States.

Led by president Kerri Jurimae of Estonia, members of the club are participating in a number of community activities, helping with campus events, and planning their own projects this fall semester. In October, a group of members attended the Forest Festival in Elkins, W.Va., and the Estonia travelogue lecture delivered by Dr. Steve Herman. The club also sponsored a two-day bake sale on campus, and members will assist with the Garrett College Haunted House, a benefit for the House of Hope set for 7-9 p.m. tonight, Thursday, Oct. 28, at the McHenry campus.

Club members have also made posters to remind people to register to vote and are planning to have their first international dinner next week featuring food from Thailand at the home of the club advisor, Darlene Preston. In November they will go to West Virginia University to see The Kolonists, a play depicting the emergence of Estonia as a free nation after 50 years of Soviet domination. In December the group is planning a trip to Baltimore.



GC INTERNATIONAL CLUB GETTING OUT THE VOTE – In answer to "Why bother?" citizens who are considering not voting in the upcoming elections may want to take a look at the sign held by these members of Garrett College's International Club. Pictured from the left are Sasikarn Nirantranon, Jonathan Okon, Kristina Kask, and Karen Gallagher as they remind U.S. citizens that voting is not just a right – it's a responsibility.

Officers of the International Club are president Jurimae, vice president Sasikarn Nirantranon of Thailand, secretary Karen Gallagher of the United States, treasurer Priya Paramanandhan of India, public relations officer Kristina Kask of Estonia, and Student Government Association representative Jonathan Okon of the U.S.

Other club members are Ivo Kuutma and Kalle Rattasepp of Estonia, Ivan Funcic of Croatia, and Clinton Durham and Sonja Hollenthoner of the USA.

"We are getting to know each other and having fun," said Kask, a first-semester freshman at Garrett. "At every other meeting one of us talks about our native country and tells about our customs and culture."

Membership in the International Club is open to everyone who would like to become familiar with different cultures. The club meets every Wednesday at noon in Room 203 of the Continuing Education and Training Center.

Anyone desiring further information about the International Club may call Judy Carbone, who will become advisor to the club in November, at 301-387-3046.

Local Youth "Play Hard, Live Clean" At Rocktoberfest

Roughly 200 Garrett County youth made Rocktoberfest a successful addition to the "Play Hard, Live Clean" campaign, according to a Garrett County Health Department spokesperson. Held in Oakland as part of the recent Autumn Glory festivities, Rocktoberfest provided an opportunity for young people ages 10 through 20 to enjoy music and fall activities in a drug-, alcohol-, and tobacco-free atmosphere.

"Upon entering, each person signed a Play Hard, Live Clean pledge card and answered a question about the assets in his or her life, such as who builds them up or whom they admire," said Sadie Liller, aka Dr. Fun, of the Health Department. "Then they were free to dance, climb, and have a good time."

Prior to the event, Liller, teen volunteers, and prevention specialist Brenda Frazee passed out Rocktoberfest invitations to youth and teens at the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department's Oktoberfest celebration.

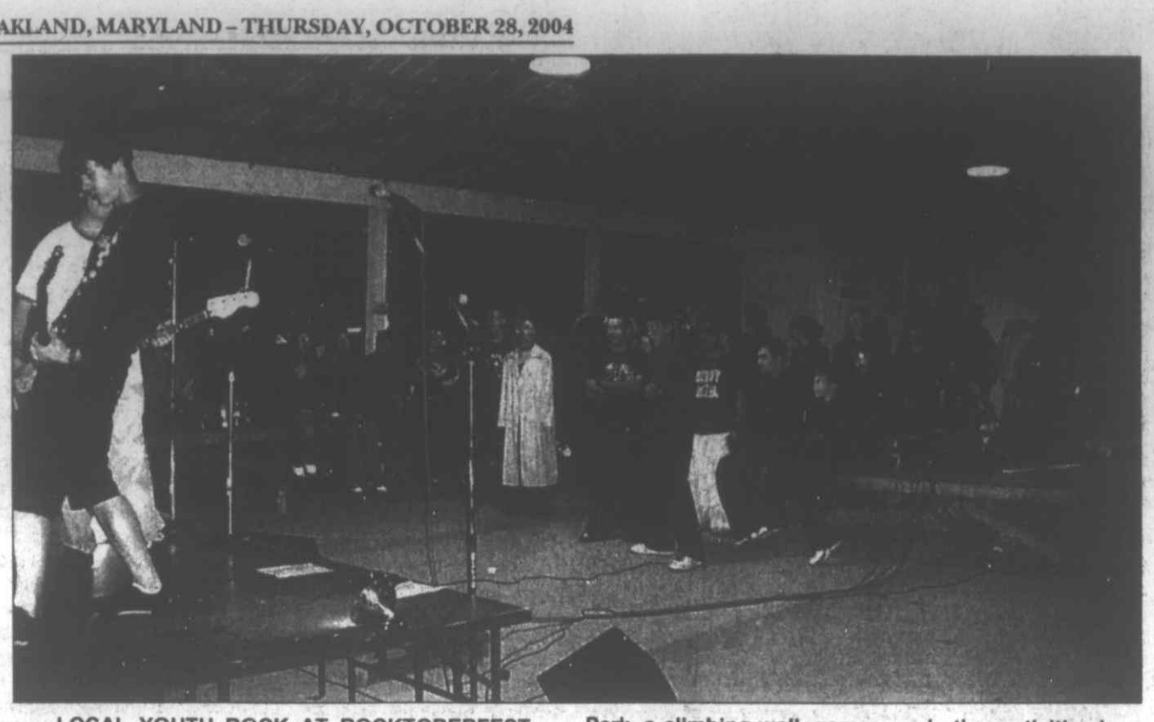
"The fire department had suggested that a simultaneous event for youth and teens would be a great addition, which sounded like a good idea to many others," said the spokesperson.

"The Play Hard, Live Clean team, the Combating Underage Drinking Committee, and the Oakland Town Council worked together to create Rocktoberfest, giving youth a substance-free event to enjoy," said Kendra Todd of the combating Underage Drinking Committee.

The celebration featured music by the bands High Pressure, Dead Bury Dead, and On Winter's Misery. Other entertainment included Pandora's Box teen health theatre group hosting a haunted walk in Rotary Park, an inflatable climbing wall, and "Hay Fever," where participants searched for door prize tokens in a giant haystack. Door prizes were donated by businesses such as Cove Run Farms, Crellin Service Station, Markwood Citigo, 135 Liberty, Reel Video, Wal-Mart Supercenter, and W.C. Taylor Inc.

"A number of people and groups pulled together to make Rocktoberfest successful," said Todd. "Barry and Debbie Frazee allowed us to use equipment that made giving out free popcorn possible. The Oakland Town Police checked in periodically. Ken Perrin and the Little Yough Music Festival provided the sound system. Parents and community members helped with setup, and Smiley's Pizzeria was on hand to sell food. Most importantly, the young people themselves donated their time and talents to provide music, the haunted walk, and assistance with cleaning up after the event."

Play Hard, Live Clean is a four-season campaign that encourages Garrett County youth to have fun without alcohol, drugs, or tobacco. Rocktoberfest is an initiative of the Combating Underage Drinking Committee and Health Communities • Health Youth: Garrett County, and was supported by funds from the Garrett County Highway Safety Program, the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Administration, the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention through the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc./ LMB, and the Health Department.



LOCAL YOUTH ROCK AT ROCKTOBERFEST – Approximately 200 local youth and teens choose to "Play Hard, Live Clean" at the recent Rocktoberfest, which was held in Oakland as part of the Autumn Glory festivities. The young people, ages 10 through 20, enjoyed music, dancing, a haunted walk in Rotary Park, a climbing wall, games, and other activities in a substance-free atmosphere. See story. Pictured above, the band High Pressure entertains the crowd. Below is Dr. Fun (aka Sadie Liller) from the Garrett County Health Department with Max Liller, winner of the door prize in the Hay Fever game.

HOW DO SURVIVORS CLAIM EXEMPTION?

We've recently discussed your options when you want to maximize the value of your home for retirement. But what if you're married and experience the unexpected loss of your spouse? It's unpleasant to consider, but we all know that it's wise to understand now what to do, instead of try to make a decision under the stress and trauma of such tragic events.

Married couples who satisfy some basic requirements can claim a deduction on the profit of the sale of their home – up to $500,000. Single homeowners can claim up to $250,000. Which situation applies if one spouse outlives the other?

The full $500,000 exemption is available until the end of the tax year in which both spouses would have filed jointly. After the end of that first year, the exemption reverts back to the single, or $250,000 value.

Before you do anything, consult a real estate professional or tax adviser, because the situation can get complicated. For instance, if your spouse has left you his or her half of the home, a higher basis determines the market value. Then it all depends on whether you live in a "community property" state.

Obviously, it's important to discuss the options with your spouse and a professional in the business. I encourage you to take steps now to guarantee your peace of mind in the future.

If you'd like to sell your home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

Farming On The Mountaintop

Md. Ag. Secretary, Commission Tours Garrett, Allegany Farms

Maryland Secretary of Agricultural Lewis R. Riley, members of Maryland's Agricultural Commission, and staffers from the state's Department of Agriculture visited western Maryland earlier this month to tour six farms in Garrett and Allegany counties.

"Each year the Maryland Agricultural Commission tours two counties in the fall and two counties in the spring," a spokesperson explained. "The tour allows the 24 members of the Maryland Ag Commission to better understand the type of agriculture and economic conditions in all parts of the state."

A governor-appointed volunteer board that meets monthly with Department of Agriculture leaders, the Maryland Agriculture Commission formulates and develops proposals for the advancement of agriculture and advises the secretary on matters pertaining to the agriculture industry. The 24 members of the commission represent over 20 different agricultural commodities and 10 counties.

The group's first stop in Garrett County was a tour of the Cove Run Dairy Farm and Corn Maze hosted by owners and operators Robert and Alice Bender. The commission learned about the advantages of diversifying the farming operation through agri-tourism and about the challenges of operating a fee charging business on the farm.

The second stop in Garrett County was at Dan and Irene Yoder's operation in Pleasant Valley, where the Yoders explained their high tunnel raspberry and hydroponic tomato enterprises to the commission.

The final Garrett stop was hosted by Fire Fly Farms, home to Maryland's only certified goat dairy and goat cheese-making plant. The Bittinger area operation is owned and operated by Ron Brenneman and Mike Koch.

The first tour stop in Allegany County was a farm operated by Lawrence and Ed Crossland near Midland. The Crosslands are working toward operating a farm to market high-quality dairy replacement animals utilizing embryo transplant technology. The Crosslands also explained efforts to revitalize land that had been previously mined for coal.

J&B Farms near Flintstone was the second stop in Allegany County. J&B Farms markets fresh vegetables utilizing high tunnels to bring the crop to the market earlier in the summer. The farm also operates a corn maze to extend farm income later into the fall.

The final stop on the tour was a farm owned Brent D'Atri, who operates a small cow-calf and horse farm. The farm's innovative conservation practices, which have included field trials with new varieties of fescues, were explained by Ben Cooper and Carl Robinette of the Allegany County Natural Resource and Conservation Service.

In addition to the tours, the Ag Commission also hosted two public hearings, one in Garrett and one in Allegany County, to provide citizens with an opportunity to voice concerns and make suggestions to the Ag Commission. These comments have been forwarded to Secretary Riley and his staff.

Persons who were not able to attend the public hearing and would who like to make comments to the Ag Commission may contact its executive director, Gilbert O. (Buddy) Bowling, at 410-841-5882.

SOME CORNY GOINGS-ON were part of the recent western Maryland tour by Maryland's Agriculture Commission, as the group took a stroll through the Cove Run Farm Corn Maze of Bob and Alice Bender. The commission, and state Department of Agriculture representatives including Secretary Lewis R. Riley, visited Garrett and Allegany county farming operations to gain insight into the state of agriculture and the economy in the area. Pictured, from the left, are Bob Bender, as he hosts Ag Commission member Julie Feeser and commission chairman Doug Green. See story.

Local Agronomy Team Competing At FFA Convention

The Northern Garrett FFA Chapter is competing this week in the National FFA Agronomy Career Development Event (CDE) in Louisville, Ky., during the 2004 National FFA Convention.

Members of the team are Becky Berkebile, Lacie Berkebile, Randi Rodeheaver, and Bridgette Welch. The team is coached by Larry Deal.

"Students are given the opportunity to enhance problem solving capabilities, communication skills, and teamwork through the creation of a management plan related to crop and soil sciences," said Candice Murphy, career development event program manager.

The agronomy participants will compete in all facets of the agronomic industry, from crop and weed identification to integrated pest management. Skills in soil identification and analysis as well as the ability to make sound managerial decisions are also tested.

"Students will be challenged to work both alone, as well as with a team, during the day-and-a-half event," said a National FFA Organization spokesperson.

Bayer CropScience sponsors the National FFA Agronomy CDE as a special project of the National FFA Foundation. It is one of 23-career development events held annually at the national FFA convention, according to the spokesperson.

The U.S. sheep industry has experienced a continual drop in profitability and because of this the Secretary of Agriculture has announced the Ewe Lamb Replacement and Retention Payment Program (ELRRPP) in which the USDA will provide the U.S. lamb industry with $18 million in payments to sheep and lamb producers to encourage the replacement and retention of ewe lamb breeding stock.

Producers will receive direct payments for ewe lambs purchased or retained during the period of August 1, 2003 through July 31, 2004 to help relieve economic hardships suffered by the domestic lamb and sheep industry.

Eligible sheep and lamb operations may include the following who are engaged in an operation that raises sheep and lambs in the United States for sale: (1) individuals who have beneficial interest and financial risk in the operation and are citizens or legal resident aliens of the United States; (2) corporations, partnerships, joint operations, estates, associations, cooperatives, and other business enterprises whose members are citizens or legal resident aliens of the United States; (3) Indian tribe of the Indian-Self Determination and Education Assistance Act; (4) Indian organization or entity chartered under the Indian Reorganization Act; and (5) economic enterprise under the Indian Financing Act of 1974.

To be eligible for a ewe lamb payment, the sheep and lamb operation must: (1) have purchased or retained ewe lambs for breeding purposes between August 1, 2003 and July 31, 2004; (2) have retained the qualifying ewe lambs in the herd for at least one complete offspring lambing cycle; (3) been engaged in the business of producing and marketing agricultural products at the time of filing the application (4) not have received funds under the Lamb Meat Adjustment Assistance Program (LMAAP); (5) certify that the ewe lamb met all the qualifying characteristics at the same time during at least part of the base period; and (6) apply for payment during the application period beginning October 25, 2004. An ending sign-up date has not yet been announced. Late-filed applications will not be approved.

To be eligible for a ewe lamb payment, the ewe lambs during at least part of the base period must (1) not have been older than 18 months; (2) not have produced an offspring; and (3) be in compliance with all requirements relating to scrapie.

In addition to the above ewe lamb requirements, ewe lambs must not possess parrot mouth, foot rot, or scrapie at any time during the base period.

Eligible purchased ewe lambs are those that were acquired during August 1, 2003, through July 31, 2004, from a seller for a determined amount of money for which possession and delivery takes place at the time of payment. Eligible retained ewe lambs are those ewe lambs kept in the possession of the sheep and lamb operation during the base period through one complete offspring lambing cycle. All ewe lambs that were born before February 1, 2002, are ineligible for benefits.

Sheep and lamb operations that purchased or retained ewe lambs for breeding purposes and that have since produced an offspring before the availability of ELRRPP are eligible for payment as long as the ewe lamb had not produced the offspring at some point during the base period and at the same time met all other requirements. The FSA office may review farm management and breeding records to verify the producer's certification.

Sheep and lamb producers who receive payment for ewe lambs that die before completing the eligibility requirements must refund the payments for those lambs when the total deaths exceed 10 percent per program year. Documentation must be maintained for any deaths of eligible ewe lambs.

For further information regarding the Ewe Lamb Replacement and Retention Payment Program, visit the Farm Service Agency located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, telephone (304) 329-1923, or fax (304) 329-3056.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

It's really hard to tell what motivated someone to break my mailbox totally off its post last night. I hope it wasn't because I have Kerry signs. Perhaps it was a reaction to something I have written in this column that someone resented or which made them angry. I sometimes take liberty in expressing my opinions, and perhaps once in a while influence some other person.

I am glad that none of the writers of The Republican avoid controversy or object to someone who sometimes strays from the mainstream. It makes one think how risky the job is for a serious journalist. Perhaps it was someone who just felt like destroying something. How sad.

If it was out of political anger or because of something I may have written here, we have problems. It is hard to believe these things happen in America. Here we are supposed to have freedom to believe what we feel is right, and to have the right to express those beliefs. Our diversity is one of our greatest strengths. I don't think that the person who smashed my mailbox thought about what a difficult problem they presented me in not feeling safe in Bittinger. I never expected that I would someday be afraid of living in Bittinger, if only for a moment. Along with the concern that someone would randomly destroy someone's private property, the expense can be major. I know that I am sometimes "out of the mainstream" of Bittinger because I have never been a hunter, and am often more liberal politically than some. But I have been a lifelong resident here and feel like a member of the community. This is where my family has lived for generations. I come from a family and community of strong women.

I heard that the removal of Kerry signs is not only a problem on Rock Lodge. I've heard that an elderly gentleman in Friendsville desperately wants his sign replaced that was taken from his place. Folks in Grantsville also report missing signs. I agree with that owner that the strength and resolve to vote and speak one's mind publicly takes much more courage than it takes to attempt to suppress an opinion that is different from one's own. Only pity can be extended to those who don't realize that participation, not suppression, is the American way.

We are still in a fog in Bittinger. And it is not just in our minds. The low clouds hang low to the mountains with enough rain that it seems we are always in the middle of a wet cloud. The spring on Rock Lodge is not running. Surely it can't be a groundwater problem. Maybe it is just the time of year, or there is a problem with the pipes. The rain took a big toll on our autumn color. The leaves just fall to the ground. At this time of year if you want to see autumn color, you have to look under your feet, not up to the trees and sky. There is still some beautiful scenery to be found in this neck of the woods.

I was very grateful to see the weather forecast call for a warmer trend this week. I hate to run my new furnace before the snow flies, especially with the price of heating oil. But teenage girls like to stay warm, so I run that furnace. It seems they never want to put on all those extra clothes to keep themselves warm. They believe that "Life is a Beach" and you should dress that way.

I just hope for clear skies later this week for the lunar eclipse Wednesday evening, but right now I am not feeling optimistic about it. It seems they are calling for good weather Tuesday, but I have no trust that we can hang in there for two days in a row. It would be a lot to ask for. I also want so much for some good weather this weekend, when the "Angel Bells" crew will be working to fix my leaky roof. Thank goodness for this group, who believes one of their jobs in life is to help their neighbors, rather than being centered on self. Without their help I would not have been able to afford the repairs.

I have experienced and observed the generosity of the folks around here in giving of themselves, not necessarily in money, but in support of each other. We still have a huge difference even in this area between the great homes being built in this area and the poorer dwellings. It has been my experience that this is a generous community, and even those with limited finances will open their wallets to help those in need. Perhaps it is because people here know what "hard times" can mean, and many have lived through them.

I wish more people would read or watch the movie To Kill a Mockingbird. I recently rewatched it on TV. I would vote willingly for that wonderful country lawyer for president. He showed such courage in

Treatments For This Platelet Disorder

A blood condition known as idiopathic thrombocytopenic purpura (ITP) is an autoimmune disease. Specifically among those affected, the body produces defensive antibodies that act against the person's own platelets in the blood. As a result, the platelet count drops to extremely low levels (medical term for this is thrombocytopenia). The main symptoms of ITP include excessive bleeding and bruising. Tiny red dots often appear in the skin, gums may bleed, and blood may appear in the urine or stool. Bleeding is harder to stop as the number of platelets continues to drop. Chronic ITP is most common in women ages 20-50.

Although treatment of bleeding emergencies and platelet transfusions are considered the main therapies, several drugs are also effectively used to treat ITP. Because antibody production is the cause of ITP, treatment with steroids can help. Intravenous use of immune globulin (IVIG) can interrupt the antibodies from destroying more platelets. In people for whom steroids don't work, immunosuppressive drugs can also suppress these antibodies.

WOW Lodge 41 Holds Annual Awards Banquet

Woodmen of the World Lodge 41, Grantsville, held its annual awards banquet recently at the Grantsville fire hall. A steak dinner was served to 90 people.

The invocation was given by Burton Lytle. James Guthrie gave the welcome and led the pledge to the flag.

Featured speakers included Angie Bain, fraternal coordinator, and Anthony Jurik, who is studying to be area manager. Several remarks were also given by Burton Lytle, field representative.

A 25-year pin was presented to Peggy Beitzel, and a 50-year pin was presented to Randy Wiley.

LIFE SAVER'S AWARD PRESENTED — Bobbi Lapp, Grantsville, recently received the Life Saver's Award at the Woodmen of the World Lodge 41 annual awards banquet. Bobbi got help for her mother, Terri Lapp, several times during her episodes with low-blood-sugar problems. The award was presented "In recognition and commendation for swift and courageous action under stress, which saved a human life." Bobbi, 7, is a second-grade student at Grantsville Elementary School. going against the flow and doing what was right. Gregory Peck's portrayal only solidified to me that he was the ideal man. Often I have to remind myself that others have a much harder time in this life than I do, but it is sometimes hard to remember. This story from the earlier rural South brings it home to me. I think of mothers in Iraq who lost children to Saddam Hussein, and whose children are now in danger there for other reasons. I think of people like Helen Keller who overcame what would be to most of us insurmountable problems to become an inspiration to all of us.

The 22nd annual turkey dinner to benefit the Lutheran Braille Workers will be served on Saturday, Nov. 6, from 4:30 to 7 p.m. The cost of the meal is $6 for adults and $3 for children under 12. Carry-out dinners will be available. There will also be a bake sale and a craft sale. Everyone is urged to attend and support this truly worthy cause. This group helps open doors to reading and knowledge to blind children and adults. I personally can't imagine a world without books.

Although there was a light turnout for the Bittinger community Interdenominational Service on Sunday evening, those who attended felt that the service was filled with the spirit of good will. The major congregations of Bittinger, including Lutheran, Mennonite, and Brethren, were represented in both the pulpit and the congregation. A group from Emmanuel sang "Peace Like a River." Their overall focus was Matthew 5:1-10. This wonderful section of the Bible reinforces blessings to the meek, peacemaking, etc.

We had some tired and disappointed Northern Band members after the State Championships held last week. They placed fourth, but many of the kids felt they didn't perform up to their potential and regular placement at the top of the pile. We wish them well this week at Musselman's show.

I had a visit last Friday afternoon from a group of past students from one of my Introduction to Literature classes from the college. Nate and Jenifer Blachley of Frostburg and Frank Bittinger, formerly of Grantsville but now living in Cumberland, made the trip. I was sad to see them going back to Allegany County. They had come up to attend a visitation at Durst Funeral Home for another classmate, Tammy Friend, whom we lost last week. Even though it was a sad event that brought us back together, it was great to see that they have worked so hard and that they are living happy and successful lives. I am proud to claim them as former students and current friends.

Spending the weekend with Ida Reckner and Donna Glotfelty were relatives Ruth and David Stinchbomb of Canton, Ohio, and Marlene and Shirley Oester of Gaithersburg. Roland and Norma Bernard of Canton joined the group for dinner at Penn Alps Saturday evening. Others who were Sunday dinner guests at the Ida Reckner home were Elwood and Delores Wilt, Oakland; William and Beverly Brenneman, Bloomington; Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; Karmen Carey, Frostburg; and Lillian and Charee Reckner, McHenry. The Brennemans, accompanied by their daughter Diane Foultz of Las Cruces, N.M., also visited Ida Reckner one day recently.

Housley received the Dean's Scholarship, an award of up to $9,000 presented to students based on their high school academic achievements and test scores. Students must maintain a minimum grade-point average each year to continue to receive the award.

Yough Glades DAR Hosts Multi-Chapter Meeting

The Youghiogheny Glades Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) recently hosted a meeting of the four western counties of Maryland. Over 75 DAR members and guests representing the Antietam, Conococheague, Cresap, and Youghiogheny Glades chapters gathered at Pleasant Valley Community Center for a meeting and lunch.

Among those in attendance were DAR state officers Doris Jackson, regent; Ellan Thorson, honorary regent; Barbara Carpenter, vice regent; and Ruann George, historian.

Yough Glades regent Dorothy Cathell opened the meeting with a welcome and the DAR ritual, and the president general's mission was read by vice regent Marianna Naylor. Jackson delivered the guest speaker's presentation, and the other state officers made brief remarks.

Following a buffet dinner and a door prize drawing, the group embarked on a tour of Oakland's Train Station, the Garrett County Historical Society Museum, and St. Matthew's Episcopal Church. Rev. John Grant presented a brief history of the church and answered questions.

Other recent programs and events of the Yough Glades DAR Chapter included a presentation on the history of the flag by member Alice Eary, and a program on the beginning of DAR and Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, the society's first president general, presented by registrar Martha Kahl. Chapter members also traveled to Terra Alta for a regular meeting and a tour of the Preston County Historical Society Museum.

The September Yough Glades DAR Chapter meeting took place at the Aurora Community Center, where chaplain Virginia Martin spoke about the Union District Friendship Quilt Project and answered questions as members viewed the many signature quilts on display.

TALKING ABOUT A REVOLUTION – The Youghiogheny Glades Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution hosted a regional meeting recently in Pleasant Valley, where the local organization was joined by the Cresap, Conococheague, and Antietam DAR chapters. Shown at the event, from the left, are Maryland state DAR vice regent Barbara Carpenter, state regent Doris Jackson, honorary state regent Ellen Thorson, and state historian Ruann George. See story.

FSU "A STAR!" Program Noted By Governor

The A STAR! in Western Maryland program at Frostburg State University has been recognized by Maryland Gov. Robert Ehrlich as one of four programs in the state that are "successfully meeting community needs through their partnerships with public and private entities."

The A STAR! (Appalachian Service Through Action and Resources) program, working through FSU and funded in part through the AmeriCorps program, provides direct services to low-income families at 10 sites across Allegany, Garrett, and Washington counties.

"Through partnerships with several organizations, A STAR! volunteers have advanced literacy, improved access to health care and implemented substance abuse prevention programs in juvenile service facilities," Ehrlich said.

"Community-based organizations have a track record of helping good people overcome great struggles. During tough fiscal times, community problem solvers should be empowered to better serve Marylanders in need. Our new office will unify government's community and volunteer resources, making it easier, not harder, for them to fulfill this important mission."

Lady Bugs Making Annual Autumn Visits To Homes–Without Knocking

by Willie Lantz
Extension Educator

It is quite likely that you have had a few more visitors to your home lately in the form of Multicolored Asian Lady Beetles (Harmoni axyridis). The Asian lady beetle is native to eastern Asia and was imported to the U.S. in the late 1980s to serve as a biological control for devastating insects such as aphids.

These lady beetles range in color from a pale yellow-orange to a dark orange and can have a few or many spots. Adult female lady beetles can live for up to three years.

Lady beetles spend the spring and summer feeding on aphids and other soft-bodied insects in your garden and wooded areas. As temperatures start to cool off in the fall they search for protective places in which to spend the winter months, and are attracted to sunnier or warmer sides of buildings and light-colored surfaces. They will move inside your home through small cracks and crevices. Another route of entry is often through attic and soffit vents.

The lady beetle is basically harmless. They can cause skin irritation by nipping at your skin, but there is rarely a problem. They are mostly a nuisance and do not eat wood or fabric.

Indoor lady beetle infestations can be mostly controlled by preventing the insects from getting indoors. This would include making sure all cracks and crevices in windows, siding, and doors are sealed up tight. You may even want to temporarily cover attic vents. Spraying around foundations and other routes of entry into your house may be another option. The following web site lists some home products you can apply to your house: www.entm.purdue.edu/Entomology/ext/targets/e-series/E-seriesPDF/E-214.pdf.

Once they are inside, the best way to remove the beetles is to vacuum up the insects. If you do not want to kill the beetles place a knee high stocking into the vacuum's extension hose and secure it with a rubber band. Once you have finished vacuuming you can remove the knee high and release the beetles outside.

Most information sources suggests that interior applications of pesticides such as foggers have limited success in controlling the migration of the beetles into the house. Traps can also be made and purchased which may have some success at limiting numbers.

For more information on the lady beetle and traps check out the USDA web site at www.ars.usda.gov/is/br/lbeetle/.

PARK IMPROVEMENTS UNDER WAY — With the summer crowds now gone, some major projects are currently under way at Swallow Falls State Park. Winters General Contractors Inc. crews are busy constructing a new overlook area at Muddy Creek Falls, new steps that descend from the top to the bottom of the falls, and a new handicapped-access ramp from the parking area down to the new overlook platform. Working on what is known as a "widow's walk" in the photo above, located at the top of the new steps, are Winters employees Buck Shaffer, left, and Tony Martin. It is expected that the work, financed via an approximate $450,000 contract from the Maryland Department of General Services, will be completed by next spring. See other photos in this section. Bush, Bartlett, Pipkin Receive Most GC Votes

About 70 percent of Garrett County's 17,738 registered voters cast ballots in Tuesday's presidential general election. Unsurprisingly, the majority of those votes were in favor of Republican candidates.

Polls were open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m., with long lines of eager voters reported at some of the county's 19 precincts. Board of Elections director Steve Fratz said the busiest time was between 7 and 11 a.m., but that there was a steady flow of voters all day.

"We were very proud of how it all turned out," said Fratz about how well the election judges and voters handled the voting process.

The Board of Elections began canvassing about 950 absentee ballots this morning (Nov. 4). Provisional ballots will be canvassed Monday, and oversees ballots next Friday, Fratz said.

The numbers cited below are the unofficial results from Tuesday's election and do not include the absentee, provisional, and overseas votes.

Presidential incumbent George W. Bush and his running mate, Vice President Dick Cheney, received 8,431, or 73.42 percent, of the county's vote, while their Democratic challengers, John Kerry and John Edwards, received only 2,952 votes, or 25.71 percent.

The other presidential candidates together received less than 1 percent of the total ballots cast. They had the following number of votes in Garrett County: Ralph Nader/Peter Miguel Camejo, Populist Party, 41; Michael Badnarik/Richard Campagna, Libertarian, 21; Michael Antony Peroutka/ Chuck Baldwin, Constitu-

PLEASED TO HEAR that Garrett County recently won the Outstanding Rural Economic Development Award are (left to right) Garrett County Chamber of Commerce tourism specialist Stephanie Shay, Oakland mayor Asa McCain, and Main Street manager Cherie Ross. Presented by the Rural Maryland Council, the award was given for a joint venture between the town of Oakland and the Chamber of Commerce which established a satellite Visitors Center and the Shoppe at Heritage Square in the town's 1884 Queen Anne Train Station. See story for details. Photo courtesy of the Chamber of Commerce.

Anti-Windfarm Group Slates Public Meeting

The Friends of Backbone Mountain, a coalition of local residents opposed to proposals to locate at least two separate wind power facilities in southern Garrett County, has slated a public meeting for 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 11, at the Pleasant Valley Community Center.

Organizers plan to present a program about the issues surrounding wind farm development, drawing on national studies and on the experiences of nearby Tucker County, W.Va., and Somerset County, Pa., both home to wind power facilities. Several speakers who reside near those wind farms are expected to be on hand to describe what it is like living in the vicinity of the 300-plus foot turbines. The published agenda does not specify that the views of any wind power proponents views will be aired.

GC Receives Outstanding Rural Economic Development Award

Garrett County was the winner of the Outstanding Rural Economic Development Award, recently presented by the Rural Maryland Council.

"Imagination was the key to fulfilling my vision of what the $2.1 million historic renovation of the train station could do for the economic development of Oakland, in particular, and Mountain Maryland, in general," said Oakland mayor Asa McCain.

"I am pleased for the town and the chamber and for all the artisans represented at the shop," said Main Street manager Cherie Ross. "I am very pleased they chose our venture to recognize as an outstanding economic development project."

The joint venture is performing above expectations, she said. "I am delighted with the response both from visitors, residents and artisans represented," Cherie said. "There is increased traffic at the train station from people now able to see the building and enjoy the history seven days a week."

The train station is now open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Previously it was open only a short time, three days a week.

One benefit of the project is increased jobs, said McCain. Now it is staffed by at least one tourism specialist, who doubles as retail clerk for the Shoppe at Heritage Square. When it opened, the Shoppe had nine vendors. It now has 39, selling products made in Garrett County and surrounding locales.

Deep Creek Lake Issues Topic Of Public Meeting

The Garrett County commissioners have slated a public meeting to discuss the draft recommendations generated by a yearlong study by a private consulting firm that has been examining growth and development in the Deep Creek Lake area. The meeting will get under way at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 8, at the Lodge at the Wisp Resort, located off Marsh Hill Road, with doors opening at 6:30 p.m.

"We are hoping to hear specific opinions [of the public] regarding the impacts of these recommendations," said Clive Graham of Environmental Resource Management, the firm retained by the county to produce the Deep Creek Watershed Economic Growth and Planning Analysis. "After considering all public comments, we intend to revise and finalize the Recommendations Report and formally present the report to the county commissioners."

The 41-page ERM document outlining the recommendations is currently

Local Rotary Clubs "Scrambling" To Fill Increase In Christmas Project Requests

The annual Rotary Christmas Project has local Rotarians scrambling to meet an increased need in Garrett County, according to Rotarian Bob Stephens.

Daryl Walters, project coordinator, reported that this year the number of families that will receive food and presents for children has increased by 125 households. He stated that the increase is greater than expected, but with the usual help in the form of donated gifts and cash from the community, every one of the families who need help will have a Merry Christmas.

Families sign up for the project through the Garrett County Department of Social Services and the Health Department's Women, Infants, and Children's (WIC) Program.

Walters reported that there was also a 25 percent increase in the number of senior citizens on the list, partially because of higher prescription medication costs and the rise in fuel oil prices.

"Families are just having a hard time making it on fixed incomes," Walters said. "While the Rotary Christmas Project does not provide gifts for adults, over $40 worth of food is provided to each family in the project. Last year the cost for food alone was more than $12,000, and we expect it to increase by 20 percent this year."

"THE LITTLE HOUSE ON THE GARRETT COUNTY PRAIRIE" is how Colt and Melissa Custer describe their dream-coming-true of a historic log cabin home they are rebuilding just south of Oakland. After a 10-year search for a fairly intact log cabin worthy of restoring, the couple found this cabin which was first erected over 200 years ago by a pioneer in the Shinnston area of Harrison County, W.Va. With help from family members, the Custers removed the aluminum siding that had been placed on the cabin (it was occupied when they purchased it) and dismantled the structure, then moved the huge oak and pine logs to Oakland, where they are reassembling them on the Custer family farm along Underwood Road. Next spring the couple and their two children, 8-year-old Noel and Landon, 3, hope to move into their "new" home, which will include some modern conveniences while retaining its 18-century character. See Page A-3 for additional photos.

Kerr was charged after a GBI probe of allegations made by a 13-year-old juvenile female that he had sex with her forcibly and without her consent. Kerr is being held without bond in the Garrett County Detention Center.

Chamber Event To Feature Speaker Andrew Sherman

by Jo Donaldson, GC Chamber of Commerce

Well-known motivational speaker Andrew Sherman will present "Leveraging Intellectual Capital, Networks, and Resources to Drive Business Growth" at the Our Story Conference, Friday, Nov. 12, at Garrett College.

Sherman is a capital partner in the Washington, D.C., office of McDermott, Will & Emery LLP, an international commercial law firm with nearly 1,000 attorneys worldwide. A recognized corporate and transactional attorney and international authority on the legal and strategic aspects of business growth, he focuses on mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures, strategic alliances, and other types of growth strategies.

Sherman serves as a legal and strategic advisor to both Fortune 500 as well as emerging growth companies in the areas of business planning, public and private capital formation, mergers and acquisitions, technology transfer, joint ventures, and strategic alliances. He has worked on a wide variety of public and private securities offerings, acquisitions and related business transactions, intellectual property leveraging, and general corporate counsel support to clients.

One of Sherman's areas of expertise is in the strategic management of business growth as well as in the design and analysis of efficient and profitable distribution channels, and the structuring of interdependent and synergistic business relationships. His passion for business growth, creative problem solving, and a total commitment to his clients has been recognized by various business groups, the media and hundreds of entrepreneurs, and growing companies both in the United States and abroad.

He finds the intellectual capital of small businesses, helping with the legal and strategic aspects of their business. Finding a company's intangible assets, and using them, produces more growth at little cost.

Sherman is the author of 12 books on the legal and strategic aspects of business growth, mergers and acquisitions, capital formation, and the leveraging and licensing of intellectual property. He also served as an adjunct professor in the Master's of Business Administration Program for 14 years at the University of Maryland.

"Andrew Sherman has a solid reputation in the small-business arena," said Garrett County Chamber of Commerce president Charlie Ross. "His insights have helped many growing businesses succeed well beyond their expectations."

This year's Our Story conference features action as well as networking, and arrangements can be made for attendees to go to a ribbon cutting at the new Garrett Containers building and/or the ceremonial groundbreaking for the Adventure Sports whitewater course on top of Marsh Mountain.

Continuing Education credits will be given by Garrett College to those attending the strategic thinking conference. Guest speakers also will give business leaders ideas on how to keep utility costs down since electrical deregulation.

This event is coordinated by the Chamber of Commerce, Garrett County Department of Economic Development, Garrett College, and other business sponsors. Persons may call the chamber office at 301-387-4386 to register. More details are available online at garrettchamber.org

Our Story Event To Focus On "Ways And Whys" Of Business

JIM RZEPKOWSKI

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce's "Our Story" strategic thinking conference will host Jim Rzepkowski, Maryland's assistant secretary for Rural Region Business Development, during the Friday, Nov. 12, event at Garrett College. Rzepkowski will speak about the "Politics of Business."

"This is a chance to recognize the progress of the citizens and business community," Chamber president Charlie Ross said of the conference. "It is a great chance to network with Mountain Maryland business leaders. We are honored to have two state secretaries coming and other impressive leaders." This year's conference will also feature a ribbon-cutting at the new Garrett Containers building, and ceremonial groundbreaking event at the Adventure Sports whitewater course on top of Marsh Mountain.

Rzepkowski assumed his position with the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development in June 2004. He manages the department's business development and retention activities in 15 rural counties. Appointed by Governor Robert Ehrlich Jr. in May 2003 to the position of associate deputy secretary, he works in the areas of policy and legislation, as well as coordinates the department's regulatory health care reform efforts. Rzepkowski also served as interim executive director of the Maryland Economic Development Commission.

Before his appointment, Rzepkowski was re-elected to a third consecutive four-year term to the House of Delegates for District 32, Anne Arundel County. A senior member of the House Ways and Means Committee, he served on the Transportation, Education, and Finance Resources subcommittees, and in 2003 was chief deputy minority Whip in the House Republican Caucus. Rzepkowski earned a bachelor's degree in government and politics with Phi Beta Kappa honors from the University of Maryland College Park, and worked in the private sector as an insurance office representative.

The conference will also feature Dennis Castleman, state director of marketing and assistant secretary of DBED for tourism, the arts and film, who will speak about "The Economics of Business." University of Maryland Provost William W. Destler will speak on "The Education of Business – The Promise of Work." Attorney Patricia Smith of the People's Counsel of Maryland, and legislative director for the Maryland Municipal League Candace Donoho will speak on "The Economics of Utility Deregulation."

This event is coordinated by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, Garrett County Department of Economic Development, Garrett College, and other business sponsors. Persons interested in registering for the conference may call the chamber office at 301-387-4386 for more details.

GC Chamber Conference To Feature "Economics Of Utility Deregulation"

CANDACE DONOHO

"The Economics of Utility Deregulation" is the focus of a morning presentation at the Our Story Conference Friday, Nov. 12. Patricia A. Smith, Esq., of the People's Counsel of Maryland and Candace Donoho, legislative director for the Maryland Municipal League, will speak on how the new rates can affect area businesses and municipalities.

During the state's deregulation negotiations, Allegheny Power was to maintain a rate until Dec. 2004. The company is encouraging consumers to shop their power needs through Maryland's approved providers. All provider changes must be made at least 17 days prior to a meter read date.

Allegheny Power's Standard Offer Service rates are the worst-case scenario if a consumer chooses not to "shop around," said Garrett County Chamber of Commerce president Charlie Ross. The goal is to keep the percentage of increase as low as possible.

"This is a significant 'action' part of the conference," said Ross. "It affects everybody's bottom line, like any other cost of operation. We are talking the cost of utilities, just like the cost of fuel oil, and that couldn't be any more important."

Allegheny Power's rates may affect nonresidential consumers overall by as much as 59 percent. This is why it is important municipal and business leaders are aware of the coming changes and make informed decisions.

Both Smith and Donoho will discuss factors to be considered in choosing a provider and will answer questions during the Our Story presentation.

The Maryland Office of People's Counsel (OPC) is an independent state agency that represents residential consumers of electricity, natural gas, telephone, and private water services. It represents consumer interests in regulatory and court proceedings, investigates consumer complaints, helps resolve consumer problems with utility services, and helps consumers locate financial aid for utility bills. The OPC also works with its community partners to provide education and training about utility customer rights.

Donoho is the director of government relations for the Maryland Municipal League (MML), beginning her fifth year in this position. She previously worked for the Maryland Bankers Association, the Michigan Distributors and Vendors Association, and the Associated General Contractors of Michigan, all in a government relations capacity.

MML is supporting municipal electrical aggregation because members are concerned that as the electric rate caps are removed, municipal residents will suffer large increases in local electrical costs. The ability of cities and towns to aggregate on behalf of their residents is a natural extension of the city and town services already provided for people who live in Maryland's municipalities.

The Our Story Strategic Thinking Conference for Mountain Maryland is coordinated by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, Garrett County Department of Economic Development, Garrett College, and other business sponsors.

Delegate George Edwards will open the conference at 9 a.m. Barbara Buehl, executive director of Allegany County Chamber of Commerce, will be a featured presenter at 2:25 p.m.

A variety of business and government leaders will speak at the Strategic Thinking Conference being held at Garrett College. Anyone interested in registering may call the chamber office at 301-387-4386.

IT TOOK TEAMWORK of family and neighbors laboring together to cut trees, clear land, shape logs, and erect a log cabin home in the old days, and that still holds today as Coit and Melissa Custer and their respective families are teaming up to erect their log cabin home. Melissa's parents, Homer and Deloris Rodeheaver of Pleasant Valley, and Coit's parents, Clarence and JoAnn Custer of Oakland, not only instilled a love of history and a respect for traditions in their children, they also have rolled up their sleeves and pitched in to make a dream become a reality. The magnitude of the task can be seen by noting the size of the logs flanking Coit, Landon, and Melissa as they stand where a fireplace will be located. "We're doing this with modern machinery," Coit said. "Think of what it must have been like to do it with just your muscle and a team of horses, and 200 years ago settlers were building cabins and barns that still stand today. Hopefully this will be standing here 200 years from now." The Custers plan to furnish their home with period furniture reproductions and simple decorating, making it the centerpiece of a small homestead complete with a large garden, an orchard of fruit trees, and several farm animals. Coit, who was reared in an 1887 farm house, and Melissa, whose parents collected antiques and took their children to many historical programs, are both Civil War-era historical re-enactors who are passing their love of history on to their children.

CRAFTSMANSHIP FOR THE AGES can be seen in the corner notching of the logs of the Custers' 200-year-old cabin. The first four courses of logs, from the bottom up, are oak timbers with distinctive dovetail notches, which are "very tricky cuts," Coit Custer said, while the remaining courses of mixed oak and pine bear ridge-and-trough notches. "Whoever did this knew what he was doing, because the corners fit together extremely tight, then and now." The Custers say that in their research into log home restoration they read many accounts by other families that include the caveat, "We love our home, but we'd never do it again." So far, Coit and Melissa say they are reveling in their project, even when it comes to the difficult task of pounding reproduction square nails. "We love this, and we know we couldn't have done it without the help and support of our parents," they said.

Leads Sought After McHenry Home Burglary

The public's assistance is being solicited as police work to solve a residential burglary that occurred in McHenry between early September and early October. The perpetrator(s) removed two televisions and one stereo from a dwelling located in the 700 block of Deep Creek Drive.

Any citizen with information on this or other incidents is asked to contact either the Garrett Bureau of Investigation at 301-334-1909, or the CrimeSolvers of Garrett County office at 301-334-1975.

A cash reward of up to $1,000 is offered for information leading to the arrest and/or conviction of the person(s) responsible for committing this and other serious crimes.

Counterfeit Bills Passed At DCL Area Business

Maryland State Police troopers assigned to the McHenry barrack are investigating a recent incident of counterfeit $20 bills being used in a transaction at a Deep Creek Lake area business. Police in West Virginia are investigating similar incidents in neighboring Preston County and in Morgantown.

A counterfeit $20 bill was spent in Bruceton Mills on Thursday, Oct. 28. A Preston County Sheriff's Office spokesman said a store clerk reported that the bill may have been spent by four young white males, one with short, curly blond hair.

Investigators with the Morgantown detachment of the West Virginia State Police are probing two reports in the same approximate time frame of counterfeit bills being passed in that city.

Police provided the following tips for inspecting bills suspected of being counterfeited:

•A genuine presidential portrait appears lifelike and stands out distinctly from the background. The counterfeit portrait is usually lifeless and flat.

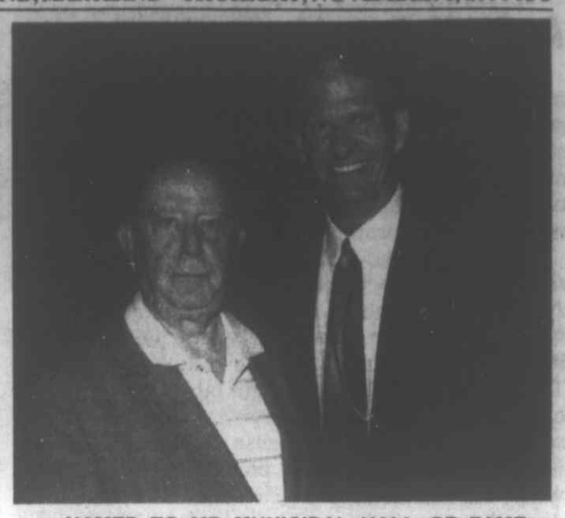
•The saw-tooth points of the Federal Reserve and Treasury seals are clear, distinct and sharp on a real bill. The counterfeit seals may have uneven, blunt, or broken saw-tooth points.

•The fine lines in the border of a genuine bill are clear and unbroken. On the counterfeit, the lines in the outer margin and scrollwork may be blurred.

•Genuine serial numbers have a distinctive style and are evenly spaced. The serial numbers are printed in the same ink color as the Treasury Seal.

•Genuine currency paper has tiny red and blue fibers embedded in it. Counterfeiters often try to simulate these fibers by printing tiny red and blue lines on their paper. Close inspection reveals that on the counterfeit note the lines are printed on the surface.

Businesses, their employees, and any citizen who suspects they may be in possession of a counterfeit bill are urged to call the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police at 301-387-1101, or the Garrett County Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911. In Preston County, residents there may call the local sheriff's office at 304-329-1611, or the Kingwood detachment of the West Virginia State Police at 304-329-1101.



NAMED TO MD MUNICIPAL HALL OF FAME – Spencer Schlosnagle, who in February started his 10th term as mayor of Friendsville, was inducted into the Municipal Officials Hall of Fame this summer. This Hall of Fame was created to honor municipal officials who are currently in office and who have held municipal elected office for 20 years or longer. Maryland Municipal League honored Schlosnagle and 11 other officials at the annual convention in Ocean City. MML's convention provides an opportunity to meet with colleagues from around the state to share ideas, solutions to problems, and techniques for service provision and municipal administration. Introduction of all honorees was made by William Donald Schaefer, Maryland state comptroller, who is pictured above with Schlosnagle. "This is a great honor," said Schlosnagle, who was elected for this office when he was 21, the state's youngest mayor. Approximately 1,000 people attended the conference, and all honorees were awarded a certificate and plaque. The town of Friendsville is currently undergoing numerous projects to restore and revitalize the town to show its history. Town officials are also working with the Governor's Community Legacy Grant in revamping the town's park.

A Call for Unity...

November 2, 2004, turned out to be "Black Tuesday" for diehard John Kerry supporters and a day of great celebration for the most adamant George Bush supporters. But for what is likely the great majority of voters, who fall somewhere in the middle of those two spectrum extremes, it turned out to be a day of neither great mourning nor adulation.

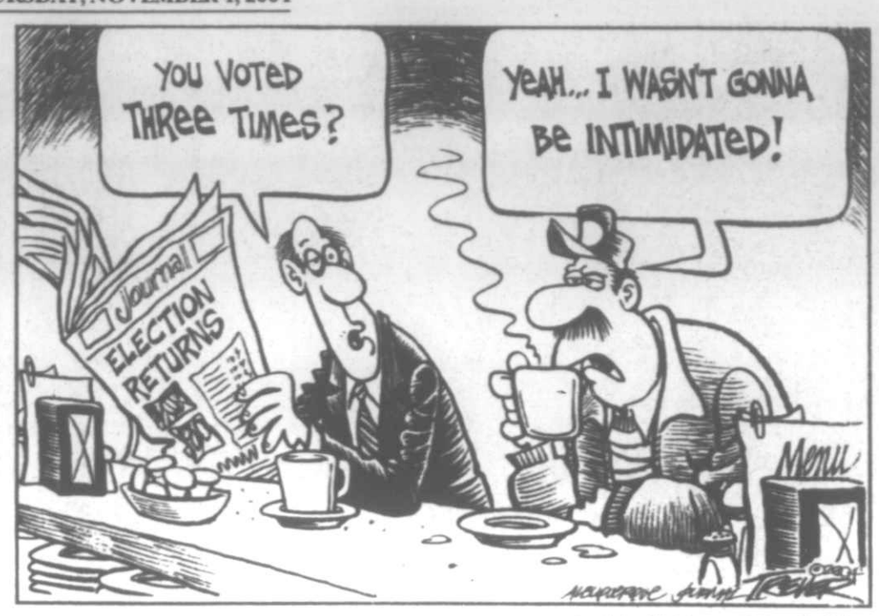
Regardless of how one voted, there are definitely some positives to report about Tuesday's election. All Americans should be proud of the extremely high voter turnout, credit for which should go to both Democrat and Republican campaign workers. The fact that literally millions of our citizens elected to stand in line, some for hours, to cast their ballot speaks volumes about our sense of civic responsibility and appreciation of this precious right. In states where the end result was clear before the polls even opened, voters of the opposing party still responded. Examples of this commitment would be a Republican voter in Maryland and a Democrat voter in Texas, each of whom went to the polls even though it was clear that the respective electoral college votes of his or her state were going to go to the opposing candidate.

Another positive was that most of the doomsday predictions about the unreliability of the various electronic voting machines apparently did not come true, even though it is acknowledged that more security work with this technology is warranted.

Yet another positive were Senator Kerry's concession speech and President Bush's acceptance speech, both of which were gracious, conciliatory, and, most importantly, included a call for national unity. It is appropriate for the president to be elated with his victory, but extremely important for him to keep in mind that, while 59 million people voted for him, 55½ million Americans wanted him replaced by John Kerry. The final percentage was 51-49, which is certainly not a mandate. It means basically that our country is split almost right down the middle, and in this particular election the split was wide and contentious. It is hoped that the president, as well as Senator Kerry in his position, will both work hard for that unity that each emphasized is so crucial for the future of our country.

The following "election day pledge" by Jeff Jarvis, former columnist with the San Francisco Examiner (who endorsed Senator Kerry), is floating around the Internet, and it offers rather sound advice.

"After the election results are in, I promise to: support the president, even if I didn't vote for him; criticize the president, even if I did vote for him; uphold standards of civilized discourse in personal conversations, the media, and in letters to the editor while pushing all three to be better; and unite as a nation, putting country over party, even as we work together to make America better."



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

In response to Mr. Douglas Scott Arey, I would like to say thanks but no thanks for the pity. Mr. Arey suggested that I am misinformed and he thinks he is educating me on the issues. Well, he has obviously never met me and knows nothing about me. There you go again. The left is attacking without the facts again.

First of all, for the past several months, I have been serving as the Mountain Lake Park Precinct chairman for Bush-Cheney '04 and am one of the most informed people in my age group on the issues. I have a full understanding of the Bush policies and the flip-flop ways of Senator Kerry. I will not be scared by the lying lies of the left.

As for my being drafted, you obviously made a crazy assumption again. You must really believe the moon is made of blue cheese. Due to health reasons, I could not be drafted and I am not worried. However, I care about people and am a healthcare worker, and I served as my class president and I care about every single person. Since the 18- to 26-year age group is affected by the draft, and I am 20 years old, I intend to properly inform them of the issues, so as to not be scared by your lies, Mr. Arey.

So, Mr. Arey, next time you attack a person, know who you are attacking and have the facts, not just a liberal, slanting pack of lies. Ignorance is stupidity, not bliss.

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on a letter in the Oct. 21 paper by Joyce Schroyer.

It is wonderful to hear stories about honest people, and I was happy that she had her purse returned, and with nothing missing! I am glad she took the time to thank the people for their honesty, and to thank God for her place of residence. I have a place in Garrett County and it is a wonderful place, with nice people.

But I feel I must say while this part of the letter was positive and uplifting, the other part was anything but. I'm sorry to hear that after she had left her purse in a fast-food place on Route 95 in Virginia, it was returned empty. But does that incident give her the right to cast judgment on the people at a Williamsburg eatery by saying that after leaving her purse under a table there, she "got it back because we went back and found it before anyone else did?"

It would be very easy to summarize from her letter that Virginia is a "bad" place, and Garrett County is a "good" place. I love both places, and have lived long enough to realize that there are "good" and "bad" people everywhere. I too have lost my wallet in a parking lot of a store, and had it returned to the desk in full. I once had a tire blowout, and a bad spare, when a man stopped by with a truck similar to mine, gave me his spare tire, and jotted down his address on a scrap piece of paper and said, "Just bring it back when you get a chance," I could list countless other incidents. Yes, and all in Virginia!

I read about "bad" people every week in this very paper, but realize it is only a small part of the populace, and would not condemn the entire area if I were to encounter one of them.

As for the dishonest people, we should replace any bitterness and anger with forgiveness, as the Lord has commanded us to do. For we all need to be forgiven from time to time.

To the Editor:

October started a new chapter in my life – retirement! Thirty years ago I began my journey as a working mom. I started at Garrett Mfg. in Deer Park and was there for 18 years. I've been through four plant closings. I ended up at Dennett Manor Nursing Home. I was part-time for four years, full-time one year, and this past year cut back to part-time again. God has been with me through all this and much more. He is faithful.

I would like to thank all my co-workers throughout all these years for being a blessing to me. The employees at Dennett Road are a dedicated, hard-working people, from the office to nurses, aides, laundry, housekeeping, and maintenance men. Thank you all, and to those who gave the extra helping hand, a big thanks!

The Dietary Dept. where I worked can't be beat. The ladies are friendly, harworking, and caring. Their job requires hard, physical work and remembering all those diets. The food they prepare is some of the best. They are great cooks. They deserve a lot of credit for doing their part to ensure your family members who reside there feel at home. Thank you, ladies, for your friendship and the help you gave me while I was there. All of you – from Dru to the cart-pullers.

Now as I begin this next step in my life, I'm reminded of a passage I had on my machine at Garrett for a while: JER: 29 11-14. "For I know the plans I have for you, plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future. Then you will call upon me and come and pray to me and I will listen to you. You will seek me and find me when you seek me with all your heart. I will be found by you."

I'm not sure yet what he has plans for, but I do know he is with me whatever it is. Thank you, ladies, Dave, and John, for being part of those plans for the last six years. And thanks to my husband and family for loving me all these years and being in those plans also. May God bless and keep you all.

To The Editor:

As a resident of the suburbs in the central part of the state, I have grown weary of the wall-to-wall housing developments and daily grind of the morning and afternoon rush-hour traffic. With several years left until retirement, my boyfriend and I decided to look to the future and purchase some land as an investment with the hope of eventually building a retirement home. We have always enjoyed the mountains and natural surroundings of Garrett County. In the summer of 2002, we purchased land in Keysers Ridge and began a yearlong search for a builder. We spent many days at the Comfort Inn in McHenry, where everyone became like a second family to us. They treated us well and always asked how the plans were coming along for our house. Their hospitality was reassuring that we had chosen a great area to enjoy our retirement years.

We made several calls and spent hours on the phone and in person meeting with the builders. We were unable to oversee the actual construction since we lived on the other side of the state. We could visit periodically, but needed to find a builder we could trust to do the job right the first time.

From the moment he invited us into his home, I knew Dave Stein would be the best person to build our home. More important than my respect for him as a builder was my admiration for his devotion to his family. His children knew the value of hard work and often accompanied Dave on the job as he constructed a new home. I had a chance to meet his wife and children and could tell what a special relationship they had. I knew that this family was indicative of other families in the community and this would be the best place to enjoy my retirement.

I would like to publicly thank Dave Stein for his devotion to people and his remarkable dedication to his job. All of the members of his team did a great job with our house, and we knew if anything was wrong, they would be there to correct the problem. Garrett County should be proud of neighbors like Dave Stein. I am proud to know him.

Sincerely,
Charlotte M. Owens

"PARIS: ROCKIN' FOR JESUS"

It is Saturday night in Paris when this town rolls in waves of culture. You name it, it's here: jazz, blues, techno, rock, reggae, classical, operatic, musical theatre, comic theatre, serious theatre, hundreds of movie theatres, comedy clubs, clubs of other kinds, some where ladies blush and some where they don't.

This Saturday night, added to all of the above is a six-hour rock concert for Jesus taking place in front of a historic Paris church, St. Sulpice. This seventeenth century Palladian monument of architectural restraint (built when baroque flourished in the rest of Europe) is named for the saint whose order specializes in training seminarians.

In other words, this is the right place for the Catholic Church to make a connection between theology books and human hearts. As the stone effigies of Bossuet and Fenelon – competing devotional theologians of the 17th century – look on, thousands of young people, arms upraised, jump and sway to music which those two spiritual worthies would not recognize.

The message of the rock concert, however, is the same one which Bossuet and Fenelon, for all their disagreements, preached together: Jesus is the Lord. This simple creed, the first of the Christian Church, is being given new expression in Europe by the oldest existing European institution: the putatively stodgy Roman Catholic Church.

This week, at least, Paris is rockin' for Jesus.

The Congress for the New Evangelization is taking place here in Paris. Tonight's concert is just one – and if the word can be used about an event attracting thousands – small part of that Congress.

Yesterday I attended a mass with four cardinal bishops and six other mitred bishops, about a hundred priests and thousands of the faithful thronging the Cathedral of Notre Dame. Whose idea it was may be lost to history, but four cardinals, from four different countries, decided that if the world wanted a party, well, the Catholic Church would show them how to party.

This may point to an important way in which Protestant churches are a day late and a dollar short in postmodernity because we have spent nearly five centuries specializing in how not to give a party. If there has been one consistent Protestant criticism of Catholic culture, it is precisely that Catholics have far too much fun.

The cardinals have said, in effect, "You bet we do! The reason is that not only do we know how the story ends, but the Church is the primary vehicle for how the story gets to the end."

The rock concert in St. Sulpice Square was in front of the church both literally and figuratively. The doors of the church were open to the throng. Inside were another thousand souls, most of them sitting on the floor in the nave of the church before a huge monstrance holding a consecrated host. Through the sound system a speaker was explaining that this six-inch wafer is, in fact, the body of Jesus Christ, present in this church, visible to all who have eyes to see.

Rationalism is in its last gasps because the world at large has finally caught up to a fact which, when rationalism was in its youth, David Hume, that common sense philosopher of Scotland, observed: The problem with rational skepticism is that it is skeptical of everything except itself. The same charges which rationalism laid against faith are fatal to rationalism itself.

The post-modern generation is attuned to this, and is no longer necessarily persuaded by the cast iron arguments of logic. There is an openness again to the illogical logic that the immaterial Word became the extremely material flesh of a human being, the God-Man, Jesus Christ.

The mass yesterday, like the entire Congress, represented two millennia of Christianity from the simple act of our Saviour in the upper room expressed partly in Latin and partly in French, in a gothic monument of the Middle Ages all displayed on numerous and large LCD screens of the 21st century. The original faith is proclaimed with the latest technology.

With what success? Even the communist newspaper here had the cross on its front page with two articles about the Congress on the inside pages. The majority of the Parisian population is aware that this Congress is taking place, and is connected to All Saints' Day, Toussaint, a French national holiday. The French atheists organize no protests against Toussaint, and now the holiday has been reconnected with the holy day.

The enduring effect of this Congress is yet to be seen. As anybody ever engaged in a revival knows, success is measured almost entirely in follow-up. What is certain is that this is no bad beginning. The Catholic Church has said to Europe, "We get it!" and Europe has taken notice.

The faithful have rallied, and from all available evidence one can safely say, they advance.

DEER PARK UM CHURCH BREAKS GROUND ON ADDITION – A groundbreaking ceremony took place recently on the property of the Deer Park United Methodist Church, located at 81 Church Street. After a fire consumed the original sanctuary, which was built in 1882, the current structure was built in 1899. Construction has begun on a building addition that will house classrooms, bathroom facilities, and eventually a small kitchen. The addition, which will also feature seven stained glass windows that can be purchased and placed in memoriam, is expected to be under roof by late this month. Additional fundraising is under way and anyone interested in making a donation can mail a check to Deer Park UM Church treasurer Helen Harris, 253 Deerfield Drive, Deer Park, MD 21550. Pictured from the left are building committee members Bob Tasker, Curt Clary, Harold Harris, Debbie Barnard, and Sam Butler.

THE GOOD, THE BAD, AND THE UGLY were certainly all on display last Thursday evening at the Grantsville Plaza and in Oakland. At the plaza, pictured above, the "mummers" were given treats from the plaza businesses, and prizes were handed out for especially creative costumes. In the Oakland celebration, with a scene from that shown below, the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club put on the annual parade and social, handing out treats to all, and many prizes as well. Two Passengers Transported After Vehicle Hits House

Two people were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital after the driver of the vehicle swerved to miss another vehicle and struck a home on the corner of Rt. 135 and Swantamont Road Thursday afternoon, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

According to the driver, Ellen Marie Paugh of Kitzmiller, she veered off Rt. 135 in order to miss another vehicle that was turning onto Swantamont Road. Her two passengers were transported by Southern Rescue Squad for observation.

Deer Park firefighters assisted at the 3:40 p.m. accident.

In other police news, no injuries were reported in a two-vehicle accident at the intersection of Wolf Acres Road and Weber Road Monday.

A 1992 Ford truck operated by David Elliott, 36, Oakland, failed to yield the right of way to a 2002 Chevy operated by Shawn Platter, 30, Grantsville, police said. Elliott was charged with failing to yield the right of way.

Passenger Flown To Cumberland After Accident

The juvenile passenger on a farm tractor was flown to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, after the tractor was struck from behind by an SUV around 6 p.m. on Tuesday near the intersection of Rt. 219 and Ben DeWitt Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Samuel J. Yoder, 18, and his juvenile passenger were traveling northbound on the Farmall BN tractor when it was struck from the rear by a 1987 Chevy S-10 Blazer, operated by Anna J. Lambka, 23. Yoder and his passenger were ejected, and the tractor overturned and broke into several pieces before coming to rest in the northbound lane, police said.

Lambka sustained injury to her face, but fled the scene to a nearby bar, police added. According to witnesses, the tractor was illuminated both in the front and the rear. Lambka was located approximately one hour after the collision. She was charged with fleeing the scene of an accident, failure to control speed to avoid a collision, and driving while impaired.

Yoder was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries. Lambka was taken to GCMH by sheriff's deputies for treatment.

Oakland firefighters also responded to the scene.

Bittinger VFD Nets Homeland Security Funds

The Bittinger Volunteer Fire Department is one of 12 Maryland fire departments that were among 1,087 fire departments nationwide included in the 19th round of the Fiscal Year 2004 Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program. The grants were announced recently by Department of Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge.

The grants will ultimately total approximately 8,000 awards worth nearly $750 million in direct assistance to firefighters throughout the country, demonstrating Homeland Security's commitment to ensuring that America's firefighters have the resources they need to protect their communities, according to the secretary.

"President Bush and I strongly support the critical mission of our nation's firefighters," Ridge said. "Through these funds, we will ensure that our nation's emergency responders have the equipment and training they need to respond to all hazards."

This nineteenth round of grants provides $89,537,436 to help local fire departments purchase firefighting equipment, fund firefighter health and safety programs, enhance emergency medical services programs, and conduct fire education and prevention programs.

The Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program is administered by the Department of Homeland Security's Office for Domestic Preparedness, in cooperation with the department's United States Fire Administration.

The United States Fire Administration (USFA) is a division of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) within the Department of Homeland Security. The mission of the USFA is to reduce life and economic losses due to fire and related emergencies through leadership, advocacy, coordination, and support. For more information on USFA, persons may visit administration's web site at www.usfa.fema.gov.

ODP administers a number of programs that provide a wide array of support to the nation's emergency preparedness and response community. For more information on ODP, persons may visit that office's web site at www.ojp.usdoj.gov/odp.

in our country today did not come easy nor free. The desire of our world for freedoms and justice issues for our Muslim sisters and brothers is very costly, both to our American military and to the people and residents of Iraq and Afghanistan.

My two tours in the Middle East, and most recently my tour in Taji, Iraq, has awakened within me our global connections and responsibilities that we have for one another. We no longer can live as isolationists. So where and how do we begin?

As a Christian, I am empowered and sustained by God's Word in sacred scripture. St. Paul in his Letter to the Ephesians (Chapter 3:2-12) demonstrated that God can use us to do big and difficult acts of mercy and acts of justice, just as God used St. Paul...and I believe God is using us, the American people and our armed forces in this very way.

During a recent military funeral trip to Buffalo, New York, I viewed from the veterans' cemetery the Melrose suspension bridge on the Niagara that links the United States and Canada. The bridge was reportedly built in 1848 by engineer Theodore Elliot, in this fashion: First, a kite with a thread attached to it was flown across the Niagara River. Next, a cord was attached to the thread and pulled across. Then a rope was attached to the cord. Finally, a cable was attached to the rope. From the cable, larger cables and the rest of the bridge were moved into place.

Had St. Paul lived in our modern times, he might have used this story to make the point that you got to start with the desire and efforts for justice, even if the beginnings are fragile threads.

An opportunity awaits the people of Garrett County and the surrounding area and visitors for all peoples, of all faith, backgrounds, and traditions, to gather for song, prayer and reflections at St. Peter's parish church in Oakland, on Sunday afternoon, November 7, at 2 p.m. to beg for God's mercy, healing, and blessings upon the troubled areas of our broken world. Please come and join together in honoring and remembering the veterans of the past – and just as important – the veterans of tomorrow.

Dawson Couple Celebrates 50th Wedding Anniversary

A 50th wedding anniversary party was held recently at the Sand Spring Church of God fellowship hall to honor Dennis and Lorene Dawson of Accident. The event was hosted by their children and grandchildren.

The Dawsons were married on Dec. 31, 1954, at the Salvation Army Chapel in Weirton, W.Va., by Captain Jasper Harper. Because of Garrett County's unpredictable winter weather, the 50th anniversary party was held on Oct. 3, the date that Dennis and Lorene became engaged in 1954, rather than in December.

At the party, long-time family friend, Anthony Bowers, asked the blessing on the food, which was catered by Jo Ann and Larry Meyers. The three-tiered layer cake was baked by Foodland Fresh in McHenry.

The Dawsons are the parents of Deb Conway, Bentleyville, Pa., Carol Smith, McHenry, Bill Dawson, Tiffin, Ohio, and the late Tim Dawson. They have six children, five step-grandchildren, and three step-great-grandchildren.

The couple were both employed by Weirton Steel Company in the 1950s and 1960s. Lorene taught preschool for 20 years in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. She is currently a substitute teacher for Garrett County Head Start. Her hobbies are reading, quilting, sewing, and playing bingo. She is also a member of the WCSC of Sand Spring Church of God.

Dennis served as pastor for 34 years in the West Pennsylvania Churches of God, General Conference. He is presently filling the pulpit at Mt. Dale Church of the Brethren in Hazelton, W.Va. He is an avid fisherman. He and Lorene attend the Friendsville Senior Center.

Marriage Permits Recently Issued

Six couples recently applied for their marriage licenses, according to David Martin, clerk of the Garrett County Circuit Court. Three couples requested that their names not be published.

Charles S. Rush Jr., 40, and Heather Mechelle Bachtle, 38, both of Greencastle, Pa.

Joel Michael Kuharik, 66, and Lois Jean Tucker, 68, both of Selbyville, Del.

Christian James Hutchinson, 31, and Mytyl Molina Cross, 30, both of Derwood.

Let's Get Down To Business!

DEEP CREEK SALON & MASSAGE

"Our salon is like no other in Garrett County, we have stepped away from the traditional salon setting into a place of elegance and comfort," said Vernon and Diane Wampler, owners and operators of the Deep Creek Salon & Massage, located in Market Square in McHenry.

The Wamplers are lifelong residents of Garrett County and reside in Friendsville with their children Kenny and Holly. Diane has been a cosmetologist for eight years and said she has always dreamed of owning her own salon.

"I feel very fortunate to have this wonderful opportunity," she said. "I would like to thank everyone who had a part in helping us at the salon, and [give] a special thank you to my husband Vernon for all his hard work and support he has given me to achieve my goals. Also to Hugh Umbel for giving us such a great business opportunity in his development at Market Square."

Besides Diane, other members of the staff are Joni Kasonic, Tina Tracey, and Allison Shaffer.

Joni resides in Bayard, W.Va., with her husband David and daughter Kambria. She offers seven years of experience and is also the assistant manager. Both she and Diane are graduates of the International Beauty Academy, Cumberland.

Tina resides in Oakland with her husband David and children Natalie and Devon. She is a graduate of the Scotts Beauty Academy, Cumberland.

Allison resides in McHenry with her husband Eric and children Olivia and Jonas. She was among the first class to graduate from Garrett College in 1996 in the massage therapy program. She is Maryland state certified and licensed.

All of the stylists are Maryland state licensed and are trained in every aspect of the salon. They travel to hair shows and take classes to stay updated with the industry.

The staff offer cutting and styling, perms, color, hair straightening, and hair and scalp treatments. They also offer service for total body care: waxing, pedicures, manicures, massage, tanning, and facials.

"We select only the finest quality products for our customers," said Diane. They carry such hair and nail care products as Paul Mitchell, Matrix, Wella, and OPI.

Allison offers a full line of massage treatments: Swedish, deep tissue, hot stone, Reiki, and upper body massages. She also specialized in massage treatments for moms-to-be. "What a better way to relax in such a selfless time," said Diane. "Allison offers a relaxing atmosphere and is looking forward to adding more services in the future."

Diane added that she thinks the warm colors and natural accents add to the comfort of the salon. "The customers also have the convenience of having the salon at Market Square, and that gives us the opportunity to serve customers who have many errands to run and limited time," said Diane. "So stop in and visit Deep Creek Salon and enjoy a day of rest and pampering."

They also have retreat packages which offer more than one of the services at a discount price. Gift certificates are also available.

The specials in November are $5 off a full wrap perm, $10 off a one-hour massage, and OPI polishes for $5.

Hours of operation are Monday and Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Friday, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.; and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Their phone number is 301-387-5380, and the web site is www.deepcreeksalon.com.

OTT Taking Reservations For Family Comedy

Our Town Theatre is now taking reservations for Only an Orphan Girl, described by director Jane Avery as a "delightful family-oriented comedy."

The show, Avery said, contains all of the elements of an old-time melodrama – the villain, the hero, and the heroine, "all who play their roles up to the hilt," Avery said.

Only an Orphan Girl, designed for audiences of all age groups, will run Nov. 17-20 at 8 p.m. and Nov. 21 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 on Wednesday, Thursday, and Sunday, and $8 on Friday and Saturday.

Reservations are strongly suggested, Avery said, and can be made by calling 301-334-5640, option 1.

The production will include "olios," which are short fillers between acts, Avery added.

The cast members of the production are Richard Hill, Chelsea Davis, Anthony Oliverio, Taylor Upole, John Armstrong, Crystal Towne, Donna Miller, Lyndsie Rush, and Bruce Steele.

Other individuals involved in the production include stage manager Diane Alexander, accompanist Matt Eary, and sound operator Nick Oliverio. Ben Sincell is the lighting and scenery designer.

FSU PRESENTING PLAY – Frostburg State's University theatre department will present the award-winning play The Trestle at Pope Lick Creek on Nov. 12, 13, 18, 19, and 20 at 8 p.m. and on Nov. 13 at 2 p.m. Set at the height of the Great Depression, the play focuses on two teenagers who plan a game of "chicken" with an oncoming train. The setting is high on a trestle above a dry creek bed. When the game begins, it creates a rush of excitement for the teenagers, but soon it awakens other dangerous passions. The play is recommended for mature audiences. Tickets are $5 for students and $10 for the general public. For more information or to make reservations, persons may call 301-687-7462, 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. In the photo, FSU students Justine Poulin and Joshua Orto are shown during a rehearsal for the play.

Charlie Ross proposed a property management agreement, under which the chamber would provide personnel to staff the station. A portion of the station will be a Visitors Center and the remainder will be managed by the chamber, acting as the town's agent, to generate income to cover costs of maintaining the building.

Under the business plan, the office space on the second floor is to be rented. Part of it is already occupied by the special events coordinator.

In three of the four first floor rooms, local crafts people and farmers who cannot afford a storefront operation or downtown business location can have an outlet. Consigned Victorian furnishings from local antique dealers also adorn the station.

The spillover effect in economic development is already beginning, said McCain. Since railroad freight traffic still passes the station eight times a day and four times a night, property developed had not blossomed along Liberty Street. Now the parking lot is constantly full. A second-hand book stall is located in a box car beside the train station. Shops around the corner praise the project for the additional traffic generated. Related projects are still in the works.

A lot was accomplished in the five short months since the train station opened, Charlie said.

According to the Chamber president, the McHenry Visitors Center is in the "heart" of the tourist traffic along U.S. Route 219, just 13 miles south of Interstate 68. Visitors numbered 4,200 for July and 5,577 for August. The Oakland Train Station had another 2,711 for July and 2,416 for August. Sales figures reinforce the success of the traffic numbers, he said.

"It's great to be in such distinguished company," said Charlie. "My staff worked hard to make this project a reality, and I include my wife Cherie. Her long hours devoted to this venture took an idea that began with Mayor Asa McCain and his vision and made it a reality."

That vision, Charlie noted, resulted in the $2 million renovation of Oakland's 1884 train station, which commemorates the railroad's contribution to the growth of Garrett County. The president described the Queen Anne style station as an "architectural work of art."

"To that vision, Cherie and I, with the endorsement of my board of directors, added a business community sense to help promote tourism, the resources of the county wisely invested in personnel to help manage the Shoppe at Heritage Square and the Oakland Visitors Center, and the talents of artisans along with the home-grown products of Mountain Maryland," Charlie said.

"In the past two years since I returned home," he added, "the Chamber of Commerce has garnered four major awards including this one – two Maryland Tourism Impact awards: one in 2002 for the Working Farms brochure (an effort with the Rural Development Coalition) and this year for the the Shoppe at Heritage Square; another in 2003 from Northeastern Economic Developers Association for our Visitors Information brochure and Vacation Guide; and now this Outstanding Economic Development Award."

THE HERITAGE QUILTERS have been making and filling Christmas stockings to donate to the Dove Center as a special project. Hobby House Press Inc. of Grantsville gave dolls and keepsakes to help fill the stockings. Pictured above is Thelma Emory, left, of the Heritage Quilters showing Dove Center director Heather Hanline a display of the stockings at the group's second annual quilt show, which was held during the recent Autumn Glory Festival. Diane Sisler of Friendsville, shown in the photo at right, was the winner of the People's Choice Award at the show. Her Celtic Knot quilt received the most votes from viewers. As a reward, Sisler received a piece of handcrafted glassware, donated by Simon Pearce. Alma Hughes of Damascus won the show's quilt raffle drawing. The Heritage Quilters expressed their appreciation to this year's quilt show sponsors: Dot Designs, Simon Pearce, Garrett Container Corporation, Hobby House Press, and Not Just Quilts. Jan Florist and Fratz Farm also contributed to the event.

The U.S. Route 219 project seeks to upgrade the two-lane highway to four-lane Interstate status from Buffalo, N.Y., through western New York, western Pennsylvania, and into western Maryland. At this time the terminus of the four-lane route will be in the immediate vicinity of the two-lane's current junction with Interstate 68 on the east end of Grantsville.

Long-range planning goals aspire to make U.S. Route 219's four-lane segment part of a new Interstate corridor connecting Buffalo to Miami, although other proposed north-south corridors are vying for federal funds to do the same. At this point in time, planners are studying the possibility of routing north-south through traffic from the Rt. 219/I-68 intersection east along I-68 to an upgraded Rt. 220 south through Allegany County and into Mineral County, W.Va.

Further information on the U.S. Route 219 Project from Meyersdale, Pa., to Grantsville can be obtained through the project's web site at www.us219.com, or from PennDOT's District 9 office at 814-696-7170.

Recycling

gan, recycling coordinator of Garrett County Solid Waste & Recycling, entering the contest is just another reason to commit to recycling.

"Recycling is a personal commitment we all need to make," she said. "But if you make your commitment official by sending your pledge by mail, in person or online stating how you plan to do more for the nation's recycling efforts, you may win a new 2005 Ford Escape Hybrid SUV."

According to the coordinator, America Recycles 2004 is one of the most comprehensive recycling awareness campaigns in the nation. Each year millions of people, become better informed about the advantages of recycling at home and buying recycled products as a result of the group's efforts. Last year, thousands signed or e-mailed pledges to recycle and buy recycled.

"Recycling is a simple way in which all the people of Garrett County can make a difference in the environment, preserve our resources and contribute to the economic well-being of the country," Madigan said. "We know that people throughout the county want to do something and just need to be reminded and shown how easy it is to get involved and do their part."

"Recycling has been a priority throughout Garrett County for many years, and we have met many of our solid waste and recycling goals," she added. "But we still have a long way to go to fully realize the benefits of recycling. America Recycles Day gives us an opportunity to re-emphasize recycling and buying recycled products. Hopefully those who commit to the program will carry it forward throughout the entire year as a result of our focus on Nov. 15."

gift trees that are placed throughout the community.

"The community makes sure that all the children in the project, over 700 last year, have presents to open Christmas morning," she said. "Our bigger concern is being able to feed everyone who needs a little help this year."

McCartney complimented Department of Social Services and WIC staff for helping with the registration.

"The people we are helping truly need it," she said. "We work hard to make sure that only those persons who really need it are included in the project. We are just hoping that all those persons who usually help by donating presents, cash, or help with deliveries come through for us again this year by getting their family members and friends to help."

The Christmas Project started as a family affair in 1986 when club president Dave Bolinger and his family began delivering food baskets to the needy. As it grew into a countywide project, the Grantsville Rotary Club began helping with families in the northern part of the county. The project now has hundreds of volunteers, including many members of local Lions clubs, according to Stephens.

"Each year it gets harder to find a location to assemble the food boxes and bags of presents," he said.

Longtime Rotarian Tom Browning reported that the project has outgrown several facilities over the years, including the National Guard Armory in Oakland.

"When you consider that this year we will need to fill over 1,100 banana boxes with food, it is easy to see why we need a large building," he said.

In the past few years, the project has been based at Simon Pearce. "The management at Simon Pearce has been great to work with," Browning said.

The boxes will be assembled again this year at Simon Pearce on Friday, Dec. 10, at 5:30 p.m. The food boxes and toys will then be delivered on Saturday, Dec. 11.

Browning noted that more persons are need this year to volunteer to deliver the food and presents. Anyone wishing to volunteer or contribute to the project may contact any local Rotarian or call Walters at 301-334-7601.

Husky Booters Cage Wildcats To Reach Playoff Semifinals

The boys' varsity soccer team of Northern High School basically staged a clinic for the Wildcats of Westmar in a 1A West Region playoff match played at the Cove Tuesday evening, as the Huskies handed the visitors a convincing 7-0 defeat. It was the 12th win of the season in 15 matches for Coach Tom Ables and his squad.

The win propels the Huskies into the semifinals of the tourney at Boonsboro, the winner of which will face the victor of the Beall/Williamsport match for the region title.

The Huskies were led offensively against Westmar by Gonzalo Velasquez and Derek Cutter, who each finished with hat tricks.

Velasquez scored his first of three just over a minute into the match, unassisted, to give the Huskies a lead they would never relinquish.

Cutter recorded the first third of his hat trick about 10 minutes later, scoring off an assist by Scott Pusateri at the 28:40 mark of the first half.

Velasquez struck again just three minutes later, scoring off a feed by Cutter with 25:44 remaining in the first half.

The score would remain 3-0 until about midway through the second half, when Velasquez earned his third goal, unassisted, with 21:33 to play.

Cutter followed, again almost exactly three minutes later (18:34), with a goal off an assist by Robert Fontaine to put the Huskies on top 5-0.

Brian Schlosnagle would score the Huskies' sixth goal off an assist by Matt Bass with 12 minutes remaining, and Cutter followed, once again, three minutes later with an unassisted goal to complete his hat trick and conclude the scoring for the night.

Westmar keeper Adam Stott was tagged for the seven goals, but he also turned away 27 of the Huskies' shots. The Northern defense allowed just three shots on goal, and keeper Chris Fickes stopped all three to earn another shutout win.

The Wildcats concluded their season with an overall record of 1-14.

Southern Boys Edge Blazers, Fall To Beall In 1A Playoffs

The boys' varsity soccer team of Southern High School advanced to the 1A West Region quarterfinals by handing visiting Clear Spring a 2-1 defeat on Saturday, but the season for the Rams came to a convincing end on Monday when they were crushed by undefeated Beall, 8-0, in Frostburg.

Coach Bob Bonser and his squad concluded the season with an overall record of 6-13.

The first half of Saturday's match against Clear Spring ended in a scoreless tie, but Adam Reid put the Blazers up 1-0 with an unassisted goal at the 31:07 mark of the second half.

Bobby Bonser tied it at 1-1 with an unassisted goal for the Rams with 22:47 left in the match, and it appeared that the contest was headed into overtime.

However, with just 17 seconds remaining in regulation, Southern's Ethan Chorpenning scored another unassisted goal to give the Rams the victory.

Southern finished with a 14-6 lead in shots and a 6-2 advantage in corner kicks. Drew Proudfoot was credited with seven saves in goal for the Rams.

The Rams were systematically dismantled on Monday by the Mountaineers of Beall, who upped their record to 14-0-1 with four goals scored in each half of action.

Matt Fiorita and Carter Dickel each recorded a hat trick.

The match remained scoreless until the 21:39 mark of the first half when Fiorita scored his first of three goals on the night, this one off an assist by Adam Sommers.

Adam Eshleman made it 2-0 off a feed by Austin Thomas with 15:37 to play in the half.

Dickel followed with an unassisted goal about 3½ minutes later, and Fiorita hit another goal just 56 seconds before halftime off an assist by Josh Bittner.

It took Fiorita less than three minutes to score again in the second half, as he put the ball in the net off a feed by Bittner with 37:23 still on the clock to make it 5-0.

Dickel followed with two goals in a less-than-four-minute span to earn his hat trick, the first off a penalty kick at the 27:32 mark, and the second off an assist by Sommers with 23:51 remaining, giving the Mountaineers a commanding 7-0 lead.

Adding an insurance goal with 5:35 left was Sean Farrell off an assist by Derek King.

The Rams were out-shot by a lopsided 39-6 margin and had no corner kicks, while Beall had seven.

Recording 10 and nine saves, respectively, for Southern were Sean McCreery and Drew Proudfoot. Chris Fike had six saves for Beall.

The Mountaineers will play for the region title this evening at home against either Williamsport or Allegany.

A PLAYOFF VICTORY was recorded Saturday by the Southern High School boys' varsity soccer team, as the Rams topped visiting Clear Spring, 2-1, in an opening round of the 1A West Region tournament. The celebration by the Rams and their fans was short-lived, however, as their quest for a region title was soundly dashed by undefeated Beall on Monday. The Rams were blanked by the undefeated Mountaineers, 8-0, in a quarterfinal match played in Frostburg. In the photo above, taken during the match with Clear Spring, Southern's James Naylor has possession of the ball. Also in the photo, from left, are Rams Ethan Chorpenning (#18), Taylor Crabtree (#15), and Bobby Bonser (#9). Below is Southern's Matt Morgan taking a direct kick from the midfield stripe. Advancing to semifinal action in the 1A West Region soccer playoffs are the Northern High School girls' team, which recorded a 3-0 shutout of visiting Clear Spring in a quarterfinal match played Tuesday.

Coach Lynn Lais's 9-4-1 Huskies will face the winner of Friday evening's Southern/Smithsburg match in the semifinals.

The Huskies needed only the first half of action on Tuesday to put the match's three goals on the board.

Britta Lais scored an unassisted goal 7½ minutes into the contest to put Northern up 1-0.

Tiffany Yoder made it 2-0 with an unassisted goal at the 23:38 mark, and Brittany Milbourne gave the Huskies their 3-0 advantage with a goal off a feed by Lais with 14:25 to play in the first half.

The second half of action was all scoreless defense by both teams.

The Huskies finished with a 14-9 advantage in shots on goal and led 5-1 in corner kicks.

Northern keeper Kayla Kipp had nine saves in earning the shutout. Lais and Megan Shaffer also excelled defensively for the Huskies.

Skidmore Takes Fifth Overall In Md. Golf Tourn.

Southern High School golfer Matt Skidmore was one of three local high school golfers who traveled to Prince George's County last week after earning the right to compete in the Maryland High School Championship Golf Tournament. The Ram senior was joined by SHS teammate Josh Lear and Northern High's Michael Bergstrom in the field of 120 boys and 28 girls.

Skidmore turned in an excellent showing over the two-day event by taking fifth place in the state overall (Classes 1A through 4A), and second place in the 1A/2A rankings. The Southern golfer carded a 73 on the first day and a 74 over the second day to finish with a 147. He had gotten off to a slow start in both rounds, but rallied to birdie on five of his last 13 holes on the first day and five of his last 11 holes on the second day.

Bergstrom hit a 77 on his first day to come in below the 84-stroke cutoff (the top 50 percent of the field). The Husky senior shot an 81 in the second round to tally a two-day total of 158, good for 32nd in the state.

Lear had a good opening round, but just missed the cutoff by two strokes in shooting an 85.

Two other western Maryland golfers took part in the tourney, Melissa Stevens of Beall and Jessica Jewell of Allegany.

Huskies Feast On Wildcat Again; Wallop Westmar 44-0 In One Half

The Northern High School varsity football Huskies feasted on feline for the second straight week, as NHS devoured the Wildcats of Westmar in a 44-0 Friday contest shortened to just one half by lighting. The previous week NHS had chewed up the Pendleton Wildcats by a 37-point margin, and, with a 7-2 record, the Huskies are assured of a berth in the upcoming 1A West Region playoffs.

Every aspect of Northern's game was in top form against Westmar, as the offense scored three touchdowns and gained 107 yards in just 13 plays from scrimmage, the special team unit scored TDs on two punt returns and one kickoff return, and the defense held the Wildcats to a paltry seven yards of offense and just one first down.

NHS's Michael Wolf, the area's top scoring producer, started things off by returning the game's opening kickoff 81 yards for a touchdown, and Eric Johnson ran in the extra point to immediately make the score 8-0.

Not to be outdone, the Huskies' "Grave Digger" defense got into the act on Westmar's first possession when a hit by Jeremiah Wilt caused a fumble that was recovered by Northern at the Wildcats' 26-yard line. On Northern's first play from scrimmage, Tyler Warn streaked into the end zone on a touchdown carry, and Wolf's PAT run made the score 16-0.

Northern's defense struck again on Westmar's subsequent possession, when cornerback Nick Payne picked off an overthrown pass and returned it to the 'Cats 35. NHS then plowed down the field until Wolf hit pay dirt with a seven-yard TD run to cap the seven-play drive. Tight end Brock Glotfelty gathered in the two-point conversion pass from Robert Stark, and the margin went to 24-0.

NHS's defense went to work again on Westmar's possession, as the Huskies held the Wildcats to three plays without moving the chains, but the hosts lucked into a first down when they botched their own punt attempt and managed to move the ball far enough for a first down. Northern held fast again for another three-and-out, forcing another punt that Stark gathered in at the NHS 26 and returned 74 yards for Northern's fourth touchdown of the first quarter. An extra-point run attempt failed, and the Huskies carried a 30-0 lead into the second quarter.

Payne netted his second pickoff of the game on Westmar's next possession, when he made a perfect read of 'Cat quarterback Russell Miller's pass attempt, and returned the interception 15 yards to the Westmar 23. It took NHS's offense just three plays to land in the end zone again, as Warn and Wolf reeled off back-to-back 10-yard runs before Wolf scored from three yards out. Corey Carr connected on the PAT kick, and the score went to 37-0.

Northern put its second-team defense on the field for the next possession, and the reserves showed their stuff by holding the demoralized Westmar offense to another three-and-out. The NHS special team unit took another turn in the spotlight when Wolf took the subsequent punt and returned it 34 yards for the Huskies' sixth and final TD of the first half. Carr's PAT kick put Northern's 44th point on the board, and with lightning illuminating the surrounding skies, the two teams wisely decided to pack up and head for home.

Wolf gained 38 yards on six carries. Wilt and Trevor Butler had seven tackles apiece.

"We said all week that we wanted to take care of business early, and we were able to do it," NHS coach Phil Carr said of his squad's performance. "We also emphasized execution and worked the film hard, showing our guys that if they each do their jobs the system will work. We're especially pleased with our special team effort, which has been giving us good field position all year."

Northern's regular season closes out tomorrow night in Oakland when the Huskies have their annual showdown with Southern's Rams. Although SHS has been struggling through a 2-7 season and the Huskies have taken the last two meetings, Carr said his troops have to be prepared for a tough battle.

"You can throw the records out for this game, and we don't expect anything other than good, hard-hitting football," the NHS skipper stated. "Southern knows it could have won more games than it has, but injuries and fate can change things for the worse. We know that, we've been there ourselves."

Northern's defense is preparing to face SHS's I-formation offense, which is marshaled by senior quarterback Cory Bosley (6-0, 155). "Cory throws as good as anyone in the area," said Carr. "He's an excellent athlete and a smart player who can beat you with his physical skills and his brain."

A favorite target in Southern's passing game is senior split end Brad Reese (5-11, 160), whom Carr called "perhaps the best receiver in the area besides Allegany's Donavin Vinson. If the ball is thrown anywhere near Reese, he'll find a way to make the catch." Lining up behind Bosley will be sophomore fullback Adam VanBogelen (6-0, 170) and junior halfback Brett DeWitt (6-0, 165), "a great running combination," according to Carr.

The Rams' defense operates mainly out of a 5-3 scheme, and works to pressure the offense with numerous blitzes. "They may show us something else, so we have to be ready for anything," said Carr. VanBogelen anchors the defense at middle linebacker, and senior outside linebacker Tyler Graham (5-10, 175) is also a tough tackler. DeWitt can perform well at either defensive end or outside linebacker.

"Coach Gregg and his staff will have their guys well-prepared and ready," Carr predicted. "It's going to be a tough game no matter how you look at it. We're just fortunate to be on a roll, and to have our players at the healthiest they've been in over a month."

The 7 p.m. contest will be simulcast on both 92.3 FM The Train, and on 104.5 FM WKHJ.

Rams Destroyed By Sentinels In Lightning-Shortened Game

"A case of men playing boys" is how Southern High School varsity football coach Fred Gregg described Friday's clash between his Rams and Fort Hill at Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland, where the Sentinels crushed the Rams in a lightning-shortened game, 42-0.

The start was delayed by lightning, and the game was ultimately called at the 9:16 mark of the third quarter. But the 8-1 Sentinels had more than enough time to put the game away.

Kevin Page wasted no time putting Fort Hill on the board, as he took the handoff on the first play from scrimmage and raced 69 yards for a touchdown. Ron Mallow booted the extra point.

On Fort Hill's next possession, Josh Root broke loose and ran 50 yards for a touchdown, and Mallow's PAT made it 14-0.

The Sentinels scored yet one more time in the first quarter, this time on a 15-yard pass from Branden Giffen to A.T. Zembower. Mallow's point-after kick gave Fort Hill a 21-0 lead with 13 seconds left in the period.

Page scored again early in the second quarter, picking off a Cory Bosley pass and running 72 yards to the end zone. Mallow's kick put the home team up 28-0.

Giffen followed with his second touchdown pass of the evening, a 44-yard toss to Tim Hodel for the Sentinels' fifth touchdown with 4:39 to play in the half. Mallow's fifth successful conversion kick gave Fort Hill a 35-0 lead at intermission.

Even though the teams played less than three minutes of the third quarter, it was still enough time for Page to score his third touchdown of the evening, taking the ball 46 yards on just his fourth carry of the night. Mallow again kicked the PAT to conclude the scoring.

Page finished with 130 yards on just four carries. The Sentinels recorded 35 points and 273 yards of offense in just the first half of action.

The Rams finished with 81 yards rushing, with Bosley gaining 33 of those. The loss dropped the Rams to 2-7.

"We were out-matched at every turn," Coach Gregg said. "It really was a case of men against boys, and there's not a lot more to say. Plus the weather situation, with all of the delays, just made things worse."

While Gregg and most Ram fans believe that this week's opponent is not quite the caliber of Fort Hill, the coach was quick to point out that the Rams will be in for yet another major test this Friday at home when Northern comes to town for the annual Garrett County clash.

"Northern is a very, very good football team," he said. "There's just no question about that."

When asked about the Rams' schedule being more difficult than that of the Huskies, he said, "That doesn't matter. Regardless of whom they play, this is an excellent team, and we are going to have to play extremely well in order to have a chance."

The Huskies' 6-3 defensive unit is led by senior nose guard Trevor Butler (5-10, 255), junior defensive end Corey Yoder (6-1, 170), sophomore middle linebacker Corey Carr (6-0, 205), senior corner Eric Johnson (6-0, 190), and senior safety Robert Stark (5-9, 150).

"Butler does a great job for them," Gregg said. "He's very active at his position.

"Yoder is as good as anyone we've seen at defensive end this year.

"Carr really moves well from sideline to sideline, and he is the best hitter on the team.

"Johnson and Stark do a great job in their secondary. They both have a great nose for the ball, and they close in very fast," he said.

Steelers' Div. II Squad Edged In Three Overtimes

It was a clash of Cumberland Area Youth Football League titans in Accident when the Northern Steelers hosted the Ridgeley Rams for a Division II semifinal contest Saturday. When the dust finally cleared after three hard-fought overtime periods, the visiting Rams had claimed a 13-7 victory.

The game was a defensive struggle throughout, as both teams locked horns for four quarters of scoreless combat. The first touchdown came in the first overtime stanza when the Rams scored on a five-yard carry and an extra-point run. With their backs to the wall, the Steelers responded with a touchdown and an extra-point run to pull even at 7-all.

Both offenses were stymied throughout a scoreless second overtime period. The deadlock was broken in the third OT when Ridgeley scored on an eight-yard touchdown pass.

NEW YEARS EVE?
CALL THE LIMO MAN

HEADED TO YOUTH CHEER COMPETITION – Division I and II of the Northern Steeler Cheer Teams are gearing up for the Youth Cheer Competition at Fort Hill High School on Nov. 14. The public is invited to attend the event. Above are members of the Division I team. In the front, from left to right, are Linzi Sisler, co-captain; Blair Crisson, captain; Tanya Devine, captain; and Hannah Sines, co-captain. In the middle are Sarah Wampler, Rachel Margroff, Lara Beitzel, Carrie Fike, Samantha Stallings, Brooke Hare, Amber Stemple, and Lacey Warnick. In the back is Kathleen Seaman, coach. Absent was Amanda Friend, assistant coach. Below are members of the Division II team. In the front is Jordan Seaman, co-captain. In the second row are Scarlett Fost, captain; and Casey Kenzy, co-captain. In the third row are Noanie Teates, Erin Beiler, and Lincoln Humberson. In the back is Seaman. Friend is also absent from this photo.

Northern's wishbone offense is paced by one of the area's most talented backfields, according to Gregg, with the area's rushing leader, senior Michael Wolf (5-10, 165), at halfback; senior quarterback Stark; junior fullback Jeff Warn (5-11, 185); and Johnson at the other halfback position.

"While Michael Wolf is the best of the bunch, I believe Stark's abilities at quarterback are really overlooked," Gregg said. "He does an excellent job running their wishbone, and he's a very good runner himself. He's not real big, but he's strong.

"If you had Warn and Wolf switch jerseys, it would be difficult to tell which was which," Gregg said. "Both of them have such good vision and good instincts for the game.

"And finally, with Johnson back there at the other halfback spot, you end up with one of the most outstanding backfields in the area," he said.

The Huskies will arrive in Oakland sporting a record of 7-2, just off a 44-0 rout of Westmar last Friday in another game that was halted at halftime.

The Rams are "generally healthy," Gregg said, with Tyler Graham and T.J. Siser still hobbled somewhat by injuries, but expected to play.

Friday's kickoff at the Southern athletic field is set for 7 p.m. It will be Senior Parent night, and the parents of all senior players, senior cheerleaders, and senior band members will be recognized just prior to the kickoff.

Lakers To Open Season With Team Of Mostly Newcomers

Graduation took a major toll on the Garrett College basketball team, as only one starter will be back in the Laker lineup this year. However, GC coach Dennis Gibson is nonetheless excited about the 2004-05 season and what appears to be another successful recruiting year.

The Lakers are scheduled to open their campaign this weekend in the Therasport Classic in Rockingham, N.C.

Gone are Akeem Scott, Darren Stackhouse, James Hippolyte, and James Jones, who were key to the Lakers' earning two straight District III playoff appearances and the 2003 Region XX championship. The only starter back this year is 6-6 forward Lavonti Jeter of T.C. Williams High School in Virginia.

"It's not very often that JUCO teams have a veteran roster and a pre-season All-American [Scott] like we did last year," said Gibson, who is beginning his 20th season as the Lakers' mentor. "I can only say that, as much as I miss those guys, I am thrilled to be working with this new group of young men."

As a starter last year, Jeter played in 28 games, averaged over 8 points per outing, was second on the team in rebounding with just over 5 per game, and led the squad in blocked shots with 24.

Two other returning sophomores who contributed significantly to the Lakers' success last year are 6-7 Adam Morgan from Cumberland, and 5-11 point guard Tristan Largent of Martinsburg, W.Va.

Morgan appeared in 30 games last season and was the leading freshman scorer with 10.6 ppg. He shot 40% from the three-point line, connecting on 72 of 180 attempts. He also set a Garrett individual game record, hitting 11 of 17 three-point attempts in a game vs. College of Southern Maryland. His point total of 33 in that game was also a season high.

Largent was the sixth man during the Lakers' 2003 Region XX championship run. He averaged 19 minutes of playing time per game, and in that time recorded an average of 5.6 points and 3.1 assists. He is slated to be the starting point guard this season and will be joined by transfer sophomore Marco Van Pelt, a 5-10, 190-pound guard from Mount Vernon High School, Virginia.

"These four guys will form the backbone of our team," Gibson said. "They are all hard workers and very dedicated. I think they have a chance to be very good on the court, plus they are great citizens and leaders here in the college community."

Incoming freshmen guard prospects Tauvon Pettiford, Josef Kariuki, and Doyle Brown all bring different abilities to the mix, Gibson said, and all will be called upon to help the team through the long JUCO season.

Pettiford brings with him from Calvert High School in Owings Mills a 21 ppg average and the title of Southern Maryland Athletic Conference Player of the Year. He is the son of former Allegany College standout Eric Kearney. At 6-3 he played both point and wing guard for Calvert, and will be expected to do the same at Garrett.

Brown, at 6-0, 170, was one of the top shooters in the Northern Virginia region and held the single-game record for South Lakes High School with 13 three-pointers in one game. He averaged 13 points and two steals.

Kariuki has made the team as a walk-on, and according to Gibson brings good quickness and defensive work to the team, despite his limited high school experience as a sophomore at prep powerhouse St. Anthony's in New Jersey.

Gibson believes the Lakers will get some outstanding post play out of a pair of top recruits in 6-7 Tyrice Watkins of Woodbridge (Va.) High School, and 6-6, 230-pound Jeff Washington of Liberty High School (Va.).

Watkins, who was recruited in high school by the likes of Auburn, George Mason, and Radford, averaged 16 points, eight rebounds, and three blocks per game.

Washington, who had signed to play football for Temple University before settling on playing collegiate basketball instead, was the MVP at Liberty High, thanks to a 17-point, 10-rebound average as a senior.

Rounding out the Laker squad will be 6-6 Antoine Williams of Phoebus High School in Virginia, and 6-5 Ivan Funcic, who is a graduate of Northern High School (not Garrett County).

Williams was a three-year starter for Phoebus, where he averaged 15 points and six rebounds per game in his senior season.

Funcic, who is a native of Croatia, averaged 15 points and five rebounds in his final season at Northern. He was also the Southern Maryland Athletic Conference high jump champion his senior year, and was named to the SMAC basketball all-star squad.

While Coach Gibson likes what he sees in the preseason, he said that the Lakers will be severely tested this year.

"We have in front of us not only a tough opening tournament, but also one of the toughest schedules we've faced in quite a while," he said. "I like this group, but there are just too many variables right now. We are not playing as well as I would like at this time in preseason. I think we will be a very strong team when everyone is healthy, but we are not at full strength right now.

"We'll focus on just taking things one step at a time, and work hard to meld as a team," he continued. "This team has everything we need to be successful and should also be exciting to watch."

SHS, NHS Netters Riding Waves Into 1A Post-Season

The Southern and Northern high school volleyball teams are both riding upswings into this week's 1A West Region playoffs, which open tomorrow night. The Huskies will host Westmar tomorrow, while the top-seeded Rams earned a bye that gives them until Monday to prepare for a home court match against the winner of that NHS-Westmar match-up.

Northern (6-9 overall) has taken four of its last six outings in rebounding from a slow start to its season. The Huskies downed the Wildcats twice during the regular campaign, taking a pitched 3-2 battle at home on Sept. 13 before trouncing the Westmar hosts in an easy 3-0 sweep on Sept. 29 in Lonaconing.

Tomorrow's other first-round match-up pits Allegany against Clear Spring in Cumberland.

Southern (13-1) put together four straight 3-0 sweeps to close its campaign on a roll heading into Monday's contest with the NHS-Westmar winner. The Rams' only defeat came at the hands of Fort Hill, two weeks after SHS had beaten the Sentinels. The two squads will not meet in the playoffs, as Fort Hill competes in the 2A bracket.

Monday's quarterfinal round also places Hancock at Smithsburg; Beall at Boonesboro; and the winner of the Clear Spring-Allegany match at second-seeded Williamsport.

As might be expected from their season record, the top-seeded Rams have high hopes entering the playoffs. With a Monday night quarterfinal debut at home against either NHS, which they downed in two 3-0 sweeps, or Westmar, which fell in 3-1, 3-0 Ram onslaughts, Coach Sue Newton's Southern squad may have a rather smooth road into the Nov. 10 semifinal round. Both the semifinal contest and the Nov. 12 or 13 1A championship match will take place on the home court of the higher-seeded team in each match; therefore, Southern can gain an all-important home advantage throughout the Regional Tournament.

Southern JVs Swamp NHS By 32-Point Margin

The Southern High School junior varsity football squad capped an excellent 7-1-1 season with a 44-12 thumping of the Northern Huskies (3-6) Monday night in Accident.

Sophomore Ram tailback Justin Ratliff notched the first of his two touchdowns on a three-yard first-quarter carry, and ran in the point-after to give the guests an 8-0 lead. Northern responded when freshman quarterback Garrett Gulledge hit classmate Blair Silbaugh with a three-yard scoring strike, but the subsequent conversion pass attempt failed. It took SHS just 39 seconds to put its next TD on the board when Ratliff rumbled 55 yards on a scoring carry.

In the second quarter, with 3:28 showing on the clock, NHS freshman halfback Andy Ganoe scored on a 19-yard run. Just before the halftime gun Southern got on the board again when VanBogelen hit sophomore slotback Dean Hoffman with a 10-yard TD pass. The conversion pass was successful, giving the Rams a 22-12 halftime lead.

SHS outscored the Huskies 24-0 over the second half, beginning with a five-yard touchdown run by sophomore tailback John Knox. Ratliff carried in the PAT. Thirty seconds later Ram lighting struck again when sophomore tight end Josh Paugh gathered in a 25-yard touchdown pass from VanBogelen to put SHS up 36-12. Southern scored its final TD with 4:12 remaining in the contest when freshman tailback Vince Harmon sped off on a 64-yard scoring carry. Tommie Reams carried in the point-after.

The Ram ground game tallied 259 yards on 31 carries, with Ratliff netting 141 yards on 19 carries.

Anti-Windfarm

facility, a 67-turbine Clipper Windpower facility that would be built in the following two sections: 1) a line spanning 3.3 miles along Backbone Mountain's ridgeline from Wild Turkey Rock to Eagle Rock Road; and 2) a 5.3-mile line from Bethlehem Road to Table Rock.

A separate 24-turbine wind farm, the Roth Rock facility, has been proposed by Synergics Wind Energy, and is currently in the PSC hearing process. That facility would be sited on approximately 20 acres of land to the north and south of Roth Rock.

The Friends of Backbone Mountain organization has distributed literature locally that outlines the group's concerns over wind power. Among the issues the group cites are possible conflicts between local landowners and the property rights of non-resident commercial windfarm developers; negligible benefits for the county's economy and job market; adverse impacts to scenic vistas, forest land, and wildlife (especially bats and migratory birds); exaggerated benefits of wind power; the use of federal funds for private wind facility development in the form of subsidies and tax credits; and the imposing size of the wind turbines themselves.

Adorable Adoptables

FOUND ALONG RT. 50 was this very friendly beagle, above at left. A member of the local Humane Society invites residents to come meet him at the Garrett County Animal Shelter, located along Oakland Sang Run Road. Also available for adoption is a young male mixed breed canine who is still young enough to still be trained. He has been at the shelter for two weeks. He would need to be neutered, vaccinated, and loved. A very friendly black male cat has also been waiting for many weeks for a new home. "The shelter has many dogs to chose from and has been almost full several times this week. Please come by and adopt a homeless animal and save a life," the Humane Society member said. "Additionally, the weather is getting colder. Please don't put your pets outside without adequate shelter from the rain and snow and wind. A dog crate/carrier is not sufficient, and a wooden dog house would probably be better than a hard plastic type. But if that is what you have then line it with straw to provide insulation and warmth. Please contact the animal shelter if you observe a pet without adequate shelter in our county." For more information, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-3553.

A BEAUTIFUL VIEW of Muddy Creek Falls, Maryland's tallest waterfall, will be more comfortable and more easily accessed thanks to improvement projects that are under way in Swallow Falls State Park. Pictured above is a new platform which overlooks the falls near the Thomas Edison/Henry Ford campsite. The area will be more easily accessible for those in wheelchairs because of the new ramp, pictured below, that leads from the parking area to the overlook. New steps that descend the falls are also being constructed. Awarded the contract for the work was Winters General Contractors Inc., Oakland. Photos by John McEwen.

A RATHER UNIQUE "CAMPAIGN" was held at a Deep Creek Lake eatery for one month prior to this week's presidential election, and the results of that campaign yielded cash donations to both the Garrett County Republican and Democratic central committees. The Inn at Point View and the Sweetwater Grill called the campaign "Vote with your Stomach," and the effort yielded 2,721 "votes cast" for either President Bush or Senator Kerry. While Senator Kerry came on strong in the final two weeks of the campaign, interestingly enough, President Bush ultimately finished with 51.5%, while Kerry garnered 48.5%, almost a mirror image of how Tuesday's national vote went. Proceeds from the campaign totaled $1,000, and were distributed to the local political clubs according to the percentages. Accepting a check for $485 for the Garrett County Democratic Central Committee was Betty Pritt, pictured above left, while Brenda Butscher, right, representing the Garrett County Republican Central Committee accepted a check for $515. Making the presentation was Kevin Potter, owner of Point View. "It was a small step we could take to encourage everyone to work together as Americans for a better community and a better country," Potter said. On the day prior to this week's election, Potter said, "We want to thank all our guests, and no matter who wins, let's hope that the course of leadership inspires all people to work together as Americans to build a stronger community and nation devoted to freedom, liberty, and justice for all."

LEARNING INFANT TOUCH THERAPY – Infant and Toddler Touch Therapy training, sponsored by the Garrett County Infants and Toddlers Program, was held recently at Garrett College. This training is a collaborative effort of Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc., Garrett County Board of Education, Garrett County Health Department (Healthy Families and Personal Health), Garrett County Department of Social Services and Garrett County Community Action (Head Start and Early Start). Carol Sisler, a nationally certified message therapist, demonstrated techniques to use with young children to help with bonding and health related issues that many young children experience. Those who attended the training were then allowed to try the techniques under the trainer's watchful eyes. The parents and children who attended the training said they enjoyed the morning and gave the training very good reviews. The Garrett County Infants and Toddlers Program offers free evaluation and therapy services to families with an infant or toddler that may be experiencing a developmental delay, at risk for a developmental delay due to a medical condition, or experiencing atypical development. Studies have shown that early intervention in these children is the best way to head off and or possibly correct these problems, said a spokesperson, adding that children who receive early intervention services do much better in school. Parents with concerns about their child's development may contact the program at 301-334-1189. All services are free of charge to the family. Pictured above is Crystal Roberson-Boal giving her son Landon a massage while Carol Sisler (trainer) watches.

Garrett Names New Dean Of Info. Technology

Catherine Torok, who has worked as an administrator and a teacher of information technology for fifteen years, has been appointed dean of information technology at Garrett College. In this position she succeeds Don Storck, who retired earlier this year.

As dean she will be responsible for overall management, development, and implementation of the college's information technology systems. Her duties will include coordination of the institutional management system for planning and decision making, and oversight of college-wide voice, video, and data systems, as well as instructional and administrative computer systems.

Most recently Torok was employed by the Greater Johnstown School District, where she prepared secondary level students for employment in the information technology field, developed curriculum, and prepared annual budgets for the PC Maintenance/Data Networking program. Prior to that she was director of technology at the Admiral Peary Area Vocational and Technical School (APAVTS), Ebensburg, Pa. In this position she directed the implementation of a range of technologies to support the educational mission of the APAVTS and its seven participating school districts. She also taught as an adjunct faculty member at the Cambria County Area Community College.

For three years Torok was director of information technology for the Conemaugh Health System in Johnstown, where she managed information technology support teams and Internetworking services. From 1988 to 1996 she was employed by Concurrent Technologies Corporation in various management and technical positions.

Torok holds a bachelor of science degree in computer science, with a mathematics emphasis, from Pitt-Johnstown, and a master of education degree in professional studies from Indiana University of Pennsylvania. Among her honors and certifications are membership in the honor society of Phi Kappa Phi, Who's Who in the Computer Industry, Who's Who Worldwide, Cisco Certified Academy instructor, and BICSI Registered Communications Distribution Designer (RCDD).

Patricia LaMarche, Green, 14.

In the senatorial race, Republican E.J. Pipkin received nearly 62 percent of the county's vote, while Democratic incumbent Barbara Mikulski had only about 37 percent. Mikulski, however, received the most votes statewide and will retain her seat in the U.S. Senate.

Also in the Senate race, Green Party candidate Maria Allwine received 65 votes in Garrett County, while Thomas Trump of the Constitution Party received only 61 votes.

Rep. Roscoe Bartlett will also retain his 6th Congressional District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives. Bartlett received 77 percent of the votes in Garrett County, while his Democratic challenger, Kenneth Bosley, received only about 21 percent of the votes. Green Party congressional candidate Gregory Hemingway got less than 2 percent of Garrett County votes.

For the Maryland Court of Special Appeals at-large position, nearly 85 percent of county voters favored Chief Judge Joseph Murphy's continuance in office.

For Garrett County Board of Education at-large positions, James Raley and Charlotte Sebold ran unopposed. Raley received 7,747 votes. Sebold had 8,049 votes.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

The Angel Bells crew was out in full force at my home on Saturday morning, in spite of the on and off rain, to put a new roof on the back of my house. There was a whole bunch of pounding. My poor nephew, Matthew Bass, carried dozens of 100-pound bundles of shingles up the stairs. I guess it was better for a young strong athlete than the crew of 50-some-year-old men with their somewhat challenged backs and hearts. Actually a few of them did carry some bundles up too. I saluted them as well as the rest of the crew, especially the knowledgeable construction head, Steve Schwienberger, who recently moved in our neck of the woods from the Ocean City area to that strangely named road, Root Beachy Road. Although he was the Catholic recruit, he blended in with our Bittinger Lutheran Parish men.

Steve is the husband of my longtime friend Linda. He is still busy getting their new home together and their teenagers established in their new life. He still has not found a new full-time job, in spite of the fact he has all the credentials and skills to get snapped up by a wise and lucky contractor. About a dozen less-experienced workers from our parish and my family worked all day on Saturday under Steve's direction, but alas, the job still required more hours to complete.

As the hammers were flying on my roof, another crew was busy in the kitchen of Carol Bass preparing a feast for the crew. They were also helped out by some of our bakers with many treats from their ovens. I had many rave over the raisin cookies baked by Mary Brenneman Frey. Part of the crew ate at Carol's house, but the second crew opted to eat in the barn. It was not our traditional barn party, but well worth my major effort to join them. My only regret was that this Sunday morning at 5 a.m. new time, the ache in my left leg and hip woke me up because my inner clock took no account of any extreme change. Or it could have been my mother's instinct to stay up until all her children got home.

Caitlin had a long day at the Musselman Band Show near Martinsburg, W.Va., where the Northern High School Marching Band continued its struggle to reach its previous standard of excellence. After several years of being top in their group under the tutelage of William Robinson, they are struggling, especially without their brass players lost to graduation and Robbie Glotfelty, tuba player, who is now marching in the Maryland "Terps" Band. Robbie's sister plays a major role as drum major, with twins Darryl and Elliot still lending some sweet notes to the band.

It is quite similar to the NHS athletic program during the 1960s that achieved undefeated seasons in both football and basketball with an unusually gifted roster of athletes. After that group moved on into either major college programs or even the pro ranks, my days at NHS did not have those kind of teams.

Winning is not the only thing or the most important thing. It is the experience of hard work and dedication that make our high school activities well worth our support. Bittinger has always contributed more than its share of student leaders. We have had many fine athletes, cheerleaders, and musicians. Their offspring have followed their lead. Look at the Brenneman boys, who led Husky sport teams for decades.

I risked losing my thought train to get up and do a crucial job in the continuing effort of fixing my roof to make a pot of fresh coffee for the planned returning of a few of the crew on this Sunday morning. That is the least I can do for them. Unfortunately, it's about the only thing I can do to help. Work on Sunday morning – is that a Christian thing to do? My leaky roof probably qualified as an ox in the well. Christ said, of course, you could work on urgent jobs on the Sabbath. In Bittinger in fall and winter a bad roof is an urgent job. But this morning rain seems in the far distance as nothing but blue sky is in sight. I don't ever need to run my new wonderful furnace, courtesy of Rush Services.

I don't like to be a charity case. The only thing accepted is the kindness of my neighbors, and I try to do what I can to help other needy people far away. That is the traditional job of that rare breed of people around here.

I give the Angel Bell crew a very high rating and thanks for the great job they did on my roof. The purpose of this group is to help individuals unable to handle necessary jobs around their homes. Rob Vagnetti is the contact person at 301-387-2527. The volunteers were Rob and Meredith Vagnetti, Bruce and Vick Taliaferro, Keith and Pat Pittsnogle, Yvonne and Mike McConnell and son Michael, Sally Poholsky, my family Rodney Glotfelty, Matthew, Kevin and Scott Bass, Barry Glotfelty, Mike Englar, and boss Steve. Courtney Englar, Rodney, Kevin and Rob completed the job on Monday. Of course, Carol Bass was in charge of the food for the workers.

Linda and Pete Buckel dropped by for awhile during the juggling of grandchildren and hospital arrangements for her daughter, Kim Collins, who is hospitalized in Cumberland with severe abdominal pain. Also Linda's mother, Lottie Brenneman, had a little setback, but is doing better.

I will vote early on Tuesday morning. If the election would be decided by the roof crew, Kerry would win by a landslide. My estimate is that 80% of it was diehard liberals, or what cousin Mike Englar called "Yellow Dog Democrat," who is one who would vote for a yellow dog before a Republican. What about "Black Dog"? My Boo is black and just about as worthless a creature as you would want. Her only worthwhile task is to sleep with me and help keep me warm, and she is a loyal friend and somewhat a watch dog. I would rather have her around than any fierce attack dog like the ones who used to guard the horse farm where I used to work in Ohio. They were just as likely to attack the workers on the farm as intruders.

WINS 50/50 DRAWING – Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad Auxiliary president Joanne Shaffer is shown presenting a check to Rudy Cvetnick. He was the winner of the group's recent Autumn Glory Festival 50/50 drawing. Cventick donated a portion of his winnings back to the rescue squad.

I was lucky enough to turn on the History Channel for a story about the Baseball Hall of Fame. After the usual hordes about the story heroes from big market teams like the Yankees and California teams, at least in my opinion, the greatest was Roberto Clemente, who did more for the Pirates than his 4,000 hits because he died as he lived – being a hero. He overcame racism and negative press. He did it for himself while delivering earthquake relief. The Baseball Hall of Fame waived its five-year waiting period for only the second time – for only Roberto and Lou Gehrig. They were honored not on Halloween, but the following day on All Saints Day. I never wrote a single column about them without shedding some tears.

This week's tears are for our world losing another hero to an untimely death. It seems that in my younger days they were shadowed by too many of those, namely, Jack, Bobby, Martin, Roberto, and yes, Scott. It seems the good die young. I would add an Arabic name to that list, Sadat, who is the only modern peacemaker in the Mid-East. His partner in peace still lives on far beyond his youth, Jimmy Carter, who embodies everything that a Christian and liberal should be.

The clearer sky came with a sharp drop in temperature as the wind direction shifted from the south with the Gulf moisture to the west/north with the dryer cooler Arctic air. This is not a big shock for those who live around Bittinger in November. But what about my mother, Ruth DiPaolo, who arrived in time for the clear cool air after a week on board ship cruising in the Caribbean, or cousin Courtney home again in time to listen to a rare football victory for the Maryland Terrapins against Florida State. During his visit to Peru he did see some Garrett County bird species, including our barn swallows. He also saw some much more exotic species,

Bello Home To Be On '04 ARC Holiday Tours

The local chapter of the American Red Cross will host the 13th annual Home for the Holidays House Tours on Friday, Dec. 3, from 4 until 9 p.m., and on Saturday, Dec. 4, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Among the sites on this year's circuit will be the home of Michael and Sandy Bello, located along Tanglewood Drive in Oakland.

The home was constructed in 1999 by Dirk Yoder at Byco Builders, currently owner of DayStar Builders. The architectural plans were by Donald Gardner. The Bellos selected the house because of its cottage style. One of the features that appealed to them, they stated, were the large outdoor living areas.

Four sides of the house have screened porches, and there is a large deck with a hot tub overlooking a pond.

Most of the living space of the home is on the main floor, where there is a great room, two and a half stories high with two stories of glass to let in the southern light. The great room, kitchens, and all bathrooms feature cherry custom cabinets made by Englewood Handcrafted Cabinetry of Cumberland. The first floor also includes the large master suite, as well as the dining room with a bay window. Guest rooms and a guest bath, with an overlook to the great room, are located on the second floor.

The garage and photo studio are located in an adjoining building. The home is located on seven acres in the community of Tanglewood, just outside Oakland. A large meadow and lawn area with a landscaped garden are featured in the front. Out the back is a pond and woods with an abundance of wildlife.

The interior of the home is decorated with antiques and reproductions, mixed with traditional furnishings. Both floors and the studio will be open for guests of the tour.

Tour tickets for all guests, including children, are $8 in advance and $10 at the "door" (on the days of the tours). The other three sites of the tour are the home of Roger Sines and Suzie Mattson, the McHenry United Methodist Church, and the new German Village, located at Fantasy Valley, also in the McHenry area.

MICHAEL AND SANDY BELLO HOME TO BE ON ARC TOUR

Guests will be asked to remove their shoes before touring the sites, organizers noted. They will also be asked to refrain from photographing or videotaping in the homes.

Tickets will go on sale at Proudfoot's and Gregg's pharmacies in Oakland, Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek, and the Deep Creek Pharmacy.

For more information, persons may contact Bea Crosco at 301-334-3153. Feature stories about the other three sites will be published in The Republican in the next three issues.

like Andes condor and other birds of South America. Overall his trip was very good. Several Terp fans expressed their elation about the victory as they were on the way up to my roof.

I am even looking forward to another birthday on the wrong side of 50 this coming weekend because I should have all my daughters home with me then and the election will be over, even if the legal challenges are not.

The skywatching gathering that I hosted last Wednesday evening was not a total loss, as the company was good. About eight or so folks with inquiring minds were trying to make some sense of our limited astrology knowledge in order to answer some questions about whether or not the West Coast can see the eclipse now, too. Not that we were able to see it all, as it was much too cloudy, or whether someone in South America could see it, or when. Or can you see a lunar eclipse in the daytime? etc. Although we didn't come up with good answers it was nice to listen to the reasons people came up with. I guess we can get an answer about South America from Courtney. My mother was expecting it to be on Thursday night as I previously told her so it was over before she could witness it, but she did see it on TV on Thursday while on the ship.

Good news for Margaret Hershberger Wagner as she got a clean bill of health after being treated for colon cancer. She will undergo more blood tests to get further results. But although Margaret is doing much better, her daughter Ellen Housley is recovering from hernia surgery.

Apparently the bear hunt was a non-event in this part of Bittinger, as no one from the Peat Moss Buckel clan had a permit, and Sheila didn't see much action in the woods around her house. Several people recently reported seeing an albino buck deer or perhaps several between here and Bittinger. Most people hope hunters refrain shooting them, but that is probably too much to hope for, as who could resist to bag something so rare! If they can survive a few years perhaps Bittinger will be known as the home of the white deer. I would think they must be very beautiful.

Next Sunday will be "All Saints Day" at Emmanuel Lutheran Church, and the new Bell Tower will be dedicated.

I learned about another wonderful project of our Angel Bell program. They built a sturdy ramp for Lucretia Stanton so she can have access for her wheelchair to her porch.

For an odd election fact, all of the residents on Peat Moss Road vote at Bittinger polls except for the Southerly household and Ida Reckner, whose polling place is Garrett College. Why? Who knows? It is far less convenient for them, especially for one of our oldest voters. Another of our older voters will turn 91 years young on November 11, while her little sister Beulah Moon will have her birthday on the 9th. Kevin Bass and Bill Southerly will celebrate their birthdays on November 7. A mother and daughter pair, Sharon and Kandi Buckel will celebrate their co-birthdays on November 10. I believe that day is also Virginia Brenneman's birthday. November is the biggest birthday month in Bittinger. My Caitlin and I will also have birthdays this month. Caitlin will be turning "sweet 16" and she is sweet as you can hope for for a teenage girl. Also Bill Kolbe will have another birthday on November 21.

Apparently the Terps' victory on Saturday must have brought some worry, as Robbie Glotfelty reported that a fleet of helicopters hovered above the campus following the game to prevent any rioting. A number of visitors at the game from here reported that they saw and talked to Robbie on Saturday.

The answer is "yes" to the question on whether Courtney saw the eclipse in Peru on Wednesday night. It was one of the few clear nights, and he said the eclipse turned the moon into a reddish brown color.

GCMH SUB-ACUTE UNIT HOSTS REUNION – The Garrett County Memorial Hospital Sub-Acute Rehabilitation Unit hosted its annual patient reunion recently. Since opening in 1997, the Sub-Acute Unit has helped hundreds of patients who were too sick to return home, or those in need of additional short-term treatment or therapy but not sick enough to remain in an acute hospital setting. "We enjoy the opportunity to visit with our past patients and see how well they are doing," said Sub-Acute nurse manager Debbie Hawk. Pictured are, from the left in Row 1: Reah Phillips, Curtis Bonner, and Judy Cox. Row 2: Blade Sharpless, Mandy Sharpless, Debbie Hawk, Virginia Brantner, Jean McConnell, Ruby Harvey, Mary Ann Weeks, and Chris Wildesen. Row 3: Karen Bonner, Donna Lewis, Russ McConnell, Katherine Long, and Lori Davis. Row 4: Dee Murphy, Dawn McKenzie, and Sue Snyder.

Message from the Dean's Desk — Garrett College

Dean of Academic Affairs

That's my traditional reaction to the last weekend of each October, when we "gain" an hour thanks to daylight saving time. This year, my reaction has been even more excited as I've realized some of what I can do (and learn) with an extra hour's time.

For instance, I could attend one of Garrett's co-curricular activities, during which we bring in guest speakers so that our students and our community members can have access to exciting ideas often connected with multiculturalism. Recently, we've had Mike and Vianne Bell speak to our students about democracies in South Africa and enjoyed a travelogue from Steve Herman, in which he discussed his visits to Estonia. Both talks hit home for us; we're actively working on increasing our international population at the college and are delighted that Estonian students such as Kerri Jurimae, Ivo Kuotmo, Kalle Rattesepp, and Christina Kask are studying with us this fall. This spring, we'll welcome South African educators to Garrett College and Garrett County once more, in partnership with the Garrett County Board of Education.

Our co-curricular activities are not always focused on multiculturalism, however. Each semester, Kevin Dodge leads students on walking tours of the Cranesville Swamp area, teaching them about our area's natural wonders. Students have also recently had a chance to hear about our region's beauty from Julia Geisler, former GC student, and Mike Snyder. Thanks to the Adventure Sports Institute faculty's coordination of the event, Julia and Mike gave an awesome presentation about hiking the Appalachian Trail. Within an hour and with 200 slides, they had their audience spellbound with images and words about their experiences. They inspired even those of us who don't regularly hike, not to mention our Adventure-sports students, many of whom aspire to use adventure therapy as a way of educating and invigorating others.

Students were educated and invigorated in a different way recently when Cameron Miles, Community Outreach director for Advocates for Children and Youth, presented "Put Down the Remote and Vote," a presentation that helped students understand that in a democracy, we have an obligation to express ourselves for the sake of our children's future. We are grateful to Lyz Biser, director of juvenile justice, for coordinating Cameron's visit.

Speaking of coordinating, we're excited about Ben Sincell's work in helping GC students stay involved with productions at Our Town Theatre, and we're eagerly anticipating Only an Orphan Girl, which is open to the public. GC students who attend the play can earn a co-curricular credit and applaud their fellow students, including actors John Armstrong, Krystle Towne, and Anthony Oliverio and stage manager Diane Alexander. Behind the scenes, students from Ben's Fundamentals of Technical Theatre class will get the chance to apply their theatre lessons in a hands-on way that benefits our entire community.

For those students who want to see theatre in a different venue, we're proud to sponsor a trip to New York City over Thanksgiving weekend, led by Professor Lonnie Brewster and including tickets to productions like Phantom of the Opera and Bombay Dreams. Lonnie, who leads trips to New York annually, is also sponsoring a trip to Spain this spring, and he and his students will undoubtedly return to regale us with tales of their adventures.

Other tales will be spun during "Tellabration," co-sponsored by the AAUW and coordinated by Dr. Gail Herman on Nov. 20. The next day, the Garrett Community Concert Band will perform at Garrett, treating us to great music directed by Music Program administrator Jerry McGee and performed by students such as Caroline Stahl.

Clearly, I have many ways to spend my extra hour, but I know I speak for all of us at Garrett when I write that part of my time goes to keeping Carol Newman, a member of our Continuing Education staff, and her family in our thoughts. Carol's daughter Tammy Friend was one of Garrett's students and by extension a member of our GC family, and we were deeply saddened by her recent passing. Saying goodbye is never easy, particularly in a small, close-knit place like Garrett. Ending this column by noting Tammy's loss is our way of indicating our sympathy and our care for Carol and her family.

Distance Learning Courses Set By Garrett College

Twenty-eight distance learning courses will be offered by Garrett College during spring semester 2005, according to the new schedule of credit courses published last week. Although the majority of the courses will be given on the Internet, several are scheduled via interactive television.

The Internet courses that have been developed by a Garrett College faculty member will begin January 24 and end May 16 to correspond with the dates of spring semester. Internet courses that originate from another Maryland two-year college will have varying starting dates in January and ending dates in May. Most of these courses will have course fees in addition to tuition. Specific dates and fees are published in the spring schedule, now available at all branches of the Ruth Enlow Library and at the college.

Four business courses are on the schedule – Intro to Business (BUS 101), Medical Terminology (BUS 130), Intro to Financial Management (BUS 225), and Human Resource Management (BUS 230). Principles of Accounting II (ACC 112) is also offered.

Science courses scheduled are Principles of Nutrition (BIO 130), General Chemistry I (CHE 101), Physical Geography (ES 121), Meteorology (PHY 145), and Astronomy (PHY 147).

Computer courses are Database: Microsoft Access (CA 185), Visual Basic Programming (CIT 248), Intro to C/C++ Prog (CIT 240), and Intro to Computers (CS 105).

Other Internet courses are Principles of Economics (ECN 201), Process & Acquisition of Reading (ED 270), Technical Writing (ENG 103), Survey of British Literature (ENG 251), American History to 1865 (HIS 111), Principles & Practices of Juvenile Justice (JUV 130), Differential Equations (MAT 250), General Psychology (PSY 101), Educational Psychology (PSY 211), Principles of Sociology (SOC 101), and Intro to Communications (SPC 101).

Students can register for these distance learning courses during business hours at the Student Assistance Center of the college. To enroll, a student should have at least a 2.0 grade point average.

RAISING FUNDS WITH BEEF RAFFLE – Students at Broad Ford Elementary School recently participated in a beef raffle to raise money for the playground improvement fund. The beef was purchased and donated by Guy and Donna Harvey. Prizes were awarded to the classroom and students with the most sales. Mrs. Hare's second grade class sold the most raffle tickets. They will receive an ice cream sundae party. It was a close competition for first, second, and third place student winners, according to a spokesperson. Less than $40 separated the top seven raffle ticket sales. D.J. Griffith sold the most tickets. He received a $25 Wal-Mart gift card. Gabriella Wildesen received a $10 Wal-Mart gift card, and Marissa Elliot received a Garrett Cinema movie pass. Lorraine Savage of Mtn. Lake Park won the raffle. More than $5,000 was raised with this fundraiser. "It was a great start toward playground improvements," said the spokesperson. Plans are being made for spring 2005, and some local businesses have already begun to contribute toward this improvement fund. Persons and businesses who would like to contribute to the fund may call Rita Miske at 301-334-3033. The students selling the most tickets are pictured above. From the left are D.J. Griffith, Gabriella Wildesen, and Marissa Elliot. Mary Ann Hare's second grade class is pictured below. In the front are Devon Tracy, Austin Sines, Katie Eyler, and Josh King. In the second row are Chelsey Sines-Ortiz, Emma Shaffer, Megan Sherbin, Brian Longacre, Brittany DelSignore, Michael Welch, and Adrianna Cogley. In the back are Ariel Landis, Marissa Elliot, Patrick McCartney, Troy Deckman, Ashley Murphy, Alexander Myers, and Mrs. Hare.

BASS PRO SHOPS MBNA 500 REVIEW

MOVING tribute

Johnson's victory honors lost friends

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Hampton, Ga.

When an opportunity presented itself late in Sunday's Bass Pro Shops MBNA 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway, Jimmie Johnson took his grieving race team from tragedy to triumph.

A week after his victory at Martinsville Speedway turned horribly sad after learning that 10 of his Hendrick Motorsports teammates and associates had died in a plane crash, he paid them a fitting tribute by speeding past a dominant Mark Martin to win the race.

Johnson's third consecutive Cup victory served as a healing experience for his race team and helped rejuvenate the Chase for the Nextel Cup, which was on the verge of becoming at best a three-driver contest.

Johnson said his ability to win after a rough seven days required strength from a higher power.

"Getting help from the Good Lord to help us win that race in Martinsville and to come back here and do it again, there's something bigger that's gone on than what we can understand and explain," he said. "I'm just happy to be a part of it."

He said being able to take the checkered flag back to his race shop will help the healing process.

"First and foremost, it's going put a smile on everyone's face," he said.

It also put smiles on the faces of fans clad in Tony Stewart orange, Dale Earnhardt Jr. red and Ryan Newman blue. As Johnson slowly circled the track, waving the checkered flag after the race, fans from all camps cheered him on.

"To see the people hanging on the fence like they did around the track, happy to see what took place, is pretty special," he said.

Johnson's seventh victory of the season and the 13th of his career also put him back in the running for the championship. His victory, coupled with Kurt Busch's blown engine, Jeff Gordon's rear-gearing troubles, Earnhardt Jr.'s late-race crash and Martin's runner-up finish, means there are 98 points separating Busch, the points leader, and fifth-place Earnhardt with three races remaining.

"Three weeks ago I thought we were out of it," said Johnson, who is second in the standings, 59 points behind Busch. "Now there's definitely drama and excitement all the way to the end."

JOHNNY CRAWFORD / Cox News Service

An emotional Jimmie Johnson kneels beside his trophy at Atlanta Motor Speedway a week after 10 of his Hendrick Motorsports teammates and associates died in a plane crash.

For most of a balmy Sunday at Atlanta Motor Speedway, Martin was in total control, leading four times for 227 laps. But when the caution flag flew on Lap 301 for Kevin Harvick, who had stalled his No. 29 Chevy on pit road, Martin elected to stay on the track while his competitors opted to pit for fresh tires.

The new rubber made a big difference as Johnson, riding on fresher tires, sped past Martin into the lead on Lap 310. Then on Lap 312, another caution flag flew when Earnhardt Jr. and Carl Edwards collided on the backstretch, sending Earnhardt slamming into the inside wall.

This time Martin decided to join his peers in changing tires, but it was too late. He charged from sixth to second in the final 10 laps but could not overtake Johnson. Edwards, Joe Nemechek and Kasey Kahne completed the top five.

Martin said NASCAR's decision to throw the caution for Harvick put him and his crew chief Pat Tryson in a situation that cost him the race. And he wondered if NASCAR threw the caution to liven up a race that he was rapidly turning into a bore.

"If I find out that caution was for the show, I'll choke," he said. "If I'd have been NASCAR, I would have told somebody to push him off of pit road. It wasn't a problem."

NASCAR spokesman Mike Zizzo said the decision to throw the caution was a safety factor.

"There was no question to put out a caution in that instance," he said. "The car and the driver were in a vulnerable position."

NOTEBOOK

Earnhardt Jr. has himself to blame

By AL LEVINE and RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Hampton, Ga.

Dale Earnhardt Jr. took responsibility for the late-race contact Sunday with Carl Edwards' car that probably cost him a chance to lead the Nextel Cup championship race with three races remaining.

Junior's inability to shoehorn his car past the front bumper of Edwards' No. 99 Ford in heavy traffic late in the race wiped out at least a top-three finish.

With 14 laps remaining, Earnhardt's No. 8 Chevrolet was running third, mounting a challenge to Mark Martin in second. Earnhardt passed Edwards on the inside for third and was trying to squeeze in behind Martin when Earnhardt made contact with Edwards' car.

The No. 8 Chevy began spinning, smacked into the wall and ended up a mangled mess. As quickly as Earnhardt had mounted the charge, he fell to a 33rd-place finish.

Instead of overtaking Kurt Busch for the points lead, Earnhardt is 98 points behind in fifth place. He had come into Sunday's race third, 125 points behind Busch, who had engine trouble.

"I was racing for the win there, but I think I came up on Carl and turned myself into the inside fence and tore up my car," Earnhardt said. "It was kind of disappointing to lose all those points, but I don't think it was Carl's fault. I just came up on him, I think, and it went from there."

Edwards finished third, his best in 10 Cup races.

"He was on the bottom, and he was moving up," Edwards said. "I thought, 'He's got to know I'm there.' I held my ground for as long as I could, and then when I realized he was going to come all the way across the front of my nose, I tried to lift a little bit and run against the wall. I just didn't do it enough."

Thoughts of pilot

Tony Stewart drove the No. 20 Chevrolet to a ninth-place finish with a decal remembering Scott Lathram, his helicopter pilot, who died in the plane crash last weekend.

Stewart said he thought about Lathram during the race. "Because I was wrecking all over the place out there and didn't hit anything," Stewart said. "So I knew he was looking out for me."

Bad luck catches up with Busch

Engine woes trim lead in standings for No. 97

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Hampton, Ga.

The spirit that had been riding around in Kurt Busch's No. 97 Ford the past six weeks transformed from Lady Luck to a ghoul.

She gobbled up his engine and burped white smoke.

"It's tough that the ghosts and goblins got us," Busch said.

Busch's season-worst finish, 42nd, trimmed his championship lead from 96 to 59 points with three races remaining.

For six weeks, Busch had led a charmed life. His worst finish was a sixth-place run at Kansas. Three fifth-place finishes, a fourth and a victory at New Hampshire put him in the Nextel Cup points lead for the past month.

He had been the only one of the 10 finalists in the Chase for the Championship to avoid catastrophe.

But his weekend unfolded ominously. Busch qualified 22nd for this race, equaling his worst start in the past six weeks.

Then came Lap 51 of 325.

The smoke began billowing from the exhaust of Busch's car. Never a good sign.

"Coming off of Turn Four, it just sputtered and acted as if it dropped a cylinder or lost an ignition box," Busch said. "So we tried to do the things inside the car to alleviate our problem, and it was something more catastrophic. We hadn't had any type of problem like this all year."

BUSCH

Something had gone awry in Busch's engine. Perhaps it was the full moon hovering above the track on the nights leading up to the race, but Busch had a premonition doom was looming just beyond a banked turn.

"I just had one of those feelings that something was going to happen," Busch said. "And today was our day. It was a gut feeling. It's just one of those feelings that you get every race, but you overcome it every race.

"Everything's going so good; it's just tough to go 10 races perfect," he added.

"We thought we could do it, but this is something that nobody forecast. This race, we just weren't able to overcome it. We had one bad circumstance under the hood that we couldn't fix today."

Busch's team had taken a conservative approach to its setup.

"We did everything we could to alleviate this type of problem," Busch said. "We ran a conservative gear and had high air pressures. We didn't risk anything, and we worked our way into the top 10 with those conservative settings."

Busch wheeled the No. 97 car back to the garage, and as the crew drained fluid, crew chief Jimmy Fennig examined the right side of the motor and guessed that a piston had fractured.

By the time the rest of the field was entering Lap 75, Busch was already showered, changed and making his way out of the garage.

He knows he has had his one affordable bad weekend. "We had six excellent races," Busch said. "Now we need three superior races to get back in this deal."

Minority group of 70 stages protest at AMS

By JEFF HOOD
Cox News Service

Hampton, Ga.

After being delayed in traffic for two hours, members of the National Association for Minority Race Fans (NAMRF) arrived at their designated area at Atlanta Motor Speedway on Sunday to protest NASCAR's lack of diversity.

The demonstrators waited on buses until the end of the race, then assembled as race fans began streaming to the exits.

The nonviolent protest lasted nearly an hour and was staged by nearly 70 African-Americans mostly in their early 20s. A planned Confederate flag swap in an adjacent campground was scratched.

"We're here today to send out a message that NASCAR needs to be held accountable for reaching out to diverse populations," said Steve Parker, director of operations for NAMRF. "NASCAR created a diversity department and hired Magic Johnson, but nothing's really been done."

Holding signs which directed NASCAR and many of its sponsors to "stop supporting racism," representatives of NAMRF attempted to hand out fliers carrying their message. Most fans ignored the group; some responded vocally or with hand gestures.

Shawn Griffith, the producer of a documentary set for a theatrical release on Feb. 20, which he claims will expose racism in NASCAR, said NAMRF likely will protest at the final three races in Phoenix, Darlington and Homestead.

SENIORS AND SOPHOMORES TO TAKE 2004 MARYLAND ADOLESCENT SURVEY

Since 1975, selected schools in Garrett County have taken part in the Maryland Adolescent Survey. This survey is conducted by the Maryland State Department of Education, in conjunction with the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Administration, Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, and the Department of Transportation in order to provide up-to-date information on the nature and extent of illegal substance use among students in Maryland schools. This information is used to guide planning, prevention and treatment programs in the school system and others throughout the state. On Dec. 14 students in selected classes in grades 6, 8, 10, and 12 will participate in this study. Parents are asked to permit their son/daughter to help the county in this important study. The survey is voluntary and will be given in selected schools during school hours by teachers. It is expected to take about 40 minutes to complete. In order to encourage truthful answers to the questions and to assure each student's privacy, names will not be written on the answer booklets. Student responses will be anonymous. Parents are invited to review the 2004 Maryland Adolescent Survey at the school. Should parents have questions about the survey, they may call Kent Huber at Southern High School, 301-334-9447.

THE REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER

Life.
The inspiration for our most flexible loan yet.

M&T CHOICEQUITY
WITH EASY ACCESS TO FIXED-RATE LOANS. IT'S MORE THAN A LINE OF CREDIT.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY RATE 3.70% VARIABLE APR* FOR FIRST 6 BILLING CYCLES
REGULAR RATE 4.75% VARIABLE APR* THEREAFTER

Thinking about a new roof? Dreaming about a bigger family car? Need to consolidate your debt? At M&T, we've got a loan that can help you keep up with life. M&T CHOICEquity gives you the flexibility of a line of credit and a loan in one account. Use it as a fixed-rate loan to pay off higher interest credit cards, or keep it as a line of credit to help finance those badly needed home repairs. And with M&T CHOICEquity, you'll only have one monthly payment, with no closing costs or application fee.* Best of all, you never have to reapply – making your life that much easier. To learn more, stop by any M&T Bank branch or call the M&T Telephone Banking Center at 1-800-724-3222.

Understanding what's important: M&T Bank

www.mandtbank.com *Prime -1.05%, currently 3.70% APR, is an introductory rate applicable to the Base Account for the first six billing cycles of the account for a line amount of $25,000 or more. After that, for the life of the line, the regular variable rate for the Base Account will be: Prime +0.95%, currently 5.70% APR, for lines of $25,000 to $39,999; Prime +0%, currently 4.75% APR, for lines of $40,000 to $500,000. For CHOICE Loans the regular fixed APR, based upon term length, is: 6.50% APR for 12-36 month terms; 7.00% APR for 37-72 month terms; and 7.50% APR for 73-180 month terms. Rates as of 10/01/04. Maximum APR of 15.90%. Your APR during and after the introductory discount period for the account may vary monthly, based upon changes in the Prime Rate, which is the highest rate published by the Wall Street Journal in its "Money Rates" table. Once a CHOICE Loan is established, the APR for that CHOICE Loan will not vary over its term. Loan-to-value ratio not to exceed 85%. Property insurance and flood insurance, if applicable, are required. If you cancel the line within 48 months, you must reimburse us for third-party fees paid in connection with opening this line. This does not apply to Pennsylvania properties. See your tax advisor for details on the tax deductibility of interest. Other terms and conditions may apply. Rates are subject to change. Offers subject to credit approval and are for new accounts only. M&T CHOICEquity accounts cannot be used to pay off existing M&T CHOICEquity or HOMEquity accounts. Offers good on properties located in DC, DE, MD, NY, PA, VA and WV only. © 2004 M&T Bank

TV PIPELINE

'JAG' co-star chose to leave the series

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q: What happened to John M. Jackson's character, Admiral Chegwidden, on "JAG" this season? –D. & P., St. Petersburg, Fla.

A: Like his television alter ego, Jackson, 54, decided to "retire" from his long-running role on the series, and his departure was marked by quite a going-away party thrown by his colleagues. Next up, Jackson has a featured role in the 2005 comedy-drama movie "West of Brooklyn."

Q: Will "American Casino" fans ever be told what caused the death of executive Michael Tata? –Judy Heath, Mesa, Ariz.

A: I'm glad you asked, because our initial tentative answer – that, in the absence of any evidence of foul play, the 33-year-old Tata apparently had died of cardiac arrest – needs to be updated.

Toxicology reports later confirmed that Tata's death was triggered by mixing a prescription painkiller with alcohol. His death was ruled as accidental. However, the painkiller in question, fentanyl, is a cancer drug (Tata was not known to have that disease), and mixing it with alcohol is known as a "Las Vegas cocktail" on the club scene.

Q: I'm a huge fan of "The Amazing Race," and I thought that it was going to begin a new season on Oct. 2. What happened? –Samantha, Lisbon, Ohio.

A: Don't panic. CBS is thrilled with the fact that audiences finally have caught up with this electrifying series, which not only went through the ratings roof last summer, but also has won back-to-back Emmy Awards over such high-profile competition as "Survivor" and "The Apprentice."

CBS just decided that round six of the series might feel just a little more "amazing" with a little breathing room between it and the September finale of "Amazing Race 5." The premiere date is Nov. 16.

John M. Jackson

Q: About six years ago, I remember seeing a TV movie in which Julie Andrews and James Garner, both widowed, met at a nursing home and later fell in love. Is it available on home video? –Faith in Milwaukee.

A: You're thinking of "One Special Night," a 1999 movie that reunited the "Victor/Victoria" and "The Americanization of Emily" stars. Actually, at the time they met, Garner's character was visiting his Alzheimer's-stricken wife before a winter storm stranded him with Andrews' character, a widowed and childless pediatrician.

We strongly discourage questions about video availability for the simple reason that TV Pipeline is written several weeks in advance of its publication date, so a video title that is available at the time of this writing may be withdrawn by the time you read of it here. For what it's worth, "One Special Night" was available on VHS but not DVD from Amazon.com at the time we checked.

Send questions of general interest to TV Pipeline, Zap2it, 333 Glen St., Glens Falls, NY 12801, or e-mail to tvpipeline@tribune.com. Only questions selected for this column will be answered. Personal replies cannot be sent.

IN FOCUS

He was "Henry VIII," he was ... and his saga is recounted by star Ray Winstone ("Cold Mountain") and an impressive supporting cast in a new two-part "Masterpiece Theatre" drama starting Sunday, Nov. 7, on PBS (check local listings).

The script calls Henry's six wives into play as the story recalls the personal trials that impacted his political life. In Part 1, Assumpta Serna plays Katherine of Aragon, Helena Bonham Carter portrays Anne Boleyn, and Emilia Fox is seen as Jane Seymour.

TRIVIA

Telly Savalas ("The Dirty Dozen") served during World War II, was injured and received a Purple Heart for his actions.

TRIVIA

Roscoe Lee Browne ("Babe") taught French and comparative literature at Lincoln University prior to acting in classic plays such as "Julius Caesar."

Nature Connection

by Liz McDowell and Ron Boyer

Approaching the gate to our native plant nursery on a cold morning this fall, we spied an object suspended in the deer fence. At first glance, it appeared that the plastic mesh had snared a falling leaf. But as we got closer we saw through the camouflage and realized that the "leaf" was actually a red bat, Lasiurus borealis.

Bats, the only true flying mammals, are also the most misunderstood. They do not get in your hair, they do not carry bed bugs, and they are not blind. Worldwide there are nearly a thousand different species, inhabiting every continent except Antarctica. These many different species eat an incredible variety of food items including pollen, nectar, fruit, fish, frogs, insects, and blood.

Yes, there really are three species of vampire bats; they live in the New World tropics, not Garrett County. But before you say, "I knew I hated bats," consider the fact that a chemical isolated from the saliva of vampire bats has been developed into a drug used to prevent blood clots in heart attack and stroke patients. Unfortunately for bat public relations, marketing experts have given it the brand name Draculin.

A RED BAT rests on a fence after a night of hunting insects near New Germany State Park. Like other tree bats, it may migrate to warmer southern climates this winter for a continued supply of insects. But it may also choose to simply hibernate in leaf litter to survive the cold in warmer regions of Maryland. Unfortunately, the red bat has the dubious distinction of being the species most frequently killed by wind generators. Cave-dwelling bats, including pipistrelles, big browns, and little browns, hibernate in caves and tunnels when the insect supply becomes scarce in the winter. They live off the fat reserves that they stored in the fall by eating large quantities of insects. Photo by Elk Ridge NatureWorks.

Almost all bats found in North America eat insects (the exception are three nectar-feeding species in the southwest U.S.) In fact, bats are the most important predator of nocturnal insects. Each night the little brown bat, the most common Maryland species, eats over 2,000 insects that harm farmers' crops and people. How do they find mosquitoes in the dark? Many bat species have an echolocation system, so sophisticated that the U.S. Defense Department studies it in order to improve the sonar system used by our troops.

Despite the many beneficial functions provided by bats, in North America alone over 50 percent are listed or proposed as endangered species. In Maryland, there are 10 species of bats, including the federally endangered Indiana bat and highly state-rare small-footed bat. Around the globe the main threats to bats are habitat destruction, environmental pollution, and thoughtless destruction by humans. A new threat on the horizon are wind generators, the fastest growing segment of the U.S. energy industry.

The first wind generators in eastern North America to be constructed on a high ridge were built just south of Oakland in West Virginia. "Migrating bats are crashing into the spinning blades in disturbing numbers" according to Merlin Tuttle, the most renowned bat scientist in the world. Dr. Tuttle is so concerned that he is working with industry and government agencies to determine why wind generators are killing bats and how to prevent it.

For more information on this new danger to bats, visit the Bat Conservation International web site at www.batcon.org. Persons interested in obtaining more information on industrial windplants in Garrett County should attend a public meeting at the Pleasant Valley Community Center at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 11.

Reports from the Field

Aaron Holochwost of McHenry birded around Deep Creek Lake for just a couple hours on Sunday, and had some interesting finds including Brant, snow goose, American coot, blue-headed vireo, Blackburnian warbler, and white-throated sparrow.

If you'd like to share your Garrett County nature sightings or if you have questions about the plants and animals that you've observed, e-mail us at info@elkridgenatureworks.com.

No Milk Spilled In Truck-Tanker Crash Sunday

A milk tanker truck was struck by a Frostburg man's pickup truck Sunday morning near Finzel, according to Maryland State Police troopers who investigated the 11:16 a.m. mishap. The tanker's cargo escaped unscathed.

Todd Lucas, 26, was eastbound on Route 40 in a 1993 Ford F-250 when the Peterbilt tanker, operated by Jared Hay, 22, Berlin, Pa., attempted to cross the road from Piney Run Road. Lucas was allegedly unable to control his speed and hit the tanker.

Lucas was transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by the Frostburg Ambulance Service. The Eastern Garrett Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

State troopers cited Lucas for a seat belt violation.

MVA To Be Closed For Veterans Day

The Motor Vehicle Administration (MVA) will close its full-service and express offices on Thursday, Nov. 11, in observance of Veterans Day. All Vehicle Emissions Inspection Program stations will also be closed.

Online registration renewals and many other eMVA options are available, as always, 24 hours a day, seven days a week by logging on to marylandmva.com.

Let's Get Down To Business!

DEEP CREEK LIMO

Deep Creek Limo has been in operation in the McHenry area for about six months. Located at the entrance to the Wisp Resort on Marsh Hill Road, the business is owned by Plaza Home Sales Inc. and Michael L. Schroyer.

The company offers limo service for various events, such as weddings, anniversaries, Christmas parties, kids' parties, birthday parties, nights out, golfing, skiing, concerts, shopping, baseball games, airport transportation, Deep Creek tours, Garrett County tours, and Sunday "Funday" tours.

"We now have an eight-passenger limo and a 10-passenger limo, and expect to expand," Schroyer explained.

All cars include courtesy umbrellas, mints, bottled water, blankets, mood lighting, stereos, leather, privacy dividers, and a complete bride and groom kit.

Although reservations are required, service can be available in as little as four hours.

Currently, the company employs four professional limo drivers who have been approved by the Maryland Public Service Commission.

Schroyer noted that the company and drivers had to pass a lifetime MVA history check, a lifetime fingerprint check, a personal interview with the Maryland Public Service Commission, a complete car inspection, insurance regulations, on-file rate sheets, and a corporation background check.

"Comfort is our number one goal," Schroyer said. "Our drivers are licensed, dress in all black, and wear limo caps. They are 100% approved with Maryland Public Service #3149."

Reservations may be made by calling 301-501-LIMO.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special corps of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Members of the Civic Club of Oakland will soon be taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $100 per child.

The Civic Club of Oakland is again heading up the volunteer/shopping coordination in the southern part of the county. Betty Ellington and Bobby Andersen are the head coordinators, assisted by several other Civic Club members. For the northern part of the county, Lisa Broadwater will continue her role as the coordinator of shopping at the LaVale Wal-Mart. Many other functions of the program are being handled by Civic Club members, for which the newspaper staff is very grateful.

THE REPUBLICAN with the GWFC Civic Club of Oakland

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Please make your donations before December 3, 2004. Those collected after December 3 will be saved for next year's campaign.

TRAVELING TOWARD THE LIGHT

If you have ever been a first time visitor to a new city with an underground rail system, a scene like this one might come to mind. You walk up the long stairs from the dark tunnel of the subway. You step onto the sidewalk into the light, never knowing from one stop to the next exactly what scene will await you at the top. Perhaps you walk into a business district shining with glass and steel; or a verdant park awaits; perhaps children squeal in glee as they ride a carousel. A tree-lined residential district could welcome you, or a row of colorful ethnic restaurants. You never know what awaits you until you step into the light of day.

At times, we are unsure of stepping into new situations, not knowing what awaits us there. Yet, we need not fear, for God goes with us. We read in Psalm 112:4 and 7... "Light rises in the darkness for the upright,...his heart is firm, trusting in the Lord."

Won't you let God walk with you through your days? Learn more about the Lord and His Holy Word as you step toward the light of His love in worship at His House this week.

Know Your Spiritual Self

Those who know you, Lord, will trust you;

Good News Bible
Psalm 9:10

When the great works of civilization are readily available to anyone with a computer and an Internet connection, we surely are living in amazing times. We can search the libraries of the world with the simple click of a mouse-button. Meanwhile, we send probes to outer space and to the bottom of the ocean, and our world seemingly gets smaller with each passing day. And although we know more and more about the physical world, our knowledge of our spiritual selves seems to grow thin and meager. Because we live in the midst of an information explosion, we are often hard-pressed for enough time to keep abreast of the new developments and we may even neglect our inner lives. With the world's current output of new books at over 5000 titles per day, it is impossible for anyone to stay abreast of every new development in every field, and anyone who tried would truly risk losing their soul. The philosopher, Schopenhauer, once remarked that the most important things cannot be expressed in words, but still there is no end to the writing of books. Socrates, who never wrote a book, warned that the unexamined life is not worth living. Jesus, who also never wrote a book, had something similar in mind. He told His disciples that the Kingdom of God is within you (Luke 17:21). If we truly know ourselves, then we will know that we are the sons and daughters of the Living Father who created us and loves us. Knowing God is knowing ourselves.

Supplements Studies in Smokers

The best way to avoid smoking related health problems is to simply kick the tobacco habit, but quitting the smoking habit is far from simple. Gums and patches containing nicotine have been helpful to many. Researchers have found that supplements may limit some of the damage caused by cigarettes. In a recent issue of the journal Circulation, a report occurred regarding smokers who smoked at least a pack a day but had no significant health consequences from their smoking. They were given either vitamin C or taurine, an amino acid found in all kinds of fish. While regular smoking usually constricts blood vessels, researchers discovered that smokers who took one of these supplements obtained an average vessel diameter that was wider than those not receiving the supplements. The implication of this finding is that such supplements may provide protection to blood vessels caused by smoking.

Lobelia, a naturally occurring substance from plants has been promoted as an aid to stop smoking. However, at least one study has shown that lobeline, a constituent of Lobelia is not effective when given orally for smoking cessation.

Help for a Howling Cat

Q. I just wanted to suggest that the owner of Lily, the part-Siamese cat, who wrote to you check out the Siamese Rescue Web site. There she could learn more about the breed. Hiding from visitors and howling are also characteristic behaviors of Siamese. She may be able to find some useful information and/or resources to help her care for and understand Lily. — Heather T.

A. Thank you, Heather! It's wonderful when my readers can help each other out. The Siamese Rescue site, www.siameserescue.org, provides a wealth of information on the Siamese breed, as well as adoption resources and links to rescue organizations in several states. You can even support the centers by donating items they need to care for rescued cats, or volunteer your time to take care of or transport a Siamese to its new owner.

According to the Web site, the Siamese Cat Rescue Center was first established in Kansas. That facility, unfortunately, closed its doors this year, but a Virginia chapter of the Center was established as well, and several more centers have opened since.

If you don't have Internet access, contact the Siamese Cat Rescue Center by mail at 366 Meander Run Road, Locust Dale, VA 22948.

Glass Insulators

Q. During the 1860s, a telegraph line was installed through British Columbia, Canada, near where I live. Several years ago, I found three of the old glass insulators originally used on the poles. The insulators are green and manufactured by either Hemingray or Whitall Tatum, both American companies. — Joel, Burns Lake, B.C.

A. Your insulators sound interesting. There are hundreds of people who collect the older glass insulators, especially throughout the Western states. Two clubs that might be helpful are the Yankee Polecat Insulator Club, 1034 Canterbury Court, Carlisle, MA 01741; and the Dixie Jewels Club, 6220 Carriage Court, Cumming, GA 30040.

Q. I have a dental instrument cabinet with a marble kick board and a marble top that is approximately 100 years old. What do you think it's worth? — Isabella, Columbus, Neb.

A. William Winjum is a collector of older dental instruments and fixtures. His address is 1502 Showalter Road, Grafton, VA 23692. For a second opinion, you can contact Dr. Barry Janov, 2454 Dempster St., Suite 416, Des Plaines, IL 60016.

Q. I have "The Following of Christ," a set of four books by Thomas A. Kempis, translated from the Latin by the retired Rev. Richard Challoner, D.D. The set was published by John Murphy in about 1856. Where can I find out its value? — Mike, Pueblo West, Colo.

A. A quick check of several book dealers in the Denver area revealed little or no interest in your books. Two shops in other areas that buy and sell rare out-of-print books are Brick Row Book Shop, 49 Geary St., 235, San Francisco, CA 94108; and Robert Gavora Fine and Rare Books, P.O. Box 448, Talent, OR 97541.

• Al Capone is reviled today as a violent gangster — and don't get me wrong, he certainly was — but for a while he was awfully successful at it. If you look at his gross income during the late 1920s in today's dollars, every year he made $67.5 million from gambling, $19.3 million from prostitution, $28.8 million from his racetracks and $28.9 million just from selling beer (this was during Prohibition, of course).

• It may seem strange today, but it was common in ancient Rome for brides to wear red veils.

• A newborn giraffe is 6 feet tall — and by the end of its first year of life, it's 10-12 feet tall.

• Here's some interesting information to share over the Thanksgiving dinner table: English speakers think that the sound made by a turkey is "gobble gobble," but not everyone in the world agrees. The Portuguese think they say "glugluglugluglu," in Albania it's "krrull krrull," and in France it's "glouglou." The Danish think a turkey's sound is "kalkunen klukker," and — inexplicably — Hebrew turkeys say "tarnegoley hodu mekarkerim."

Public's Help Sought In Stemming Onslaught Of Sudden Oak Death

Sudden oak death (SOD)–a disease that has killed thousands of trees in California–has arrived in Maryland, according to the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension (MCE). Sudden oak death is caused by Phytophthora ramorum, a fungus-like pathogen that spreads by sending spores from infected leaves and twigs. Maryland has two confirmed SOD-positive samples from rhododendron and camellia plants.

"The significance of this new disease would be the possible infection and probable decline of our Eastern forests," said Dr. David Clement of the Cooperative Extension's Home and Garden Information Center (HGIC).

"Northern red oak, southern red oak, and pin oak have shown susceptible reactions in laboratory tests. Native rhododendrons and mountain laurels would also be infected. The effects to Maryland forests and landscapes could add up and be similar to both Chestnut blight and Dutch elm disease," said Clement.

The only way to confirm SOD is through laboratory testing. The Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) has surveyed plant material in Maryland nurseries and garden centers. Now, in cooperation with MCE, they are seeking help from the public in tracking down infected plant material that was purchased prior to the nursery inspections.

Of particular interest are any camellias, lilacs and viburnums that were purchased and/or planted in 2003 or 2004 and any rhododendrons (including azaleas) that are exhibiting foliar symptoms. In addition, samples of any other plants on the host list published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service that were planted in 2003 or 2004 and are exhibiting unusual symptoms should be tested.

The symptoms of SOD are highly variable and are largely dependent on the host plant, according to Clement, a plant pathologist, although they fall into two basic categories–foliar symptoms and trunk symptoms. Foliar symptoms involve dark brown to black lesions with indistinct edges that can occur anywhere on the leaf surface, including leaf petioles and stem branches. Some host plants with foliar lesions quickly defoliate and show stem dieback.

Photos showing infected leaves on several plants can be found on HGIC's web site at www.hgic.umd.-edu, along with additional information about the disease.

"Trunk symptoms will probably not be visible on oaks initially unless this disease gets established in the landscape," said Clement. "Oak symptoms would be visible as bleeding cankers on trunks, and when the bark is removed a brownish stain is present, outlined by a dark margin."

Persons who suspect that they have an infected plant, whether it has symptoms or not, may call HGIC at 1-800-342-2507. Trained consultants will assist in determining if a sample needs to be sent to MDA. They will take names and addresses and forward them to MDA daily. Another option is to request a postage-paid sample kit via the "Send a Question" link on the HGIC web site.

Samples should be sent only to the Maryland Department of Agriculture. Persons are advised not to send or hand-carry samples to the Home and Garden Information Center or their county Cooperative Extension office.

Local Boy Scouts Conducting Food Drive Nov. 6-12

The Potomac Council of the Boy Scouts of America will conduct its annual Scouting for Food Program this month for the 17th consecutive year.

Since 1988, Scouts in Allegany, Garrett, Hampshire, Mineral, Grant, and Hardy counties have collected nearly 28,000 pounds (14 tons) of food, according to a Potomac Council spokesperson.

As in past years, the Scouts will distribute door hangers to homes throughout the area during the week of Nov. 6-12.

The written request on the hangers will urge residents to fill a bag or bags of nonperishable food and place them on their front porches on Saturday, Nov. 13, by 9 a.m.

The Scouts will then take the bags to local food pantries and food banks for distribution to their clients.

The Scouting for Food Program is underwritten by the M&T Bank.

For further information, persons may call the Council Service Center at 301-729-1300.

Adult Abuse Awareness Month Noted

The Garrett County Department of Social Services Adult Protective Services has noted that October was Adult Abuse Awareness Month. "Abuse and neglect of vulnerable adults has become a major concern for our society," a spokesperson said. "This concern will only increase, with the adult population increasing."

The local agency received and investigated over 77 reports alleging abuse, neglect, exploitation and self-neglect of vulnerable adult last year. Three of the investigations resulted in the filing for guardianship of the vulnerable adult.

DSS is the agency responsible for investigating reports of abuse and neglect to vulnerable adults and staff are available to provide training and workshops to organizations and civic groups.

Persons may contact the Garrett County Department of Social Services to obtain information about adult abuse or neglect, and to report instances of abuse or neglect by calling 301-533-3040, or 301-533-3044, between 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

To make a report after 4 p.m. or on weekends, persons may call 9-1-1 and ask for the "social worker on call."

Suspected adult abuse or neglect can also be reported to the National Adult Abuse Hot Line at 1-800-917-7383.

Library Issues Outlined For Elected Officials

State Del. George Edwards and Garrett County Commissioner Fred Holliday were among the members of the public on hand for last month's open meeting of the Ruth Enlow Library Board of Trustees.

REL director Cathy Ashby outlined the programs and services offered by the main library and its branches, and noted that the circulation at the Grantsville library has nearly doubled with the building of the new facility.

Ashby also presented a survey conducted for the Maryland Association of Public Library Administrators, showing the results of research about public library usage.

Edwards and Holliday discussed library funding at the state and local levels, and both expressed their support for the library system in Garrett County.

For information on services available through the Ruth Enlow Library, persons may call 301-334-3996.

4-H Club News

RYAN'S GLADE
by Katelyn Gnegy, reporter

The Oct. 19 meeting of the Ryan's Glade 4-H Club was held at Bill and Charlotte Mousch's butcher shop. The program for the meeting was cuts of meat, and each member was able to actually see how they cut up meat and learned the different cuts of meat.

Members were also able to watch them bring meat from the freezer, cut it up, grind it into hamburger, and package it. We were informed that they butcher deer, beef, and emus.

Members who did radio spots for 4-H Days were Jessica and Andrea Steyer, Katelyn Gnegy, and Aaron and Levi Lantz. Members who carried leaf signs in the Autumn Glory parade were Katelyn Gnegy and Aaron and Levi Lantz.

Members were advised that Livestock Association dues are due by January 2005, and 4-H project books are due at the December meeting. Beef exhibitors were reminded of beef weigh-in on Nov. 6 and 13.

We would like to make note of a correction to the September report: Eric Tichnell and Levi Lantz participated in the state fair instead of Greg Tichnell and Lei Lantz.

Read. Then Recycle.

MTN. LAKE PARK WATER SYSTEM
NOTICE OF VIOLATION
Surface Water Treatment Technique

The Garrett County Department of Public Utilities is providing the following notice regarding the Mtn. Lake Park Water System. The springs for the water system have been evaluated for protection against surface water influence as required by the Surface Water Treatment Rule (SWTR), as adopted in the Code of Maryland; COMAR 26.04.01, Quality of Drinking Water in Maryland. The spring was determined to be under the direct influence of surface water by the Maryland Department of the Environment. As a result, this source requires additional treatment, such as filtration, or replacement with a protected water source. Federal and state regulations require that the Mtn. Lake Park Water System install filtration.

What is the Department of Public Utilities doing?

The Mtn. Lake Park Water System disinfects the drinking water that is produced from the spring. The drinking water is tested monthly for coliform bacteria and results have met state and federal standards.

The Department of Public Utilities is in the process of testing the design for a new water treatment facility. After the pilot test is completed, design for the project will proceed.

What should I do?

People with severely compromised immune systems, infants, and some elderly may be at increased risk. These individuals should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA "Safe Drinking Water Act Hotline" (800-426-4791). If you have specific health concerns, consult your physician.

What does this mean?

This is not an emergency. This notification is provided to advise Mtn. Lake Park Water customers of the treatment requirements for their water system. Any questions or concerns should be directed to Allen Festerman at 301-387-9141. Please share this information with others who may find it useful.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

BIOLUMINESCENCE

Q. Sometimes on a dark night, if you look out at the porpoises jumping in the ocean, they seem to glow for just an instant. What is going on?

A. What you are seeing is an example of bioluminescence, where a living thing gives off light. This happens in a variety of biological systems. The most familiar is the way fireflies light up at night.

In general, for light to be emitted at all, an atom has to first be in an excited state, and then drop down to its ground state by giving off a photon of light. To get into that excited state in the first place requires some energy. So far, this is only physics.

When a chemical reaction takes place, two different chemicals combine to produce something else, and perhaps one of the final molecules will wind up in an excited state. If it then gives off light as it drops back down to its ground state, we call that chemiluminescence, meaning light given off from a chemical reaction. In fact, in high school chemistry lab, the way to determine what chemicals are involved in a reaction is to observe what light is given off and then work backward, determining which element must have been responsible for that particular color of light. A violet flame means potassium, a yellow flame means sodium, and so forth. Some reactions give off photons in the infrared or ultraviolet region of the spectrum, which can be seen by special instruments, but not by the human eye.

In biological organisms, chemical reactions are taking place constantly, and sure enough some of them result in atoms being in an excited state. When light is given off, we call it bioluminescence. This happens all the time at a low level, and humans can only see it if the background is very dark. Fireflies can blink on and off any old time, but nobody notices in the daylight.

The reason underlying most bioluminescence has to do with attracting a mate. The trouble is that if a predator can see the same light, you're more likely to get eaten. Being a firefly is a tough life, although you don't have people trying to swat you – just kids trying to trap you into a bottle.

In the case of glowing porpoises, what you're seeing is quite different. It is not the porpoises that give off light, but tiny organisms in the water near the porpoises. There are some very interesting creatures in salt water. Certain zooplankton (very simple living creatures) give off light when the water around them suddenly becomes turbulent. Well, that is exactly what happens to the water when a porpoise swims through it. The creatures that happen to be adjacent to the body of the porpoise suddenly find themselves motivated to emit light. To the observer way back on the shore, it looks like the porpoise itself is glowing. But if the water is already turbulent, the zooplankton will light up less and the total light given off will be too dim to see.

One way to observe this is to collect a bottle full of ocean water at someplace (like the Outer Banks of North Carolina) where such creatures live. Take it into a totally dark room, let your eyes adapt to the dark, and then shake the bottle. If bioluminescent creatures are present, you'll see a faint glow.

There are many other examples of bioluminescence in marine life. A fish that lives at great depth, the Angler Fish, has almost an overhanging lantern to light up the surroundings in the darkness of deep ocean trenches. This fish is best known via Walt Disney movies like Finding Nemo. A more accessible creature is the ctenophore (don't pronounce the "C"). This jellyfish-like critter lives near the surface and can sometimes be found in coastal waters. It is smaller than a standard jellyfish, and its tentacles seem to glow in various rainbow colors. But it has to be pretty dark to see anything at all.

Finally, much larger living things including people are also bioluminescent, but extremely faintly. In fact, starlight is brighter than the bioluminescence of people, which has only been detected with very sensitive instruments.

Dr. Sheahen is a physicist who was educated at MIT. He lives at Deep Creek Lake and has taught physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.

Private Applicator Pesticide Test to be Given

The Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) will be offering the Certified Private Applicators Exam at the Garrett County Cooperative Extension Office on Monday, December 15, at 11 a.m. A Private Applicator certificate is required of any farmer or other person who intends to use a restricted-use pesticide on property owned or rented by the applicator for producing an agricultural commodity. Many farm chemicals are labeled as restricted use due to the chemical hazard to humans or the environment. Certified Private Applicators must pass the examination and pay a $7 fee to the MDA. The certification is good for three years and may be renewed by re-examination or attending an MDA approved training session. To assist persons with the examination, the Garrett County Cooperative Extension Service will be holding an Exam Review on Monday, November 8, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Extension Office. The Exam Review and study materials will be provided free of charge. MDA Nets Funds For Crop Insurance Education Progs.

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ann M. Veneman announced that the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) is the recipient of $370,000 in funding to conduct intensive crop insurance education and information programs. The MDA is partnering with the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension and the USDA Risk Management Agency (RMA) to increase farmer awareness and use of federal crop insurance.

"Under Agriculture Secretary Lewis Riley's leadership, Maryland has worked aggressively to strengthen Maryland's agricultural economy, including promoting crop insurance," said Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. "This partnership funding gives us the ability to expand our successful risk management education programs for the benefit of our farmers."

"Crop insurance is an extremely valuable risk management tool for our farmers – it makes the bad years and unexpected production losses survivable," said Riley. "This educational and promotional effort is now in its third year and is having a positive impact on the farm community."

Crop insurance participation is climbing in Maryland. In 2004, participation increased by 14 percent from 2003 – the highest increase in the Northeast.

In 2003, Maryland farmers received $11.3 million in indemnity payments from crop insurance. Producers spent $3.3 million to pay for crop insurance premiums in 2003.

"This project is an excellent use of the combined skills of the university and MDA," said Dr. Bruce Gardner, interim dean of the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. "Our ag economists and educators are able to provide Maryland farmers with financial risk management educational tools to increase their success, while MDA is able to use its marketing and leadership savvy to get the message in the right hands."

The RMA funding is part of the Targeted States Program, which uses $4.4 million to deliver crop insurance education to producers in 15 historically underserved states through cooperative agreements.

Love, Sacrifice, Honor Focus Of Family Caregivers' Salute

The Garrett County Community Action Committee's Area Agency on Aging is noting November as National Family Caregivers Month. The annual observance is an effort of numerous national organizations, major corporations, and community-based groups around the country to thank and support our nation's family caregivers.

A local salute to family caregivers will take the form of a daylong Family Caregivers' Salute slated from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 12, at the Will O' the Wisp Resort. The free conference includes complimentary continental breakfast and lunch, with funding provided by the National Family Caregiver Support Program. (Registration details appear at the end of this article.)

The conference-style speakers' list includes representatives from the Alzheimer's Association, Veterans Administration, Medicare Drug Discount Card Program, Respite Care, and Inspired Relocations, a private Frederick-based lifestyle planning service for older persons downsizing into smaller homes, assisted living arrangements, or nursing homes.

The program will close with a special celebration for family caregivers. The conference is sponsored by the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging in partnership with the Alzheimer's Association, Mountain Glade Adult Day Care Services, and the Garrett County Health Department.

FAMILY CAREGIVERS MONTH PROCLAIMED – The Garrett County commissioners recently proclaimed November as National Family Caregivers Month in the county. The nationwide "Share the Caring" observance is a time to thank, support, educate, and advocate for more than 50 million family caregivers across the country. Pictured seated from the left are Commissioners Ernie Gregg, David Beard, and Fred Holliday. Standing are Mountain Glade Adult Day Care director Joanne Harsh, Garrett County Health Department registered nurses Kim Powell and Martha Layton, and Area Agency on Aging representative Leona Beckman, coordinator and case manager for the local Family Caregiver Support Program.

In any given year over 50 million people provide some level of caregiving services, according to the National Family Caregivers Association (NFCA). More than half that number provide an average of 20 hours of care a week or more. Those services are valued at more than $257 billion a year. Family caregivers provide more than 80 percent of all home care services. Two-thirds of all seniors needing care receive it solely from family members.

"Our organization is pleased to have this opportunity to formally recognize and celebrate the valuable role they play," said Agency on Aging staffer Leona Beckman, coordinator and case manager of the National Family Caregivers Support Program. NFC Month is organized each year by the National Family Caregivers Association, a grass roots organization whose mission is to improve the overall quality of life of family caregivers and their loved ones.

"One of our goals for NFC Month is to get family caregivers to realize that their own good health is the best present they can give their loved one," said NFCA president and co-founder Suzanne Mintz. "This year we are encouraging people to help family caregivers stay healthy by lending a helping hand. There are so many ways to help, such as preparing a meal or providing a ride to church. NFC Month recognizes that caregiving is more than a one-person job."

To learn more about the National Family Caregivers Month program, persons may contact the Area Agency on Aging by calling 301-334-9431, ext. 140 or 143, or 1-888-877-8403, ext. 140 or 143, or call the NFCA at 800-896-3650, or consult the NFCA web site at www.-thefamilycaregiver.org.

The deadline for advance reservations for the Family Caregivers' Salute at the Will O' The Wisp is Friday, Nov. 5, and reservations may be made by calling the Area Agency on Aging at the numbers listed above.

Caregivers Need To Take Care Of Themselves, Too

by Jean W. Roesser
Secretary, Maryland Department of Aging

During the past year more than one quarter (26.6 percent) of the adult population has provided care for a chronically ill, disabled, or aged family member of friend. Caregivers are the mainstay of elder care in America today.

November is National Family Caregivers Month. The Ehrlich and Steele Administration acknowledges that families are the major caretakers of older persons in our country. These are spouses, adult children, grandchildren, other relatives, and friends who help with shopping, transportation and household chores. And, caregivers often must help with more basic human necessities like bathing, dressing, meals, and medications.

Already family caregivers provide more than 80 percent of all homecare services. Collectively, this amounts to an average of $257 billion annually to the nation's health care system – an amount that significantly reduces costs to Medicare, Medicaid, and private payers.

The huge contributions that caregivers make are often underestimated by others. Caregivers, especially spousal caregivers, customarily do not receive consistent help from other family members. One study has shown that as many as three-fourths of these caregivers are "going it alone."

Prolonged caregiving can adversely affect one's physical and psychological health, current and future earnings capacity, the ability to balance needs of older parents with young children and with one's personal needs; yet, as the population ages – a tsunami of aging boomers is on the way – and as medical science continues to extend life, the demand for caregiving will increase sharply, as will the need for home and community-based services that provide personal assistance, respite, home modifications, assistive devices, and caregiver training. This will allow more seniors to stay in their homes, a trend called "Aging in Place."

Nearly four years ago the Administration on Aging, a branch of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, implemented the National Family Caregiver Support Program. U.S. Caregiver programs are offered in every state and to tribal and native organizations through grants made to area agencies on aging. In Maryland, there are 19 such agencies.

Support for caregivers comes through information and assistance to access public and community services; individual counseling, support groups, respite care, caregiver education, and training workshops; and other services such as transportation, emergency response systems, home modifications, and assistive equipment. A recent national survey indicated while most caregivers want help, they are unaware of these services available to them.

I urge caregivers to think about tapping into resources available to help you help your loved ones. Please call your local Area Agency on Aging or the Maryland Department of Aging at 1-800-243-3425, or visit our web site at www.mdoa.state.md.us for referral information.

GET READY TO FLY!

Imagine planning a cross-country hot air balloon trip. You're standing in the gondola ready to begin your adventure, but you have so much ballast aboard that you are unable to lift off.

You can feel the same when you are ready to purchase your next home – if you already own one. You may even have your next house picked out – the only thing holding you back is "excess ballast" in the form of your existing home.

How can you purchase another home, when the one you already own is unsold? There are two possibilities. The first is questionable – at best. The second will set you free to purchase your next home with no strings attached.

You can make an offer to purchase another home "contingent" on the sale of your existing one, but don't expect the sellers to get excited. You are asking the sellers to take their home off the market, with no guarantee that you will ever purchase theirs.

The second option is to first be a serious seller. With a contract on your home, you will know how much you will receive, and when to expect it, making you free to choose the home you want, at a price and terms best suited to your needs. Ask your real estate agent for details, and then get ready to fly!

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

Ringing in the Ears Affects Millions

Over 75% of all ear-related problems such as injury, infections, or tumors include tinnitus as a symptom. Known as a noise originating in the ear and not the outside environment, tinnitus is usually heard as a ringing or hum that only the hearer can hear. Aside from signaling an ear problem that should be examined by a doctor, tinnitus is also responsible for sleep deprivation, inability to focus concentration, and shortened attention span. Tinnitus is thought to affect almost 40 million Americans at some point in their lifetimes.

Tinnitus that is caused by an underlying health condition such as infection, high blood pressure, or diabetes can sometimes be stopped by the starting or increasing the dose of medications that treat that condition while under a healthcare provider's supervision. Prescribed medications such as certain chemotherapy agents, diuretics, seizure medications, or anything with a large amount of quinine have been known to cause or worsen existing tinnitus. Alternative medications may be available that help lessen the noise. For those who have trouble maintaining sleep due to tinnitus, prescription sleep medications can help with both sleep and ringing problems, since being deprived of sleep is another known problem that can worsen tinnitus.
